199 Grant Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

1200 BOSTONS, 1000 WHITMANI COMPACTA (new). This stock is from the bench and is in fine condition. The Whitmani compacta is simply a greatly improved Whitmani—it does not revert back to the Boston leaf as the old Whitmani does, and while in appearance it is much like the old variety, the fronds have a stiffer mid-rib and make a handsomer plant. Stock is 5 and 6-in. size, being mostly 6-in. As these plants now occupy my propagation benches, they must be closed out early. I can quote you bargain prices. A. A. Gannett, Geneva, N. Y.

BOSTON FERNS.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE market for smokeless coals is not only strong but getting stronger; at least the coal trade is so confident that there is to be a big demand for this class of fuel this winter that scant attention is paid to the buyer who thinks he should get a concession in price.

CAPACITY OF BOILER.

What is the capacity of a tubular boiler, 3x15 feet, with a 24-inch dome, twenty-four 3-inch flues and a grate 30x48 inches. How many square feet of glass will it heat to 50 degrees when it is zero outside, using ten to fifteen pounds of steam, with a gravity system? T. W. C.

The boiler can be safely rated at thirty horse-power, and it should heat from 12,000 to 15,000 square feet of glass to 50 degrees under the conditions named.

A HORIZONTAL SMOKE FLUE.

The boiler for heating my greenhouses is in the basement of my dwelling. I am planning to build a new chimney, about thirty feet away from the boiler. What size of chimney and what size of flue would I need? My neighbor's house is about six feet higher than mine. The smoke pipe of the boiler is eight inches in diameter. P. H.

It is a difficult matter to carry a smoke pipe for thirty feet horizontally. Therefore, to improve the draft, the chimney should be larger in diameter and higher than would otherwise be required. I would suggest that in case the 8-inch smoke pipe is large enough for the boiler, the chimney be made twelve inches in diameter and thirty-five or more feet high, or at least five feet higher than any of the surrounding buildings.

IN SOUTHERN INDIANA.

I am building a greenhouse eighty feet long and eight feet high to the ridge, with 4-foot wooden side walls. It is joined to another house, but the east side and north end are exposed. Will you kindly inform me as to the best way to pipe this house so as to heat it to 60 or 65 degrees in zero weather? F. H. H.

The letter does not appear to give the width of the new greenhouse, and without that no definite suggestions can be made. Neither does it imply whether the building is to be heated with steam or hot water.

In case the house is 20 feet wide and hot water is to be used, it is suggested that three 2½-inch flow pipes be used. One of these should be on each wall and the other under the ridge. In addition to the flow pipes, nine 2-inch returns should be used. Three of the returns can be in coils upon each side wall and the others under the middle bench. For steam in a house of the same width, take one 2-inch flow pipe and nine 1¼-inch returns. For houses wider or narrower than twenty feet, use proportionately more or less pipe.

THREE HOUSES AND A FRAME.

We are going to build two greenhouses, here in southeastern New Hampshire. The dimensions of the houses will be as follows: No. 1 will be 15x75 and nine feet to the ridge. One end will be glass, except three feet, which will be boarded. The back wall will be five feet high, the front wall four feet, all boarded. The houses will run east and west. House No. 2 will be 13½x75, with a gable the same as No. 1. The walls will be four feet high, and boarded. At the west end will be the boiler, in the service house, which will run across the ends of the two houses.

Please state the best way to heat the houses to a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees when the outside temperature is at zero. We shall heat with hot water. We have been thinking of using a 2½-inch flow under the ridge and 2-inch returns under the side benches. If there is a better way, please describe it. Also state the number of feet of 2-inch pipe required, and the size of boiler, to heat these two houses and another one, 18x75, which will be added next year. The 13½-foot house will be in front of the 15-foot house, and we should like to know whether we could heat a frame, 6x75 feet, by running two returns from the side of the 13½-foot house. The frame will be used for bedding plants, and not until about March 15. Please state the right size and position of the expansion tank, and the height and diameter of the smokestack. The boiler pit will be seven feet deep. A. H. C. & S.

The houses are rather large to be heated by a single 2½-inch flow pipe, and it will be better to use two 2½-inch flows or three 2-inch flows in each on the walls, or a part of them might be under the benches. This would require about 600 feet of 2-inch pipe for house No. 1 and 525 feet for house No. 2. To heat the three houses will require a boiler with a rating of about 2,000 square feet of radiating surface.

The hotbed could be kept above 40 degrees in zero weather by the use of two 2-inch returns and could ordinarily be kept above 50 degrees after March 15. A 20-gallon expansion tank will be desirable. This should be connected with the highest part of the system, which should be near the boiler. The smokestack should be fifteen inches in diameter and about thirty-five feet high.

A COLORADO RANGE.

Please let us know how we can pipe our houses to the best advantage, for hot water. The houses run north and south, with the workroom at the north end and a public street at the east and south. House No. 1, beginning at the east side, is 30x165. Nos. 2, 3 and 4 are each 20x165. No. 5 is 20x100, being cut short by the boiler room. The houses are even-span, with the gutters six feet above ground. No. 1 has three feet of glass in its east wall.

The houses are all built and we have been heating them with three small hot water boilers, located in different parts of the range, but we are now putting in one horizontal, tubular boiler, five feet in diameter and sixteen feet long—about an eighty horse-power boiler. As we have the place piped for water, we think the returns, which are 2-inch, would be too large for steam. There is a cross walk in the houses, 100 feet from the workroom, at the north, and sixty-five feet from the south street. The boiler, as already indicated, is at the west side and about the middle of the 100-foot section.

Can we run the main feeder from the boiler into the nearest house, house No. 4, then south under the gutter to the cross walk, and then along the walk in the middle of the roof, attaching a tee at each house and feeding in both directions? And can we put one return in the walk and let the returns from under the benches go into it and then back to the boiler? We now have one 3-inch flow and nine 2-inch returns in each house. How large a feeder do we need from the boiler? The boiler now has one 5-inch and one 4-inch opening. Is that enough? How large a return do we need? Can we reduce the feeder and return as we get toward the houses numbered 1 and 2? Should the main feeder be run on a level, or should it slope up or down a little? Where should we connect the expansion tank? How deep should the boiler pit be? The houses slope toward the south. N. & R.

The letter does not give any idea of the temperatures desired in the different houses, but the use of one 3-inch flow and nine 2-inch returns would furnish about 55 degrees when the mercury stands at 10 degrees above zero outside, except in house No. 1, which should have twelve returns for 45 degrees. The main flow and return pipes should be 6-inch, but can be reduced to 4-inch when they reach house No. 1 and 5-inch at house No. 3. Both should have a slight downward slope, with the expansion tank attached to the highest part of the main flow pipe.

ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

Cast Iron Boilers Crack

Our large cast iron sectional boiler cracked one section and the header last Sunday. It seemed to turn cold about the same time that the break occurred. By Monday night it was 14° below zero. However, by putting up coal stoves, oil stoves, lamps and pushing up the small furnace we have managed to keep most of our stock in pretty good shape and our total loss, furnace and all, will be between $500 and $600. Just luck that it was not all gone.

New Kroeschell boiler ordered by telegraph on Sunday, shipped Monday, reached here on Friday; hauled to greenhouse on Saturday and started a fire Sunday: just seven days and ten hours after the accident. When dealing with people who will deliver a boiler as quick as that you cannot give up. Yours very truly,

MICHLER BROS. CO., Lexington, Ky.

Took Out Cast Iron Boilers for Kroeschell

I bought two No. 4 Boilers in 1902. They take care of 24,750 square feet of glass and could take care of one-third more. These boilers are rated at 21,000 square feet. They do very satisfactory work, better than any other boiler I ever had. I took out my cast iron boilers and put these in their place. Your boilers save at least 15 per cent coal. JAS. S. KIRK, Chicago, Ill.

Kroeschell Versus Cast Iron

Have no trouble to keep up temperatures in my houses with the No. 10 Kroeschell Boiler. The boiler has given entire satisfaction. We had a cast iron sectional boiler—I wouldn't have one for a gift any more. LOUIS OTTO, Neenah, Wis.

Better Than Cast Iron

We bought a No. 1 Boiler in 1902. It is very satisfactory. We had several cast iron boilers, but like yours much better.

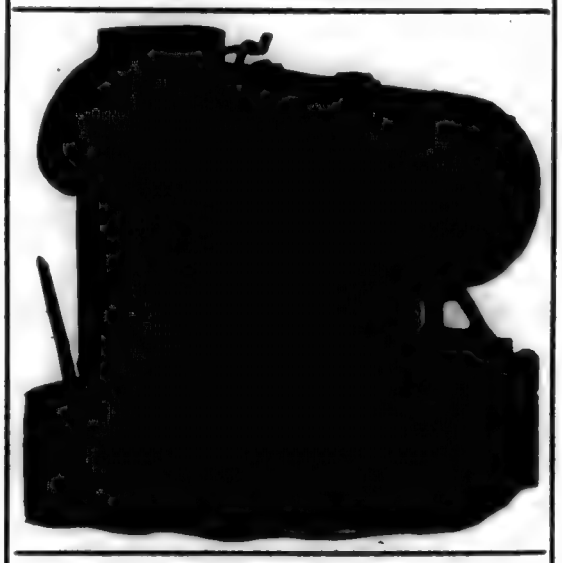
The plan of running the mains in the cross walk appears desirable, especially with the slope away from the heater.

The deeper the boiler the better will be the circulation, and if possible the top of the boiler should be below the level of the returns.



A PENNSYLVANIA ROSE HOUSE.

I have a new greenhouse, 20x100 feet, for roses. The walls are five feet high. The north wall is all concrete and is six inches thick. The south wall contains twenty-eight inches of glass and the rest of it is concrete. The west gable is concrete to the height of three feet; above that it is glass. The east gable is half glass and the rest is covered by a shed. The house is to be heated by steam to a temperature of 60 degrees, when the outside temperature is at zero. How many 1¼-inch pipes will be necessary? The pipes will be hung on the walls only. What size of supply pipe will be needed? The boiler has a grate 18x28 inches and is rated at 726 square feet of radiation. Is this boiler large enough, or will it be necessary to put in another section? A gravity system will be used. P. N.

A rose house 20x100 can be heated with steam to 60 degrees by using one 2-inch overhead main and nine 1¼-inch returns in coils on the walls. The odd pipe should be on the south wall, and the coils should start at the middle of the west end of the house and follow the wall around to the east end, where the pipes on each wall should be joined and connected with the boiler by means of a 1¼-inch return.

As there will be but little more than 500 square feet of radiating surface, the present boiler should be amply large.

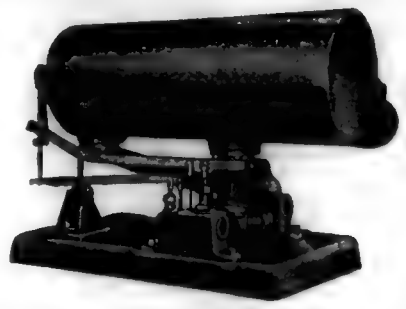
GREENHOUSES AND RESIDENCE.

How many coils of 2-inch pipe will be needed to heat our three carnation houses? The outside temperature in this part of Wisconsin sometimes goes down to 20 degrees below zero. We heat with hot water. The houses are 24x85, 22x85 and 21x85. The north wall is exposed and contains three feet of glass above three feet of wooden wall. The east end is also exposed; three feet of the wall is wood, the rest glass. The west end is protected by a workroom. The south wall adjoins a rose house. These three houses are all connected and are sixteen feet high to the ridge. There are ten benches in the three houses. Will one 2½-inch overhead flow pipe heat four 2-inch returns better than one 3-inch flow would heat eight 2-inch returns?



We also wish to run a flow pipe from the nearest greenhouse to the residence, thirty feet away, using a larger flow pipe for the residence and for one coil under a bench. The residence contains eight rooms, about 12x16 feet, with 9-foot ceilings. The boiler is a tubular one, 5x12 feet, with seventy 3-inch flues, and a grate 3½x5 feet. Will this be large enough? These three houses have been rebuilt. The residence will be about 190 feet from the boiler. The main flow is 6-inch pipe. J. N. C.

It will be well to use two 2½-inch flow pipes in each of the houses, to be located on the plates. However, if it is more convenient to have one 3-inch flow under the ridge of each house, this will be satisfactory. For returns use nine 2-inch pipes in the 24-foot house and eight in each of the others. The north house, which has three feet of exposed glass, should have two additional pipes.

The amount of radiation required for the residence will depend on the amount of glass in the windows, as well as on the construction of the house. If it is well built and no room has more than two windows, with fifteen square feet of opening each, the rooms on the first floor can be heated with 100 square feet of radiation each, with perhaps a little more for the living room, and from fifty to sixty feet should answer for the second floor rooms, unless they are used as living rooms, when a slight increase should be made. If the window openings in any room amount to more than thirty square feet, add one foot of radiating surface for each additional foot of glass.

The boiler should heat the greenhouses and residence without reaching should be on your list of improvements.

Preparations for Next Winter's Heat Will Soon Begin!

"Detroit" RETURN TRAPS

A safe and sure means of keeping steam lines free of condensation is as important to the efficiency of a heating system as water to the growing of a plant.

"Detroit" Traps drain all steam lines of condensation and automatically return it to the boiler. Not a drop is wasted. None of the heat is lost.

There is nothing complicated about the construction of "Detroit" Traps. Every working part is on the outside and interchangeable. Water inlet and outlet are on the same side. Steam and air valves are in the same cast iron body (renewable discs). A shock absorber placed at one end of the base receives the full weight of the water as the tank tilts, relieving the stress and strain on the trunnion and eliminating the noise usually too evident with the ordinary tilting trap.

GERANIUMS DYING.

Four weeks ago we had many severe thunder storms. Two days after a severe storm my geraniums in the beds became spotted, then turned brown around the edges of the leaves and finally dried up. Some whole beds acted in this way; of others only half the bed was affected. I have kept watch of the young leaves as they come, but in a little while they turn and go as the others did, and some of the ends of the branches die. They look as if they had been scorched or blasted. Would the lightning cause this, or is it excessive moisture or a disease? Kindly give a remedy for the trouble and state whether it will ruin them for stock. J. K.

Excessive moisture, particularly when the temperature is high, will frequently cause geraniums to spot and die off in part, as yours have done. I do not think the lightning had any effect on them. No spraying or remedy I could suggest would be likely to be of any service to the plants under such conditions. It would be better not to take cuttings from the worst affected plants, but I have an idea that your stock, when placed under glass, will soon grow out of the trouble. C. W.

The Market.

Trade in general is fair for midsummer, but the greatest percentage of the business is funeral work. America gladioli are in excellent condition, and they, with asters in all colors, are the best sellers. Killarney roses are much improved, but the stems are short. My Maryland and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses are especially good.

Various Notes.

A. C. Strom reports that business has been somewhat dull during August, but July trade was fair. He recently received a shipment of palms, which are selling well. Funeral work keeps him fairly busy.

The Misses Volz are spending their vacation at Indian Neck.

A. Volz is erecting another greenhouse, to be used for chrysanthemums. He is growing some splendid asters. Mrs. Volz finds business good in the Main street store.

George Baker, gardener for A. J. Sloper, has some fine Mme. Roosevelt asters in full bloom. One of his night blooming cereus plants had some fifteen or eighteen blossoms during the week of August 19. His potted mums are good, strong plants, and are being staked for the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Armbrust, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., are visiting here for a short time.

Mrs. E. K. Eggert, on Whiting street, did a fine business during the spring and early summer. She has advertised her place for sale, as it is getting too large for her to manage.

Carl Lorenzen is expected home from Germany immediately. At his store, business has been good for the summer months. Asters are selling best with him.

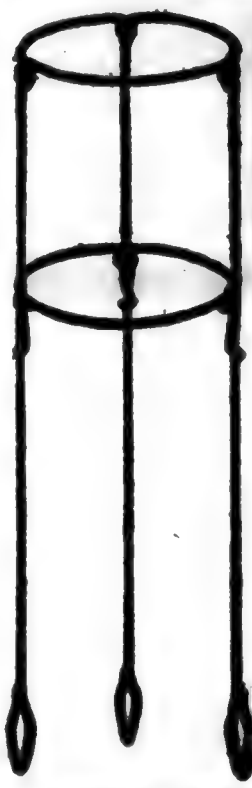
A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.



The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh is having delightful weather and the stay-at-homes seem to have something on those who go on expensive trips and get worse weather. Besides, there is just enough work to make them comfortable, and fine stock to do it with. The old-timers will remember when there was nothing but rubbish in summer, but it is not so now; there are roses as good as in winter, and there are gladioli, such as Niagara, Panama, Glory, Mrs. Francis King and Princeps, that are grand, with Augusta and other more common sorts in abundance. Some fine asters and more that are not so fine, with Beauties, valley and orchids, make it possible to enjoy summer work.

The vacation season is almost over. Employees at the various shops are taking their places and discussing the changes that are necessary for the coming season, but there is not the least doubt that they will follow the usual custom and wait until the fall trade starts before beginning to make their improvements.

Various Notes.

Miss McKinley, of Randolph & McClements, took in the Chicago convention as part of her vacation. Ed. Weaver, of the same store, had business out that way and got there for the closing day of the convention.

The first shipment of wild smilax for this season reached the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. August 24.

An oversupply of rattlesnakes stopped the galax pickers in North Carolina and made a scarcity of green galax for a week.

William Turner, of Wilkinsburg, has just returned from an extended vacation and is trying to get down to business again.

The wholesale men still have enough time to talk politics and you can get any kind of an argument you want, for there are followers of all three parties and all have a stock of dope on their favorite.

Among those who called here on their way home from the S. A. F. convention were J. V. Kinder, Charleroi, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bretz, of Cumberland, Md.

The growers have about finished planting their carnations and the plants generally are of good size, but in some cases are a little softer than would be desired for transplanting, on account of the long continued rain.

F. T. Bestwick, of Washington, D.C., representing the Insecticide and Fungicide Board of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is visiting all dealers in those articles in this district, for the purpose of seeing that all grades are properly marked. Hoo-Hoo.

Bowdoinham, Me.—Hall Bros. have completed a new greenhouse.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW
CAXTON BUILDING
508 South Dearborn Street
CHICAGO

Advertising forms close TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Trenton, N. J.—The Blackmon Floral Co. has completed two new greenhouses on Center street. The houses are 210 feet and seventy-five feet long, respectively.

THE SOIL CARRIER IN USE.

SAVES TIME, LABOR AND MONEY

We call your attention to our Gravity Carriers for conveying soil into and out of greenhouses. You are aware of the great amount of labor necessary for changing the loam in your benches. It requires but a few feet of our Gravity Carriers to reduce this expense.

Carriers are made in eight and four foot sections, which can be instantly joined; the rollers are of the best seamless steel tubing, ball bearing, and are 14 inches in length by 2¼ inches in diameter. Cut shows how they operate.

A run of carrier is set up with one end projecting through a window and a cart containing the loam is placed at this end. The loam is shoveled into the boxes, which are pushed or conveyed by gravity into the house and dumped into the benches. Empty boxes are pushed back to cart over same run of carrier. When the beds within a convenient radius are filled, the carrier is set up at another window and the work continues until all benches are filled. For removing soil the process is, of course, similar.

We shall be pleased to furnish further details relative to construction and durability of the carriers; also, upon receipt of information relative to size of your greenhouses, furnish anestimate of the cost of a system for your requirements.

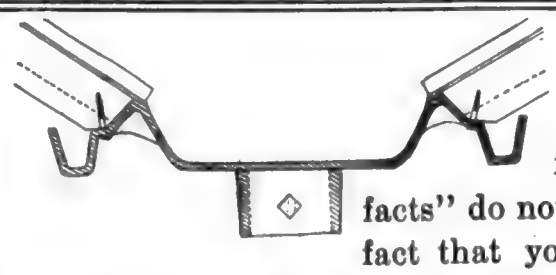
This is the U-Bar —the Bar that makes U-Bar Greenhouses the famous greenhouses they are.



This one we erected in Montreal. See how graceful and attractive it is—how different from the usual run of the "cut-and-dried" kinds you see hitched on so many houses!

U-Bar conservatories are not only attractive, but they are in every way practical. That's saying a lot. It is the U-Bar that makes them so. We are the only U-Bar conservatory and greenhouse builders. The construction is patented. Send for catalogue—it shows a goodly number of examples of each.

JANUARY

is a cold month, but all "cold facts" do not come in January. It is a cold fact that you are obliged to replace your wooden gutter from time to time, which means not only the cost of a new gutter, but, the expense of remodeling your houses. Get a GARLAND GUTTER, which, when you set it up, is there to stay. They do not rot out. Will last a lifetime. Write today for prices and literature to

It is an established fact (which many of our customers know) that cut flowers grown in and around Denver have more substance and better color, consequently last longer and ship better than stock grown in a more humid climate. One mile above sea level insures this at all times.

Some reasons why we can fill your orders to your advantage:

We have the largest amount of glass in this part of the country. It is all up-to-date. Our salesroom is located down town, handy to any express company, which enables us to ship at very short notice if so desired. We do only a strictly wholesale business.

BEGONIA GLOIRE DE LORRAINE.

We have the largest and finest stock of this grand Christmas plant in America.
4-inch pots.....$35 per 100; $325 per 1000
5-inch pots, ready September 15.....$50 per 100
6-inch pots for specimen stock for Christmas.....$9 per dozen

We also have a very large stock of Light Begonia Lorraine (Edwin Lonsdale) sport at the same prices. This variety we consider far superior to the original type, it making a finer shaped plant as well as holding the flowers much better, while the color is a little lighter than that of the original Lorraine.

THE NEW CLEAR SCARLET BEDDING GERANIUM "HELEN MICHELL"

The best commercial novelty for 1913 (name registered with S. A. F. & O. H.). Seedling cross Jean Viaud and Alphonse Ricard. This sterling novelty will be introduced jointly by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and ourselves and the plants will all be grown by us at our place at Norwood, where we will be pleased to have you call. You will find that this Geranium has all the good points claimed for it. "Helen Michell" is semidouble, of the clearest possible shade of scarlet, is early in bloom and produces these continuously during the season. It grows compact medium dwarf, with lustrous green foliage, and throws up gigantic flower heads continuously; we claim it to have the largest flower heads of any of the bedding geraniums. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is a common occurrence that a single 4-inch pot plant shows 4 fully open gigantic flower heads, several half open, and more in bud. We are booking orders that will be filled in rotation from January, 1913.

THE NEW HYDRANGEA HYBRIDS

FINE THINGS FROM FRANCE.

Notes of an American Grower.

Say hydrangea, and ninety-nine of every hundred florists will picture the same thing—Hydrangea Otaksa. With a few it will be a most pleasing picture, because they have been successful in producing satisfactory plants of this grand florists' standby. They have probably been favored by soil or other local conditions, permitting them to grow fine, vigorous plants, with immense trusses of beautiful pink or blue flowers.

To a great many this mental picture will not be so pleasing, and I speak confidently when I say that I believe the great majority of growers and forcers of Hydrangea Otaksa have not been at all satisfied with the results they have obtained. The greatest fault or difficulty they have encountered has been the unsatisfactory coloring of the flowers when the plants have been forced for Easter, and, as this is one of the special occasions for which hydrangeas are largely forced, this shortcoming is a serious one.

Origin of the Hybrids.

To those who have found this trouble, I can unhesitatingly say that the new French hybrids will bring ease of mind on this score. Whether your soil produces pink or blue, the color in the varieties I will recommend stands out strong and clear. The writer has had exceptional opportunities to make comparisons.

monstrosa, Mariesi, Souvenir de Clair and rosea, all good varieties. I am pleased to credit their statements, and have every reason to believe that in the main they are correct. Nature works some curious miracles, and with the pedigree of these hydrangeas given us, it is indeed a series of miracles that has produced the grand new white sorts, beginning with Avalanche and including Mme. Emile Mouillere, Mlle. Agnes Barillet, Mlle. Renée Gaillard and Mlle. de Tremault. Then, again, there are marks on some of the varieties that suggest the infusion of arborescens and paniculata.

But, be this as it may. We do not care much for the pedigree of a work horse if he looks good and is a good actor. In these hydrangeas we have much to please and interest us and great promise of profit.

After years of standstill, it was quite a shock to be suddenly introduced to a score or more of new hydrangeas. In fact, the contemplation of the proposition was disheartening to those who would cheerfully have undertaken to try out one or two new sorts. As a result, these new varieties are practically unknown except to a few who have had the temerity to plunge into deep water.

Some of the Better Varieties.

Two or three growers about New York went pretty heavily into a few varieties that were recommended to them, and their venture proved profitable. The varieties they forced immediately came into great demand throughout the east. While several of these sorts, particularly Mme. Emile Mouillere, Bouquet Rose and General de Vibraye, are, undoubtedly, tip-top and deserving of all the praise they have received, I am confident there are at least a dozen other sorts equally meritorious and in some respects superior to them.

Again, what might strike my fancy in a variety might not appear in so fair a light to another. For this reason I am sure that time will show that no mistake was made when the introducers gave us about twenty-five new varieties at one time. It does not cost one much to try them all and thus become enabled to make one's own selection. They are superior to Otaksa and all the older white varieties in many respects, particularly in being more easily forced, having better color and in many cases larger flowers.

I have spoken of them altogether as to their adaptability to forcing. They have, as far as I know, not been tested for hardiness in comparison with Otaksa. Such trials are now under way, and, if they prove their value for outdoor bedding, they will indeed be a revolution.

Among the varieties that have come to our notice we would particularly mention:

Avalanche.

This was the first big surprise. The old white variety, Thomas Hogg, and the newer Jeanne d'Arc, had been of such comparatively mediocre value that but few white hydrangeas were forced, but in Avalanche we find almost every desirable characteristic; a free, vigorous grower, easily forced, producing great trusses of white flowers in profusion. In some respects it is coarser or less refined than some of the newer white sorts, but I doubt if any other white variety known at this time can surpass this in standing abuse and the frequent slipshod handling to which hydrangeas are subjected.

Bouquet Rose.

One of the varieties that have had one or two years' try-out in the New York market. A free grower and bloomer. The average truss is not so large as that of Otaksa, but, being much more free in flowering, it makes a handsome, marketable plant in much smaller size. I am satisfied from my obervations that if the center bud is pinched out on this variety it will produce flowers from branches of the flowering stem. The color is a bright pink. I am impelled to repeat here that the matter of color is one of the most important features recommending these new sorts. Please note I said the color is bright pink. If your soil produces blue instead of pink, the color will be a strong, bright blue.

Dentelle.

The flowers of this remarkable variety are deeply serrated or fringed. The trusses are large, creamy white, passing to blush rose as the flower ages. Our forcing trials of this variety have not proven it satisfactory for that purpose. The color was poor when forced and the plant rather squatty. Plants allowed to come along naturally, however, have made pretty summer specimens, and we feel that with proper treatment it may become a desirable sort for other reasons than its distinctiveness in being so deeply fringed.

Hydrangea Mlle. de Tremault.

Fraicheur.

Another sort which did not impress us as desirable for forcing because of uncertain color. It is, however, of robust habit and one of the free flowering sorts. From noting it this summer we believe it may become a desirable sort for outdoor work. In color it is white suffused with rose.

General de Vibraye.

Another variety that has been successfully forced for the New York market. It seems in every way the equal of Bouquet Rose, possessing the same general characteristics. The same description will fit them both, although the writer is not sure that side branches of it will throw flowers, as in the case of Bouquet Rose.

La Lorraine.

This is truly a grand acquisition. It is much of the type of Otaksa, but in every way more refined. The foliage is a dark green, prettily serrated. The growth is free and vigorous; trusses and florets large and graceful; color pale rose, changing to pink; much brighter than Otaksa, though not as bright as Bouquet Rose and General de Vibraye. Forces perfectly, but is rather late. Entirely distinct and meritorious.

Mme. A. Riverain.

This variety also seems to possess all the excellent characteristics of Bouquet Rose, but, according to our observations, bears larger trusses and is of a brighter color.

Mme. Emile Mouillere.

This has sprung into popularity wherever tried, and is today considered by many the best white variety. It was awarded a silver medal at the National Flower Show in Boston. In various notes of the International Horticultural Exhibition, held in London recently, we find this variety mentioned time and time again. It is an excellent, free flowering, vigorous grower; forces easily and early. Bears immense trusses with slightly fringed florets.

Mme. Maurice Hamar.

Unusually free in growth and blooming. Color a deep rose of a pleasing shade. This was one of the most admired sorts in our forcing trials last spring. Our plants were in soil that produced blue flowers, and were a mass of deep blue trusses. I believe it is destined to become one of the most popular.

Mme. Raymond.

A real novelty. The ivory white flowers are of good substance and produced in trusses almost perfectly hemispherical, the individual florets all lying flatly on the surface to give the whole truss this symmetrical appearance. It is not early, but forces nicely, and was considered the best white by several competent judges. The National Association of Gardeners awarded this variety a certificate at its Philadelphia meeting.

Mlle. Agnes Barillet.

This was my favorite white variety last year, and it still stands alone in many respects, to such an extent that

I anticipate that it will continue as one of the best white sorts. It is decidedly distinct, being of dwarf, compact growth. It is early and free flowering, pure glossy white in color and of pretty, symmetrical form. Wherever a neat, chaste, compact plant of moderate size is wanted, this sort will fill the bill.

Mlle. Renée Gaillard.

It will be pretty hard to describe three or four different white varieties when all are strong growers, free bloomers and in every way desirable. I will say, however, that there is room for each of them. Their distinctiveness can only be realized by trial. Mlle. Renée Gaillard is a sturdy, upright grower. The trusses are larger, but the florets are smaller than on Mme. E. Mouillere and Mlle. de Tremault, and the individual flowers are more deeply serrated, making an entirely distinct variety. Easily forced and in every way desirable, if not indispensable.

Mlle. de Tremault.

This differs materially from Mme. E. Mouillere in having a more vigorous and upright growth, larger, dark green, deeply serrated foliage, and in the further fact that while almost identical with Mouillere on opening, the color passes to a delicate rose color as the flower ages. A magnificent sort in every way.

Mousseline.

The flower heads are large and graceful, free in every way. A beautiful mauve rose with creamy center. One of the best, quite distinct in type from such sorts as Bouquet Rose and Mme. A. Riverain.

Mont Rose.

Flowers much like Mousseline, but I believe of brighter color and more freely produced. This promises to become one of the most popular.

Ornement.

Pretty mauve pink flowers, freely produced. In our forcing trials we were not satisfied with the color, but reports from other sources and our observations this summer lead us to believe there is great merit in this sort.

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chantard.

Of the general type of Bouquet Rose, the writer believes it will prove the best of its class. The habit of growth, color and free flowering propensity are all that can be asked. Perhaps the trusses are smaller than on some of the other sorts, but they are so freely produced as to make amends for any shortcomings on that score. Plants forced for Easter and cut back were in full bloom August 1 from side branches; something fine.

Senateur Henri David.

What I said about La Lorraine will fit excellently to this magnificent variety, except that while La Lorraine is one of the latest, this is one of the earliest; a vast and pleasing improvement on Otaksa.

The Conclusion.

Dozens of other sorts have come to our notice, and some are truly wonderful, but we have not as yet had the opportunity to test them under proper conditions.

Hydrangea Mme. Maurice Hamar.

As to cultivation and treatment, these varieties have all done well with the same handling that produces good Otaksa. There may be some tricks to learn to get still better results, but until then we are pleased with what we have seen.

In concluding, I will say that my impression of what these notes should have been is that the whole subject should be condensed into the following short paragraph:

If any florist has not as yet tried the new French hydrangeas, he should purchase a complete set and try them out for himself. The investment of time and money will be small and the pleasure derived will alone far more than repay the outlay.

CARNATIONS AT JOLIET.

It always is interesting to note what the growers plant, and the proportions in which they grow their several varieties. Of late years the carnation specialists have been cutting down their lists and planting largely of Enchantress and White Enchantress. Here is the planting list for the season of 1912-13, of the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill.:

White Wonder	12,000
White Enchantress	30,000
White Perfection	1,000
Baby Pink	1,000
Enchantress	18,500
Pink Delight	4,000
Gloriosa	3,000
Princess Charming	1,000
Washington	10,000
Rosette	250
The Herald	6,000
Aviator	4,000
Victory	8,000
Scarlet Glow	2,500
Seedlings	16,800
Total	118,050

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Ashtabula, O.—The Buffalo Cut Flower Co., Buffalo, N. Y., has brought an action against Mrs. S. A. Carpenter, the Ashtabula People's Building & Loan Co., J. M. Gasser, Farmers' National Bank, the W. H. Elverson Pottery Co., and the Ashtabula Printing Co., asking for an order of sale of a lot in Ashtabula on which the plaintiff claims to hold a lien. The plaintiff alleges that it secured a judgment against Mrs. Carpenter February 4, 1911, in the justice court of C. J. Starkey for $36.65. That this judgment is wholly unsatisfied. The other defendants claim some interest in this property.

COKE ASHES FOR CONCRETE.

Will you please inform us whether we can use coke ashes to make cement with? If so, is it necessary to sift the ashes? In what proportion should they be used? J. A. F. & S.

Coke ashes can be used with cement for making concrete, but the proportion will depend upon the purpose for which it is to be used. Ordinarily one part of cement can be used with four parts of ashes and two parts of sharp sand or gravel, for substructures, but for the surface of walks use one of each. The ashes should be sifted if there are any coarse lumps among them.

Dinner Table Centerpieces Make Steady Customers.

CENTERPIECES.

The social season is again with us and one of the items of steady business will be furnishing centerpieces for dinner tables. This is a line of work which can be made extremely profitable, for once a customer uses flowers for the table, that table never again seems complete without them. It will pay any retail florist to encourage his customers to use his centerpieces, even at some slight expense for getting them started; get one hostess in a social set to start the fashion and you soon will have all the members of that coterie following suit.

The accompanying illustration shows a centerpiece of Mrs. Jardine roses arranged by John Mangel, Chicago, for a dinner given to General Grant in the French room of the Blackstone hotel. This was an oval table with twenty-five covers. Three similar centerpieces were used, the one at the center of the table somewhat larger than the two companion bunches toward the ends.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Every little while someone sends The Review a funeral notice that says "Please omit flowers," or a newspaper clipping containing an argument for economy in funerals, including the elimination of flowers. The subscriber always thinks the florists are about to be put out of business. Nothing to it at all. The increase in the wealth of the nation is making flower buyers much faster than any sporadic influence can unmake them.

There is one little point in this matter of funeral flowers that is interesting and illuminating. Note the customer whose family circle is broken for the first time; observe, after that, how much more frequently that customer sends flowers to funerals. It isn't the desire to repay; it's the expression of the way the flowers touched his own heart in his sorrow.

Worcester, Mass.—Francis A. Kinnicutt, of 50 Elm street, recently obtained a permit for several improvements, including the erection of a greenhouse and a garden shelter and the enlargement of his residence.

A NEW PEST.

I should like to know whether any other florists are bothered with the rose leaf roller? At least that is what I think it is, although this caterpillar folds itself up in the foliage of any plant it may be on, having been noticed on carnations, mums, begonias, geraniums and pelargoniums; in fact, I have not found any plant that is immune.

Although I have spent a lifetime at this business, I have never seen anything like it before. I find that the eggs are laid by a small brown butterfly, and seem to hatch about every six weeks. They started in March in the greenhouses and, being something new, they got a good start before I or my foreman discovered what a pest it really was.

The caterpillar when fully grown turns into a small cocoon, which remains curled up under the leaf and in a short time develops into one of the little brown butterflies, which in turn must lay hundreds of eggs, from the way the pest spreads. In a week or so a small caterpillar, almost too small to be seen with the naked eye, develops, spun in a small web under the leaf. As the caterpillar develops he curls into a small cone and begins feeding on the young foliage, stripping the plants.

I have tried Slug Shot and Paris green. While the latter will kill the pest, unless every leaf is kept covered with the poison, so that every caterpillar is killed, you cannot get rid of them, as one that escapes will develop into the butterfly and before long you have them all over the house again. We have tried hand-picking in one house every day for a month, but they keep coming, and I must say that of all the insects ever seen in a greenhouse this is the worst.

I noticed, a few days ago, an article in one of our local papers from a correspondent in an adjoining county, stating that a new insect had been discovered there, which, according to his description, is the above described caterpillar, and which he says is destroying the foliage on trees, shrubs, vegetable and flowering plants. I should like to hear through The Review from any one in the trade who has had experience with similar insects and also to advise those who may discover any of the above described insects to destroy them before they get any foothold.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Amaryllis.

The amaryllis plants still will have dark green foliage and it is unwise to attempt to rest them now. I have seen men who were supposed to be good growers throw their plants under the benches after flowering, allowing them to remain there until they wanted to start them the following season, the prey of sowbugs and other vermin. And then they wondered why the plants flowered so sparsely and feebly! As a matter of fact, amaryllises succeed best when they still have green foliage adhering to them when shaken out and started up. They are too often half ruined by overresting. They still will require a good water supply and stand the fullest sunshine from now on. It should also be remembered that unflowered seedlings should never be rested at all until after they have bloomed. As between planting out amaryllis seedlings in the open and growing on in pots, I find I get larger bulbs and heavier foliage outdoors, but the plants sustain so much check when lifted that the pot-grown stock beats them out. Where, however, climatic conditions are sufficiently mild to permit the bulbs staying in the open over winter, that method of culture is the simplest and best.

Hydrangeas.

The pot-grown hydrangea plants are those which we must depend upon for Easter, 1913, coming, as it does, so much earlier than usual. Their growth will now be practically completed, but in order to assist in ripening the wood the water supply should be gradually reduced, not to the extent of causing the foliage to wilt, but a good deal less water can now be given and the leaves still kept plump. Hydrangeas are not such great favorites at Easter as are azaleas, rambler roses, genistas and spiræas, but a fair number can be sold and, as forcing must start early to have them in bloom for March 23, plants must be prepared for it now.

While there is no immediate rush about potting up the field stock, so long as damaging frosts keep away, plants dug and potted now will get better established than those left until the foliage is falling. They should be lifted with some ball and, after potting, should not require shade. Keep outdoors in an open, sunny spot, water well and spray freely and they will soon recover from the check of lifting.

Cyclamens.

The first half of September is the best time to make a liberal sowing of cyclamen seeds. If given proper treatment, plants started now will prove one of the best investments for the Christmas trade of 1913. It is most important to purchase the best seed. Do not take mixtures; they will probably contain some good colors, but others will be included which no one will want. At the holidays the red shades are always in keen demand and, while whites and pinks do not then move so quickly, they are salable if grown cool until Easter. Do not omit the salmon pinks; they do not carry as large flowers as some other varieties, but the color is decidedly taking.

Having secured good seed, properly prepare the soil for its reception. A light, porous loam and leaf-mold in equal parts, with some fine sand added, will be found suitable. Either pans or flats may be used for the seed, but be sure the drainage is good. Make the surface fine and even and scatter the seeds evenly, just barely covering them with soil or fine sand. After watering, cover with paper and place in a warm, moist house, well up to the light. If the seed was good and water carefully given, nearly all the seeds should germinate. These seedlings will make excellent stock in 6-inch pots by the end of next year.

The cyclamen plants intended for early winter blooming will already be throwing some flowers. If these are still in a coldframe, they should be moved into a greenhouse with a minimum temperature of 50 degrees. Do not coddle them, but air freely. They still will require some shade on clear, warm days, but it need not be heavy. It will be possible to have the earliest plants in fairly good flower as early as Thanksgiving, if given a house with some shelves well up to the glass. In such positions they require more care in watering and will also be benefited by a spraying in the early afternoon on warm days. Cyclamen should always be grown as near the glass as possible, for if the least drawn they lose much of their beauty.

ORCHIDS

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Cattleya Labiata.

This well known and highly esteemed orchid now has its growths well made up; in fact, buds are discernible in some of the more prominent sheaths, and these should give a few flowers as early as the latter part of September or first part of October.

Cattleya flowers are at the present time as scarce as at any time in the year, and if any considerable order for them were given, it would be hard to fill it.

The earliest labiatas should be given a little more warmth, not anything in the way of forcing, but a light place where they will be shielded from too bright sunshine, a trifle warmer than they have been growing. A few days' difference in securing the first flowers may mean quite a little added to the cash account. A good supply of water should still be given C. labiata, and on clear, warm days a syringing will be beneficial. Be sure, however, that the foliage is dry before nightfall. This cattleya is so productive and such a great favorite that it is to be regretted that its price steadily advances, and unless fresh sources of supply are discovered it will, in a few years, be the highest priced of all the commercial cattleyas. Plants arriving now are mostly small. The large masses of a few years ago are unprocurable.

The Cattleya House.

While nearly all cattleyas will still require a good water supply, the arrival of cooler nights, accompanied with heavy dews, makes it necessary to abstain to some extent from the damping down, which could be done quite late during July and the first half of August. It is always safer to allow plants of this genus to get quite dry between waterings. Have you ever noticed—but of course you have, if you are an interested orchid grower—how healthy a plant will look when it has been overlooked for several days at a time, when you were soaking your other plants around it? If you have not, try the experiment and it will teach you that it is easy to overwater orchids, even in the summer months.

While we will still have considerable hot weather, it is a good plan to rub off some of the shading from the glass. This is, of course, unnecessary where movable blinds or lath shades are used. Heavy shade makes green, soft plants. More light means somewhat paler foliage, but increased floriferousness.

When the bulbs are well made up and buds ready to show in the sheaths, if you are one of those practicing the feeding of orchids, it is better to discontinue it, or it may cause the buds to rot in the sheaths. Continue, however, to feed in weak doses until the bulbs are well made out. Do not close the ventilators at night if the nights get rather cool. Never mind if the temperature drops to 55 degrees; it will not hurt the plants half so much as shutting up the house and creating a stuffy atmosphere. Fire heat for cattleyas is not needed yet a while. Always keep the ventilators open, as these orchids want air, and the surest way to ruin them and make them send out quantities of roots into the air, rather than into the pots, is to keep them too close and stuffy.

Mexican Lælias.

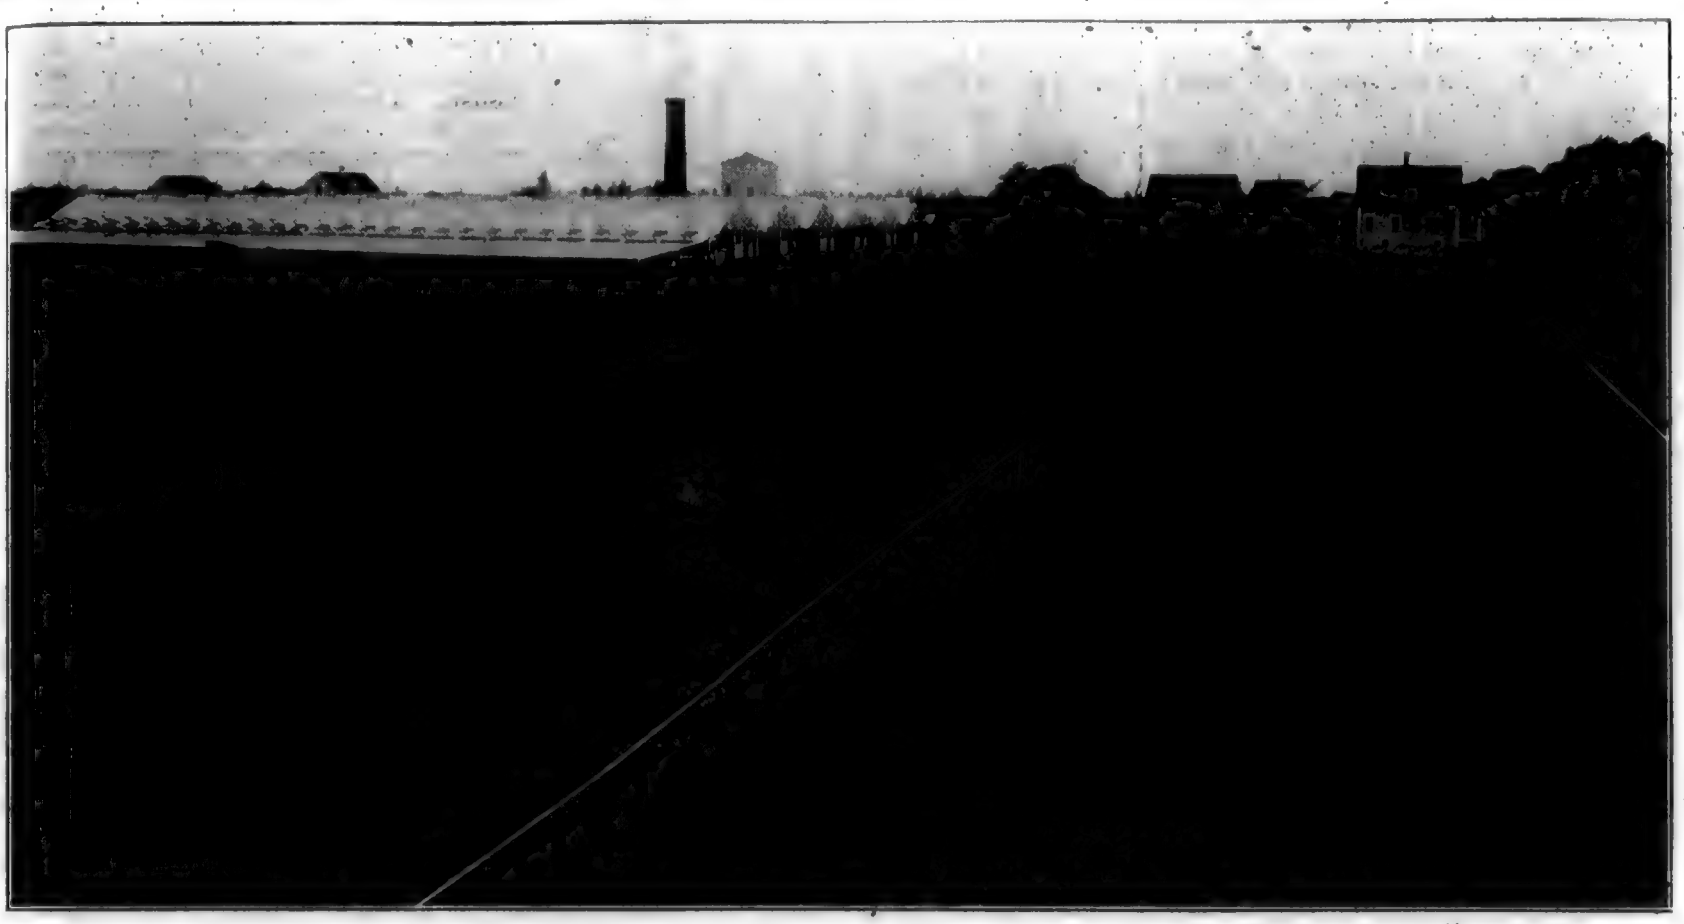
Such varieties as anceps, autumnalis, Gouldeana and some others which are, or should be, in a light, airy house, will be pushing their spikes freely. These are better grown cooler than the cattleyas until about the middle of September, after which give them a position at the cool end of the cattleya house. The warmer and more heavily shaded these Mexican orchids are grown, the better they grow and the poorer they flower. None of them should have much shade, even in midsummer, and a house with top ventilators wide open is just what they enjoy. Growths will not be by any means made up yet and good water supplies, with spraying overhead on the mornings of clear, warm days, should be given.

THE ASTER BEETLE.

Is there anything better than Paris green to spray asters with to keep down the blister beetle? The sepals of my plants have turned brown with its use. I try to avoid spraying when the sun shines, but that is hard to do, as the bugs come in large numbers during the day and get in a lot of work before sunset. Could Paris green be mixed with water strong enough to kill the bugs and not hurt the plants?

O. A. K.

Paris green is the best remedy for the black aster beetle which annually destroys an immense number of flowers over a wide stretch of territory. The spray is best applied on a cloudy day, or in the evening of a bright day. You do not state how strong a spray you used. One ounce to fifteen gallons of water will poison the beetles and not injure the flowers in the least. Never apply any stronger than one pound to 200 gallons of water or you are liable to mark the flowers. A little lime added to the water reduces the likelihood of burning. Use a fine, misty spray when applying the poison.



Arsenate of lead is less liable to damage the flowers, but it whitens the foliage so much as to render the flowers unsalable, and this will not wash off as does the Paris green. C. W.

SPIRÆA JAPONICA.

We have bought at a low price some spiræas which were forced last Easter. Will it pay us to force them again this winter, or would it pay better to buy new? We have them plunged in a deep coldframe, covered with a slat screen, and are giving them a little water once or twice a week. If it would pay us better to buy new, we can easily use these plants outdoors. G. V. W.

It will not pay to attempt to force any of these spiræas a second season. You would get few flowers from them. Plant them out on a rich piece of ground and let them stay there a couple of years, after which they will force splendidly and the clumps will be so large that it may be necessary to divide some into two and three pieces before potting. The extremely low price at which imported spiræas can be purchased makes it a pure waste of time and energy to attempt to carry any stock over and force it. C. W.

LILY OF THE VALLEY

UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

I had an order for a wedding bouquet of valley and white roses for the middle of July. In middle Georgia we expect hot weather in July, and always get it, too, but as I had such success with the valley I will describe my method.

The pips were ordered from a wholesale seed house in Philadelphia and reached me July 4. Although they had been carefully packed in damp moss, growth had started and several showed the bud, which made me fear that the whole batch would be spoiled by the heat, causing the flowers to open before the stem had grown long enough. I planted them at once, in pots of coarse sand, and set each pot in a saucer of water. Each pot was covered with a paper bag to keep the light from the pips. Twice a day the bags were removed and the pips given a thorough spraying. But the weather was so hot that after the fourth day I kept them in an ice-box through the day, putting them out in the open after the sun had set and putting them back in the ice-box before breakfast. They grew fast. The bells were of good size, with stems from six to eight inches long, and were ready for the wedding in fourteen days.

Cost of pips and express charges	$2.35
Ice, eight days	.65
Total	$3.00

As a result, I had nine dozen fine valley. I also had the satisfaction of knowing it could be grown in spite of the great heat and will be ready for future orders. M. B.

A TYPICAL ILLINOIS PLANT.

Overwork in a Chicago office caused E. T. Wanzer, whose home was at Wheaton, Ill., to buy a tract of seventeen acres just outside that town, for the purpose of starting in the greenhouse business. He has now been at it for a matter of ten years, and has been eminently successful. R. Scheffler was engaged as grower, and Mr. Scheffler's abilities in this line, coupled with Mr. Wanzer's business experience and executive qualities, have resulted in building up the establishment shown in the accompanying illustration. There are six houses, each 23x200, with a lean-to on the south side, 24x200, and another smaller one on the north side, broken by the boiler shed, packing room and office, which stand at the center of the range at that side.

The photograph from which the illustration was prepared was made early in August. In the foreground the field of carnations is shown, for carnations are the principal crop grown in the establishment. The picture shows three lines of the Skinner system of irrigation, which has been found an important adjunct. The pipes are spaced about forty feet apart, the distance being regulated by the water pressure. The spacings are such that with the pressure available each pipe throws to the center between the lines, thus bringing every plant in the field within reach of water. The pipes are 400 feet long, and are fed from one end. The system works so perfectly that the pressure is as good at the far end as at the near end. The system is operated by a six horse-power gasoline engine, and a new Challenge pump recently installed. The apparatus was manufactured by the Challenge Co., Batavia, Ill., and the entire equipment gives splendid satisfaction.

Just beyond the field of carnations is a big bed of stevias. The handling of this crop shows especially well the system by which Mr. Wanzer has made his establishment so highly profitable. Every inch of greenhouse space is kept busy in the most productive way. The stevia is planted out in the field, and makes fine growth. With autumn approaching, the plants are transferred to boxes of convenient size for handling, about five plants to the box. Whatever space is available in the lean-to houses, or in the greenhouses themselves, is used for these boxes of stevias. The balance of the boxes are protected from frost in a cheap structure roofed with hotbed sash. Here they remain until the chrysanthemums are cut. Then, as fast as space becomes available, the boxes of stevias are

It will not pay to attempt to force any of these spiræas a second season. You would get few flowers from them. Plant them out on a rich piece of ground and let them stay there a couple of years, after which they will force splendidly and the clumps will be so large that it may be necessary to divide some into two and three pieces before potting. The extremely low price at which imported spiræas can be purchased makes it a pure waste of time and energy to attempt to carry any stock over and force it. C. W.

UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

I had an order for a wedding bouquet of valley and white roses for the middle of July. In middle Georgia we expect hot weather in July, and always get it, too, but as I had such success with the valley I will describe my method.

The pips were ordered from a wholesale seed house in Philadelphia and reached me July 4. Although they had been carefully packed in damp moss, growth had started and several showed the bud, which made me fear that the whole batch would be spoiled by the heat, causing the flowers to open before the stem had grown long enough. I planted them at once, in pots of coarse sand, and set each pot in a saucer of water. Each pot was covered with a paper bag to keep the light from the pips. Twice a day the bags were removed and the pips given a thorough spraying. But the weather was so hot that after the fourth day I kept them in an ice-box through the day, putting them out in the open after the sun had set and putting them back in the ice-box before breakfast. They grew fast. The bells were of good size, with stems from six to eight inches long, and were ready for the wedding in fourteen days.

Cost of pips and express charges	$2.35
Ice, eight days	.65
Total	$3.00

A TYPICAL ILLINOIS PLANT.

Overwork in a Chicago office caused E. T. Wanzer, whose home was at Wheaton, Ill., to buy a tract of seventeen acres just outside that town, for the purpose of starting in the greenhouse business. He has now been at it for a matter of ten years, and has been eminently successful. R. Scheffler was engaged as grower, and Mr. Scheffler's abilities in this line, coupled with Mr. Wanzer's business experience and executive qualities, have resulted in building up the establishment shown in the accompanying illustration. There are six houses, each 23x200, with a lean-to on the south side, 24x200, and another smaller one on the north side, broken by the boiler shed, packing room and office, which stand at the center of the range at that side.

The photograph from which the illustration was prepared was made early in August. In the foreground the field of carnations is shown, for carnations are the principal crop grown in the establishment. The picture shows three lines of the Skinner system of irrigation, which has been found an important adjunct. The pipes are spaced about forty feet apart, the distance being regulated by the water pressure. The spacings are such that with the pressure available each pipe throws to the center between the lines, thus bringing every plant in the field within reach of water. The pipes are 400 feet long, and are fed from one end. The system works so perfectly that the pressure is as good at the far end as at the near end. The system is operated by a six horse-power gasoline engine, and a new Challenge pump recently installed. The apparatus was manufactured by the Challenge Co., Batavia, Ill., and the entire equipment gives splendid satisfaction.

Just beyond the field of carnations is a big bed of stevias. The handling of this crop shows especially well the system by which Mr. Wanzer has made his establishment so highly profitable. Every inch of greenhouse space is kept busy in the most productive way. The stevia is planted out in the field, and makes fine growth. With autumn approaching, the plants are transferred to boxes of convenient size for handling, about five plants to the box. Whatever space is available in the lean-to houses, or in the greenhouses themselves, is used for these boxes of stevias. The balance of the boxes are protected from frost in a cheap structure roofed with hotbed sash. Here they remain until the chrysanthemums are cut. Then, as fast as space becomes available, the boxes of stevias are transferred to the greenhouses, where they furnish a fine late crop. When the stevia is out of the way, the space is in demand for potting up carnation cuttings, so that every inch under glass is kept constantly at work.

The residence at the right in the picture is occupied by Foreman Scheffler. The building next to it is the boarding house for the employees. Adjoining these is a field of asters, which has this season been giving a tremendous daily cut. North of the greenhouses is a large field of gladioli. These latter have in previous seasons been highly profitable, but this season have not done so well, because the price of gladioli in the Chicago market this year has not averaged much, if anything, more than half what it has in preceding seasons. Mr. Wanzer has space in his houses for about 33,000 carnation plants. This year the planting was completed July 30.

DUTCH BULBS.

Louis Berger talked entertainingly of his trip abroad, which was taken expressly for the purpose of seeing his firm's bulb farms at Sassenheim, Holland. Mr. Berger, who was seen at his office, in Philadelphia, is American representative of Van Waveren & Kruijff. He sailed from New York July 16, going direct to Sassenheim, where he arrived July 25. The following day was devoted to going over his firm's farms. Their number and extent are known to few Americans. One farm of fifty acres is devoted entirely to spiræas, one of the specialties of Van Waveren & Kruijff. The season has been unusually trying for spiræas. Many of the plants have been completely burned, a fact that will be felt in this market during the coming season. The hyacinths, except Grand Maitre, and the tulips were in fine condition, but Narcissi Golden Spur and Von Sion are small. Mr. Berger arrived in time to see the bulbs being lifted, cleaned and packed. The long rows of men working steadily down the fields, lifting the bulbs, was an interesting sight. So, too, was the care and system employed in filling and packing the export orders.

One large farm is devoted to dahlias. A great dahlia hybridizer employed by Van Waveren & Kruijff has a place sixty miles from Sassenheim. This place, purchased for and presented to him by the firm, is named Burbanka, by permission of Luther Burbank. Here, it is said, originated the first peony-flowered dahlia sent out from Holland, after years of patient crossing between the cactus and single varieties. Many more striking novelties of this type are expected.

Speaking of bulb propagation, Mr. Berger said that while the method of increasing the tulips and narcissi from offsets is generally known here, that of increasing hyacinths is less familiar to Americans. This is done by cutting out the base of the hyacinth bulbs, from where spring the roots, and placing the bulb with the cut side up in a propagating house at a temperature of 80 or 85 degrees. From this cut, which on a good-sized, well-ripened bulb will be as large as a silver dollar, will spring many tiny hyacinths, which when grown on, will make the bulbs of the future.

Louis Berger.

Mr. Berger said that manure is the chief expense outside of labor in bulb growing. Cow manure from Finland is largely used. When a bulb field is exhausted, six inches of top soil—perhaps it would be better to say sand—are lifted. Then thirty inches of manure are spread and the six inches of top soil put back on top. After lying a while the field is dug over before being planted with bulbs. Mr. Berger said that while the American bulb business is growing steadily, it is not yet equal to that of England or Germany.

POINSETTIAS.

The last batch of poinsettia cuttings should now be rooted and potted off. The earlier plants should go into pans at once, if they are not already in them. Do not on any account permit them to become potbound and hard before shifting. As a rule 6-inch and 8-inch pans containing three to five plants are most in demand, but there will be some calls for 10-inch or even 12-inch pans. Then, again, many of the stores like single plants in 6-inch pots for window decoration.

Drain the pots or pans well and use a good, fibrous loam as compost, to which has been added one-fourth well decayed manure and some sand. Do not use any leaf-mold unless your soil is heavy. Avoid chemicals. Work in some Cyperus alternifolius, nephrolepis, cyrtomiums, Asparagus Sprengeri, pteris or other green plants. These hide any nakedness in the stems and give the plants a more finished appearance. The plants do not need a warm house yet, but it is better if the temperature be not allowed to run below 50 degrees at night.

PROPAGATION.

Frosts have already occurred in some sections and if a sufficient stock of the more tender plants has not been placed in the propagating bench, it cannot be done too soon. It pays to clear out thoroughly, cleanse and refill the cutting benches each season. The danger of fungoid growths is then reduced to a minimum. If this cannot be done, soak the sand well with boiling water to kill weeds, vermin and fungi. Tender subjects, such as coleus and alternantheras, should already be in, but there are few plants more easily rooted and they can still be propagated, as can acalyphas, crotons and other colored-leaved tropical plants. These latter like a bench where they will get the benefit of a genial bottom heat. Heliotropes, salvias and other useful flowering bedding plants should not be overlooked. It is much more satisfactory to take cuttings than lift old plants. Lobelias, ageratums and petunias should be propagated now, and of course geraniums can hardly be overdone. Plants from which an early lot of cuttings were taken should now yield a good extra crop.

WHITE FLY OUTDOORS.

Is there any remedy for white flies outdoors? I notice there are some near my pansy beds and am afraid they will attack them. C. A. P.

White fly outdoors is not easy to control. Spray the affected plants freely with soap and water and you will greatly reduce their numbers. Any of the ordinary hard soaps, like Ivory, will answer well. Syringing freely with cold water is also much disliked by the white fly. C. W.

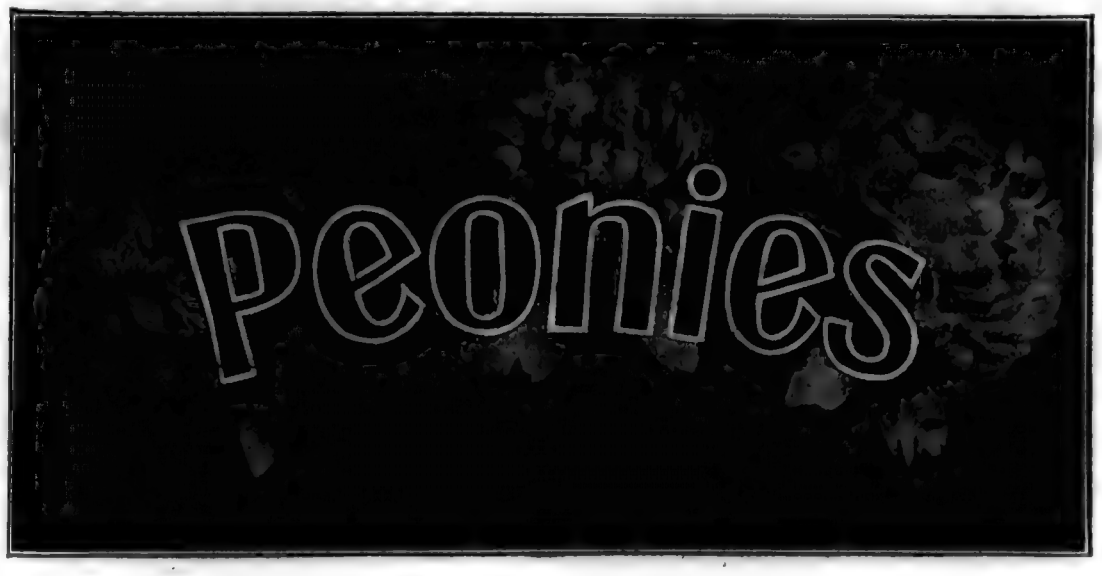
A NEW ST. LOUIS FIRM.

The Windler Co., St. Louis, will be launched on the business sea September 16, quarters having been secured at 1310 Pine street, in the vicinity of the older St. Louis houses dealing in florists' supplies and wholesale cut flowers.

The members of the new company are Albert J. Windler, president; Frank A. Windler, vice-president and treasurer, and A. W. Gumz, secretary. The Windlers are brothers of Robert J. Windler and George B. Windler, well known St. Louis florists. Albert J. Windler, the president, has never been connected with the florists' business, having been manager of a large manufacturing business. Frank A. Windler, the vice-president and treasurer, was until recently vice-president of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. A. W. Gumz, the secretary, has been with Geo. H. Angermueller for the last five years. The last two are well known to all in the trade in the St. Louis district and their long experience should be a great help to them in their new venture. They say they have promises of the stock of a number of good consignors and that their specialty will be roses. They will handle a full line of florists' supplies.



This will make five wholesale houses within a few doors of each other and will go some way toward making the St. Louis market one of prime importance in the eyes of the trade in the southwest. J. J. B.

LILIES FOR COOL HOUSE.

I want to grow a few lilies for Easter, if possible, and cannot give them anything higher than a carnation temperature. What bulbs shall I get? I think Formosa is what I want.

A. D. S.

Giganteum lilies, which are the most popular for Easter, need a higher temperature than a carnation house affords. Multiflorum has smaller blooms than giganteum, but flowers earlier and does well in a somewhat lower temperature. This would really be the best for you to grow as a pot plant. Harrisii, where it does well, as was the case last season with some growers, would come along in good season for you. It would not be wise to depend too much on Formosa. This is good for cutting, but is too irregular in flowering and too varied in height to make a desirable pot plant. Some may be eighteen inches high, but many four to six feet. Again, some spikes will carry only one or two flowers, while others may have eight to twelve. Try multiflorum and Harrisii. C. W.

PLANTING TIME.

The popular peonies seem to be more in demand than ever. It is true there is a surfeit of varieties with undesirable colors, but when it comes to clear, decided shades, such as pure white, pink and rose, there is no great surplus. Such varieties as Festiva Maxima, Felix Crousse, Mme. de Verneville, Duchesse de Nemours, Avalanche, Marguerite Gerard, Venus, Baroness Schroeder, Floral Treasure, Mme. Crousse, M. Dupont, Couronne d'Or, Mme. Calot and Queen Victoria are such as no florist need be afraid to plant and stock up on. The above are all moderate priced sorts. There are newer, scarcer and more expensive ones, including some gems, but the older ones are still well in the running.

September to November may be given as the planting season, but in the more northerly states September is the month par excellence for making new plantings. If put in now the peonies get nicely established before winter and will flower quite nicely the first year after planting. Old clumps, which are going blind, should be divided. I have seen clumps flower splendidly without dividing for fifteen to twenty years; then, again, they sometimes deteriorate in five to seven years. The more flowering stems are cut away, the greater will be the decline in the plants. If long stems, reaching practically to the ground, are taken, the plants will be severely hurt. Growers should be careful to leave at least two sets of leaves on each stem. If this is not done the plants will flower disappointingly the next year.

It need hardly be said that to grow good peonies, or, for that matter, any other herbaceous perennial, the soil should be deeply spaded or plowed and liberally manured. Well decayed cow or horse manure is the best, but, failing this, fine bone and a commercial fertilizer rich in potash can be used advantageously. While peonies will grow well in either heavy or light loams, they do surprisingly well in sandy, light soil if well fed. When planted out in nursery rows, where they are to be kept for several years, the rows should be three and one-half to four feet apart and the plants be placed three feet apart in the rows. This will be none too much space to allow them, but it is sufficient to permit frequent cultivation early in the season.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Another week of enormous receipts of asters and gladioli finished the dullest August the New York wholesale cut flower market has ever known. The weather, the small local demand, and the large daily shipments, combined to make profit to any branch of the cut flower trade impossible. There is no sign yet of decreased shipments. The closing of the summer resorts this week and the opening of the schools September 9 may help some, and the street merchants seem to have been given a new lease of life, and were quite numerous August 31.

The shipments of new roses continue to increase; 50,000 a day is not an uncommon arrival in the wholesale section, at one distributing point. Calculate the quantity with fifty-seven merchants in the commission field! Most of the roses are small, short-stemmed and have to be sold at any figure the buyer offers. Even Beauties are abundant and seldom reach top quotations. For years the market has been almost bare of yellow roses, but no such complaint is now heard.

The few carnations now arriving are not worthy of "honorable mention." Another week will relieve the orchid situation. The demand for several weeks has been far above the supply. Lilies and valley have not changed. Golden Glow and Monrovia mums are adding to the congestion which the flood of asters and gladioli maintains. The quality and variety of these, especially the late asters, could not be improved, but even this does not have any apparent influence on prices. A tremendous daily waste goes on. Now the dahlias are in evidence and in another week they will be at high tide. Hydrangeas and goldenrod enliven the retail windows. Tritoma, tuberoses, water lilies, sweet peas and all the usual outdoor flowers are as numerous as ever at this season.

Various Notes.

The first of the fall shows was held August 31 and September 1 by the Horticultural Society of New York, at Bronx park, and the fine exhibit was continued over Labor day for the pleasure of the holiday crowd. The only trade exhibitors were John Lewis Childs, Arthur Cowee and W. E. Marshall & Co., the latter not for competition. I. S. Hendrickson, who staged the Childs exhibit, took first for largest and best collection of named varieties and for largest and best collection of cut blooms. Mr. Cowee was first for best twelve varieties, three spikes of each, and for best white, the latter with Peace. Other exhibitors included the gardeners for T. A. Havemeyer and H. Darlington.

Monday evening, September 9, the first meeting of the New York Florists' Club for the fall season will take place at the club's rooms in the Grand Opera House building, Twenty-third street and Eighth avenue. The exhibition of gladioli will be a large one, Chairman Hendrickson in charge. The bowlers will gather at Thum[illegible]'s alleys in the afternoon.

The Rickards brothers, of the century old house of Bridgeman, have discontinued their seed business.

The old house of Brower & Sons, for years a leading retail establishment on Broadway, where the Flatiron building now stands, have retired from the field.

Wm. P. Ford's new store at 107 West Twenty-eighth street is complete and he chose Labor day for his official opening.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. finds Violet King the best selling aster, and a new white, large, resembling Polly Rose, is also widely called for. J. J. Coan, the manager, has decided to remain in his country home up the Hudson throughout the year, coming to town daily.

Siebrecht & Siebrecht's new store at 109 West Twenty-eighth street is thoroughly up-to-date. The big basement is most convenient and the latest cooling methods will make it virtually an immense ice-box.

Wm. Kessler and family will return from their summer home at Fair Haven September 10.

Geo. C. Siebrecht is on a two weeks' cruise in his motor boat, up the Hudson to Lake Champlain. Charles and Edward Loar, of Mt. Vernon, accompany him.

The Pennock-Meehan Co. says its shipments of roses now average over 40,000 daily.

The Kervan Co. says the piping for the 4-story addition will be completed this week and the formal opening will take place September 15.

H. E. Froment has returned from the Adirondacks.

Geo. Bradley, of Wm. Kessler's force, has returned after a brief rest at his home up the Hudson.

R. A. Johnstone, bookkeeper for the Kervan Co., has completed his holiday at Hartford, Conn.

Weber and Weston, of Long Island, with their wives, have been motoring through the Alleghenies.

Miss Hulberg, bookkeeper for Traendly & Schenck, is back from her vacation in Connecticut.

Sidney Hoffman, of Boston, was a recent visitor.

Frank Traendly has been suffering with hay fever ever since his return from Chicago.

Robert Monroe, bookkeeper for Walter Sheridan, has returned from his vacation in the mountains.

Thomas Martin, foreman for Traendly & Schenck, has returned from the Rhode Island resorts where he spent his holiday.

Joseph Fenrich and family are in the Adirondacks. John Weir was a recent visitor at his summer home at Bradley Beach, N. J.

Russin & Hanfling's importations arrived August 31 and made a formidable display on Twenty-eighth street.

Gunther Bros. report that the Atco dahlias are now arriving in large quantities.

J. K. Allen attended the Staten Island fair, meeting several of his plant growers there. Several of the seedsmen had exhibits, also the gladiolus growers on Long Island.

James Coyle and wife are back from the seashore.

W. E. Marshall & Co. are removing to 166 West Twenty-third street, where they will have greatly increased facilities.

Of the Henshaw & Fenrich force Miss Herdiman vacationed at Mt. Kisco, Charles Long at Mamaroneck, Lorenzo Dewy at Springfield, Paul Rigo at Kenosha Lake, Miss Callihan at South Cairo and Al. Rigo at Alexandria Bay.

J. Austin Shaw.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business remains quiet. The wholesalers note a slackening up in orders from shore resorts, where the season will soon end. Retailers report a slightly better demand and expect trade to pick up from this time on. Asters are still the leading flower. The late varieties are now abundant and of splendid quality, the flowers being large and clean and stems long. Prices vary from 25 cents to $1.50 per hundred, only gilt-edged stock securing the top figures. Vick's Branching, Semple's and Giant Comet are the leaders. In gladioli, America, Augusta and Mrs. King are in best demand, but Sulphur King has some admirers. Sweet peas are poor and evidently nearly over outdoors. Tritomas, dahlias, cosmos and gypsophila are all in good supply. Cosmos sells fairly well.

Among roses, Mme. Chas. Russell is asserting its supremacy at the better class stores. Beauty, Kaiserin, Mrs. Ward, Taft and Hillingdon sell quite well. There are far too many small flowers of the Killarneys and Richmond. Carnations are few and of poor quality. Violets are due in a few days, some growers having flowers nearly open. A few Golden Glow mums are arriving, and a good supply of giganteum and auratum lilies. These latter, and speciosums, are now in flower outdoors. Valley is in good supply, with a light demand. Cattleyas continue scarce and gardenias are practically out of the market. There is a good supply of both asparagus and adiantum, but the demand is light.

Flower Market Auctions.

The annual auction sale of stalls at the Boston Coöperative Market was held August 31 and attracted a large attendance of buyers, including a number of new growers. William W. Tailby again proved an efficient auctioneer. First choice fell to Norris F. Comley, at a premium of $92. Other growers gave nearly as much for their stalls and prices held up well throughout the sale, the proceeds being decidedly the best the market has ever had. Over 100 stalls were disposed of, and there are many inquiries for the few remaining ones.

Wm. C. Stickel made an ideal auctioneer at the Boston Flower Exchange, where the attendance of buyers was large and bidding animated. John J. Fee secured first choice, at a premium of $195, amid applause. Among others securing the higher-priced stalls were: A. A. Pembroke, $165 and $175; W. R.

Nicholson, two at $135; W. W. Edgar Co., two at $165; F. J. Dolansky, two at $155; Mann Bros., two at $150, one at $125; Sutermeister Estate, two at $135; N. E. Boyle, $150; Eber Holmes, $165; W. C. Ward, $140; W. C. Stickel, $145; A. Christensen, two at $145; W. H. Tomlinson, two at $125; W. A. McAlpine, two at $145, one at $165; Paine Bros., two at $120. Some others who secured choice stands were S. J. Goddard, H. L. Cameron, Edward Winkler, H. W. Vose, H. F. Calder, W. H. Ward, A. W. Kidder, M. J. Aylward, C. E. Ball, H. K. Southworth, Willow Hill Greenhouses, Leonard Cousins and W. F. Eaton. The gross premiums equaled last year's record total.

Various Notes.

Wm. R. Nicholson has built a boiler shed 60x80 feet and is installing a 140 horse-power steam boiler. He intends to substitute steam for hot water, which Mr. Nicholson has used for twenty-two years.

A. A. Reed, of Whitman, left September 2 for California to attend the G. A. R. encampment at San Francisco. He expects to be away about a month, and will visit a number of horticultural establishments while away.

George E. Buxton, of Nashua, N. H., one of our leading carnation specialists, reports all his carnations as looking remarkably well. Among last season's novelties he is growing Rosette, Benora and St. Nicholas.

F. R. Houghton, on Park street, reports a call for the old-fashioned bouquets, indicative of the opening of the fall season. In his window August 31 a basket of Sulphur King gladioli, one of tritomas, scarlet gladioli and oak sprays, and a large one of lilac, gladioli and longiflorum lilies were effective.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Boston Flower Exchange will be held at the American House at 7 p. m., September 7, to vote on a proposition to lease a new salesroom at the corner of Otis street and Winthrop square, containing treble the area of the present market. A two-thirds majority vote is necessary to ratify.

S. J. Goddard has a fine lot of Smith's Advance, Golden Glow, Harvard and Chrysolora mums, some of which he will soon cut. His carnations are looking extra well.

Adolph E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, reports a steady demand for rooted cuttings of his clear pink snapdragons, orders coming from all parts of the country.

E. J. Rojean is aster king at the Boston Flower Exchange, and handles an immense cut daily, for H. W. Vose and Paul E. Richwagen. He has fine gladioli from Wm. Patterson, of Wollaston.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ward, of Montvale, leave September 7 for a trip to Niagara. They are growing Rosette and Benora among the new carnations and are already picking some good flowers from the new crop.

George H. Noyes will in future officiate as salesman for S. J. Goddard. He will also sell for C. E. Ball and W. D. Howard.

Wm. T. Walke, of Salem, has a grand lot of cyclamens and poinsettias for the holiday trade. In lilies he will grow Formosas and giganteums.

L. E. Small, of Tewksbury, has his carnations all in fine shape. He has large plantings of Benora, White Wonder, Pink Delight, Gloriosa, Beacon and White Enchantress. He will again devote one house to cornflowers, which do particularly well in his soil.

H. H. Barrows & Son, of Whitman, are busy erecting several new houses for ferns, to meet the increasing call they have for them. Their new compact form of Whitmani is in strong demand.

At the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club September 17, John K. M. L. Farquhar will deliver a lecture with lantern slides on the international show recently held in London.

Noted in H. R. Comley's window August 31 were vases of yellow and white statice, Tamarix Indica, Physostegia Virginica, anthericums and nicely flowered Lorraine begonias.

George Cruickshanks, one of the trusted employees of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., has the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends in the death of his wife, which occurred August 27. Mr. and Mrs. Cruickshanks had only been married a little over a year. A baby girl survives. Funeral services were held from the home at 61 Clifton street, Roslindale, August 30.

Zinn, on Park street, August 31 had among other flowers in his window display, Tritoma grandiflora, Chrysanthemum Golden Glow and splendid Gladiolus Baron Hulot.

Boston the coming season will be without the supplies of splendidly grown Bouvardia Humboldtii which J. W. Foote and Willow Hill Greenhouses grew. Both these firms have dropped its culture as not proving sufficiently profitable.

Among visitors last week was Robert Greenlaw, representing the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., on his way back from a large decorating contract at Bar Harbor, Me.

E. J. Shayler, of Wellesley Farms, will lecture on peonies before the New Bedford Horticultural Society September 6. In addition to a talk on growing, he will speak on the errors in nomenclature found in his twelve years' of study.

August proved to be a much cooler month than the average: Maximum temperature in Boston, 90 degrees; the minimum several times went below 50, and on the last two days of the month 34 and 36 degrees were recorded north of the city, frost occurring in places. Rainfall was 3.20 inches. We had rather more cloudy weather than usual.

James Wheeler has three times as many snapdragons planted as a year ago and they are looking splendidly. He reports a great demand for rooted cuttings through his Review ads.

Mme. Charles Russell rose, from the Waban Conservatories, is now to be seen in excellent shape at some of the retail stores. F. H. Houghton speaks in terms of the highest praise of this grand new rose, and I look to see it take a foremost place in the rose market.

W. N. Craig.

OBITUARY.

Stephen Delbar.

Stephen Delbar, of 40 Olive street, Hartford, Conn., died of heart trouble late in the evening of August 24. While being helped to his home by two companions, he died suddenly on the sidewalk before medical aid could be obtained. He had complained of feeling ill while on his way home and became so weak that he could not walk. Mr. Delbar had been employed by many of the prominent families of Hartford as a gardener. At one time he was in the employ of the late Charles Jewel. Of late years he had been in business for himself at 40 Olive street.

Jacob Dilly.

Jacob Dilly, a retired florist of Newark, N. J., died at his home, 92 Wickliffe street, Newark, August 25, after a lingering illness. A native of Wolfstein, Rheinpfalz, Germany, where he was born in 1828, he came to this country in 1844, settling in Newark. Taking up the profession of florist, he established a business on Somerset street in 1859, which he continued for over thirty years, then retiring from active business. He was a charter member of the Wein, Obst and Gartenbau Verein.

...NEWS NOTES...

Westfield, Mass.—L. E. Bennett has sold his greenhouses to P. Martino.

Huntington, Pa.—Hake & Peterman have sold out their business here to Fred M. Isenberg and will confine their attention to their place at Altoona.

Middletown, Conn.—N. O. Selby, successor to H. Behrens, Sr., has installed a new boiler and is making other improvements. Business is increasing steadily.

Bristol, Conn.—Wm. H. MacKenzie, of the Sessions Greenhouses, was awarded a certificate of merit for two baskets of asters exhibited before the Connecticut Horticultural Society at Hartford.

Chester, W. Va.—John E. Colton has disposed of his interests in the Colton Greenhouse Co., at Newell, and is now operating individually from his own greenhouse on Fifth street, Chester, formerly occupied by Robert McElravy.

Springfield, Mo.—O. Martin, formerly with the Chalfant Floral Co., but more recently employed by the Pioneer Floral Co., filed a petition in bankruptcy August 24, scheduling liabilities of $2,528.85, of which $1,800 is due W. A. Chalfant on a note on which judgment has been taken.

Hartford, Conn.—The Connecticut Horticultural Society will give its annual dahlia show at Unity hall September 19 and 20. Premiums are offered in thirty classes for professionals and in twelve classes open only to amateurs. The New York and Boston seed houses have donated many special prizes.

Peoria, Ill.—When Charles A. Loveridge, president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, returned from the S. A. F. convention at Chicago, he was able to announce that the next annual convention of the state organization had been secured for this city. It will be held here March 4 and 5, 1913.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—One of the oldest and best established concerns in this city is the flower business of Paul Goebel & Co., which has been conducted on Hall street, just above the square, for the last twenty-six years. The business is now managed by the widow of the founder and by a son, Charles.

The Review brings results.

WITH Labor day in the past, the autumn season may be said to have opened. It was a short summer.

IMMORTELLES will not be any more plentiful this season than last. Short crops and increasing demand. The first shipments are in.

LARGE shipments of French, German and Holland baskets are coming in on every steamer for the principal importers of florists' supplies.

NOW comes the season of the state and county fairs, and in nearly every instance they are giving flowers greater prominence than ever before.

IT was a hard season, almost everywhere, on the carnation plants in the field. Consequently, many who usually have a surplus have nothing to offer this year.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

PEONIES are being dug, divided and delivered. There is little call this season for the commoner kinds, but the finer sorts are in even stronger request than when the peony boom was at its height.

ALL over the country the latter part of August was made memorable by the heaviest supplies of cut flowers ever known at this time of year. September has opened with badly overloaded wholesale markets. The condition is general.

SOME people would rather talk politics than do business. Let them. For those who go after it and keep after it there will be plenty of trade the next two months. No presidential year ever cut so little figure with business.

ONE of the most successful growers of carnations for the Chicago market, a man who keeps close account of his business, says that on an average cut of about 400,000 blooms per season his returns last season show an average price about twenty per cent less than in the season before. He charges it to generally increased production.

WHEN the Telegraph Delivery Association was in session at Chicago last month the discussion turned to automobile delivery. It was the general opinion that the retailer who has had his car only one year is in no position to make comparisons with the cost of the older methods of delivery. Practically every retailer present is operating one or more cars and all agreed that the automobile comes under the head of the necessary evils. Necessary, because not one of them would think of going back to the wagon.

IN observing the growth and care of home dooryards during the last several weeks, it is noticeable the number of single rose bushes and climbers that are to be found.—Benj. Hammond, secretary American Rose Society.

NOTHING UNUSUAL.

It always is a pleasure to hear that an advertisement in The Review has fulfilled its purpose—but letters like the following are quite the regular thing:

Please discontinue our advertisement of carnation plants, as our stock is all sold. The Review did it.—Miami Floral Co., Dayton, O., August 28, 1912.

Carnation plants will sell well until everybody gets planted up. Then there will be a lull, after which small lots will be in demand to take the place of plants that have failed. It is the yearly experience.

THE WESTERN ASSOCIATION.

The Western Dahlia and Gladiolus Association is preparing for a big show to be held in connection with the state fair at Milwaukee, September 11 to 14. A good list of premiums is offered for both dahlias and gladioli, and the prospect is that there will be a large number of exhibits. E. S. Thompson, Benton Harbor, Mich., is the secretary of the association. H. W. Koerner, of Milwaukee, is vice-president, and has been appointed manager of the show, being on the ground.

All exhibits should be sent in the care of the association, West Allis, Wis., State Fair grounds, all charges prepaid, to H. W. Koerner, Supt.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

An abundance, or rather overabundance, of almost every seasonable flower has brought prices on the local market down with a smash. The trouble has been aggravated by the fact that August went out and September came in with the heat at a record mark. Stock was never so abundant during the first week of September as it is at the present writing. After long continued stretches of cool weather through July and August, the slowly grown stock has been rushed to the cutting point and, as long as the heat continues, the supply will be tremendous. There is an unmanageable supply of American Beauties of all lengths and the quality is varied, a part being tight, while the heat has popped open the bulk of the receipts. As a whole, however, the stock is holding up rather well under the conditions. Killarney and White Killarney are, of course, received in greater quantity than before. Although the quality is first-class, it is impossible to move them at any legitimate price. Marylands are increasing, while Brides are becoming more plentiful. Mrs. Aaron Ward, Melody and Sunburst are coming along faster than heretofore. Mrs. Taft or Prince de Bulgarie is in moderate supply.

Asters are more than overabundant; there is a flood of all kinds and all grades. The best can be had at a reasonable figure and the poor stock is filling up the waste barrels, for it cannot be sold at any price. The later varieties are coming now and show good quality.

YOUR interest demands that you use OUR Roses

There is no finer stock, or more steady supply, and our list includes a complete assortment—all the varieties you need—but you DO need all these, and you cannot get them everywhere:

MRS. WARD SUNBURST
BULGARIE RADIANCE
RICHMOND KILLARNEY
WHITE KILLARNEY

There is every reason why you should use our Roses this season, and no reason why you should not. Let us get started now.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

The Largest and Steadiest Supply in the West.

You need good Beauties, to be sure, but you also need to be able to get them when you want them. Our Beauties always are fine, and we have them in quantity all the time. These September Beauties, all lengths, are great sellers. Try them and see. You can work up a fine trade on Beauties if you use our stock and start now.

FANCY ASTERS

All colors. Can furnish any grade you want. Long, fancy, for decorations, or short, for work. Let us hear from you if you can use good Asters in quantity. Let us quote you on any special orders.

GLADIOLI

We are specially strong this year on the Gladioli the trade wants in quantity, America, King and Augusta. Once you try these you will not be able to get along with the ordinary quality even of the same varieties.

FANCY LILIES

Lilies are selling well—you'll find it so if you use our stock for funeral work or for decorations. Easter Lilies, Auratums, Rubrums.

Fancy Valley always on hand.

Gladioli also are in big supply and the receipts of America, Francis King and Augusta are heavier than at any time this season. These do not appear to have suffered in quality as much as some of the other stock, but it is impossible to clean up, no matter how low the price is made. The mixed glads simply cannot be sold. Outdoor carnations are arriving in considerable quantity, while the cut from indoors has increased to a marked extent, but with so large a supply of other stock carnations do not yet cut much figure in the doings of the market. Valley and orchids are probably the only seasonable flowers that are not overloading the ice-boxes, although Easter lilies are not in excess of the demand at the present. Cattleyas are unusually scarce. Chrysanthemums are fine and abundant but not in request. Greens are still holding the usual summer prices and the first shipments of wild smilax have been reported.

The High Ridge Show.

One of the big annual events in the Rogers Park section, where greenhouses are so thick that the tall chimneys produce the same effect on the landscape that the derricks do in the oil regions, is the Luxemberger Schobermesse. It is held Labor day and the Sunday preceding and always brings out a throng. The showing of vegetables, and especially greenhouse vegetables, is worth the trip, not to mention the cut flowers, which always make a good showing. The Wietor brothers were born on High Ridge, but are firm in the belief that the next best place in the world is the fatherland of their parents and are active in all Luxemberger affairs. They bring their best to this show. The cut flowers were judged this year by John Zech, of Zech & Mann, and A. C. Kohlbrand, of the E. C. Amling Co. They awarded first prizes to Wietor Bros. for two lots of Beauties, one of 100 and the other of fifty flowers, for Mrs. Jardine, Killarney, White Killarney, My Maryland and Richmond roses, and on six varieties of carnations. The George Wittbold Co. was first and Nick Reading second for decorative plants. Vaughan's Seed Store was first for collection of gladioli, asters, phlox and other outdoor flowers. Fischer Bros., of Evanston, were given second for a bed of cannas.

Various Notes.

Emil Buettner has at length dropped the Mrs. Lawson carnation. He was one of the most successful growers of this variety and stood by it after many other good growers had discarded it. He is about the last of the larger growers to let go.

Miss L. A. Tonner, who for years has been in the supply department of the A. L. Randall Co., has resigned to take effect October 1 and will go south to go into the pecan and nursery business, it having been reported in The Review some months ago that she had made investments in that section. some time, Miss Tonner's associates and friends regret it, as her personal and business qualities have endeared her to all with whom she has come in contact.

Otto W. Frese says that in the many years he has been on the market he never has seen August end and September begin with conditions like those of this year: never so many Beauties and roses, or so few cattleyas.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., as has been his custom for some years, spent Labor day in New York city.

A. Lange says that he is getting excellent service from his Pierce-Arrow delivery car.

C. W. McKellar and wife and George Asmus and wife attended the automobile races at Elgin August 31 in the McKellar car.

Schiller the Florist has just put a second Lambert delivery car on the street. Herman Schiller is the Illinois agent for the manufacturer and has sold a number of cars this season.

Peter Reinberg began cutting indoor carnations in considerable quantity as early as August 27.

George Fisher is vacationing at Kalamazoo.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., who has been at the King Edward hotel at Toronto for several weeks, writes that the weather has been bad and that Mrs. Pieser is willing to take a chance on Chicago and hay fever, so that they will be home earlier than expected.

George Manos, who has stands in the union stations at both Chicago and Pittsburgh, returned from his vacation just as his cousin and former employee was drowned in Lake Michigan. The funeral was September 1.

The staff of the E. Wienhoeber Co., Elm street, is all on duty this week, summer vacations over and ready for business. August closed with a big lot of funeral work and the prospect for the fall season is regarded as excellent.

At Kyle & Foerster's A. C. Spencer comments on the unprecedented supply of Beauties in the latter half of August and says the abundance of these and roses is what has made glads and, especially, asters, so difficult to sell at satisfactory prices.

T. E. Waters is planning to take the road in a few days in the interest of the supply department of Poehlmann Bros. Co.

C. A. Samuelson has refinished the body on his new White car and it is one of the handsomest delivery vehicles in town.

Andrew Meyer, foreman for the Geo. Wittbold Co., left August 26 for northern Wisconsin, where he is spending his vacation.

Winterson's Seed Store received a large shipment of Chinese lilies last week.

The store staff of Poehlmann Bros. Co. now numbers eighteen people.

Gottleib Schott now is the Beauty grower for the Batavia Greenhouse Co. He is well known in this section, having worked for several of the largest establishments. Mr. Schott recently had special success with an American beauty and with her has made a home at Batavia.

The marriage of Miss Hertha V. Tonner and Thomas Fogarty will take place at St. Mary's church in the morning of Wednesday, September 11. It will be followed by a wedding breakfast at the Tonner home at Galewood, after which the couple will leave for a trip to Niagara Falls and on into Canada.

Extra shifts of men are being employed at Bassett & Washburn's new plant in order to rush the construction work to completion. The delay in getting the switch to land the materials on the grounds set the work back and an effort is being made to catch up to the original schedule.

John F. Kidwell, president of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says the month of August was a good one for the association and far ahead of 1911, when the association was just getting under way.

W. E. Lynch, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., says that the quantity of flowers now on the market is the largest he has known for the first week in September. Notwithstanding, he figures the quality a shade better than usual.

The Percy Jones supply department has shown rapidly increasing sales during the last two months, according to H. Van Gelder, who says the new catalogue has been sent out broadcast.

Erne & Klingel report daily arrivals of wild smilax since the initial shipment August 30.

The Raedlein Basket Co. is preparing a supplement to its catalogue, showing the many new styles that will be added to its already extensive line.

F. C. Hoerber, of Hoerber Bros., says the first cut of Bride that came in last week were of fine quality for the initial shipment. They have planted more extensively of this variety this year, he says.

September 4 and will sail for Europe in a few days, on a business trip. He is selling agent for a number of florists' supply houses.

A. Miller and Guy Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., left this week to visit the trade. A. Henderson reports more arrivals of French bulbs, which are now being distributed.

Outside of one or two days, Phil Schupp, of J. A. Budlong's, says that August of this year was ahead of last year and he expects September will show equally well.

A. Zech, of Zech & Mann, reports that a trip to Mr. Mann's greenhouses September 1 showed some nice carnations, which he now grows exclusively.

The mean temperature in August was almost exactly normal, but the month started cooler and ended warmer than usual. Precipitation was about twenty-five per cent greater than normal, but it mostly fell in three days. Of the possible sunshine the month produced fifty-seven per cent, where sixty-nine per cent of the possible duration of sun is normal for the month.

SHERIDAN, WYO.

A deal has just been closed whereby L. M. Best, of the Best Floral Co., becomes the owner of the greenhouses, lands, stock and fixtures of the Sheridan Greenhouse Co., a partnership composed of S. P. Caple and H. A. Loucks. The newly acquired property adjoins the property previously owned by Mr. Best. The price paid was $5,000. All the interested parties agree that this is below the actual value, but Messrs. Inclusive of his newly acquired property, Mr. Best now owns greenhouses that cover 50,000 square feet. During the two years he has been in Sheridan he has built greenhouses that cover 45,000 square feet and the remainder he has acquired by this purchase. Mr. Best will use the newly acquired buildings exclusively for winter tomatoes and cucumbers. Lettuce, radishes, onions, parsley, mint, cauliflower and spinach will be grown in the other greenhouses. He will continue to grow cut flowers and potted plants.

Mr. Loucks will retire from the florists' business. The Sheridan Music & Floral Co., of which Mr. Caple is manager, will become the exclusive city representative of the Best Floral Co.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business, wholesale and retail, is exceedingly dull. August was a draggy month, with an abundance of stock going to waste. At present cut flowers are a glut, with loads going to the dump. Asters are little called for; stores and markets are oversupplied and the flowers are sold at any price. Roses are in good shape, but little called for; the best fetch only $4 per hundred. Dahlias are coming in heavily and in only a short time the market will be overstocked. Gladioli are extremely heavy in supply and many are going to waste.

Various Notes.

E. A. Seidleich, of Woodlawn, is offering his place for sale. He stood in Lexington market for many years and had a fine trade.

The Eutaw Floral Co., 224 North Eutaw street, opened its doors to the public August 31; the store is an ideal one, roomy and with a large show window. It is only half a block from Lexington market and on one of the busiest streets in the retail district. The opening attracted large crowds. Many in the trade called during the day, with good wishes. PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The last days of August and the first days of September have been disastrous in the cut flower market. There has been no outlet for many of the flowers sent into town, with the result that there has been much waste. There is just one scarce flower on the entire list, the cattleya. Asters and roses are abundant; the poorer grades are only a source of worry. Gladioli are going off a little, while dahlias are slowly increasing in numbers. Out-of-town business is quiet.

A Carnation Wrinkle.

Paul R. Klingsporn spent an interesting day in Detroit as the guest of Mr. Stahelin, who showed him his movable greenhouses. To avoid lifting carnation plants from the field to the house, the stock is planted outdoors in the spring. In the fall the houses are run over them on tracks; the heating pipes are then put in and connected. Mr. Stahelin says that this plan saves at least six weeks in growing the stock, besides keeping the plants free from check. Mr. Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, told Mr. Klingsporn that Mr. Stahelin's carnation blooms brought the highest price in the Detroit market last winter.

Club Meeting.

President Thilow called a well attended meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia to order September 3. After the minutes, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, made a long address urging that Philadelphia take her place in the lead at the National Flower Show in New York and at the next convention at Minneapolis. An interesting symposium on the Chicago convention followed. All our representatives had some interesting thing to tell and a word of appreciation for their hosts. Adolph Farenwald read a carefully prepared paper on the wonderful international show in London, which he attended.

The Leo Niessen Co., for the Peacock Dahlia Farms, exhibited a handsome collection of dahlias in a dozen fine varieties, including their famous pink, Dorothy Peacock.

A Floral Clock.

There were a good many callers at Captain Cameron's office in City hall last week to see the clock that had been presented to the captain on the occasion of his promotion to that rank in the detective bureau. The clock, which is two feet in diameter, was made of pink roses. The face is of gold metal, with the numerals in Hebrew characters instead of Roman, as usually seen. The inscription on the clock is, "I am waiting for the original." The inscription is explained in this way: Captain Cameron had a watch that he considered as a luck piece. It was made in Portugal in medieval times. The numerals were in Hebrew, and on the back was a picture of Moses delivering the ten commandments to the children of Israel at Mount Sinai. When the Captain received his promotion to be captain of detectives, a friend, after much persuasion, borrowed the watch. He took it to August Muller, asking him to make a floral facsimile. Mr. Muller, knowing that Harry Bayersdorfer prides himself on being able to do any-

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Certain European growers of bulbs, rhododendrons and flower seeds are anxious to connect with some florist in the neighborhood of New York to force their products and have them in good shape to be exhibited at the National Flower Show, early in April, 1913, it being obviously impossible to bring such stock as bulbs into flower in Holland or England and then transport them in that condition.

If any florist is willing to take up this matter, will he please advise me how many he will be able to handle and at what price? I will then put him in communication with the parties interested.

Aside from the financial consideration, I trust some florist will feel interested enough to take up this matter, as it is the desire of the European seed and bulb men to show some of the latest and best novelties in their respective lines.

C. H. Totty, Chairman.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society will hold a meeting September 10 at the office of Vice-President Traendly, in New York city. The purpose of this meeting is to prepare a schedule for cut blooms to be shown at the National Flower Show in the rose division next March. The list for plants is already issued. The rose show at Boston was a marked feature, and in New York there are some millions of people living within the radius of the suburban lines which center in or near the building where the exhibition will be held.

The Market.

Business was rather quiet last week, in spite of the fact that there were enormous crowds in town, attracted by the state fair and centennial. There has been an abundance of stock, much of it of poor quality, but improving right along, except during the recent extremely hot weather.

The State Fair.

The centennial and fair attracted enormous crowds, the gate receipts exceeding $75,000. The florists made a rather better showing than usual. J. L. Schiller, of Toledo, was the judge. His awards were:

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Business has been rather brisk the last few days, owing to some heavy funeral orders, both locally and through the state. Roses are showing quite a decided improvement, both in color and length of stem. A. Rasmussen, the wholesale grower of New Albany, Ind., is sending in a nice cut of the two new roses, Sunburst and Bulgarie, which seem to be making quite a hit in this market.

Benjamin Lord has taken charge of the old S. E. Thompson plant and expects to make a leader of sweet peas the coming winter. He has quite a lot coming on at present and will plant more later. T.

Lowell, Mass.—W. E. Beach has started in business with a greenhouse at the corner of Caster and Lawrence streets.

The Market.

Business last week was about as it has been all through the month of August—rather dull, though a lot of funeral work was done. All other lines of business were dull. The wholesale markets had plenty of stock, with no clean-up sales to report. On Labor day, however, stock of all kinds sold well and a scarcity of stock was noted in everything except roses; in these the market has been glutted throughout the month of August. The supply of asters is not so great as it was a week ago. First-class carnations have been scarce. A lot of them have been coming in, but only second-grade stock can be seen. Gladioli, too, are decreasing somewhat in supply.

An abundance of outdoor stock is coming in and helps to make up the daily market. As to prices, it is safe to say they are low in all grades. With the opening of the schools and the return of tourists, the retail trade is looking forward to a revival of business this month, and is ready for it when it comes.

Various Notes.

Martin Reukauf, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was the first after-convention traveler to call on the local trade. He was followed by Jos. E. H. Morichard, representing S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, and "Sprinkleproof" Sam Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York. They all cleaned up some nice business during their stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Sr., have returned from a pleasant two weeks' trip in the east. They spent most of their time at Atlantic City, N. J.

J. F. Ammann, whom President Vincent, of the S. A. F., appointed as chairman on affiliation of horticultural societies and florists' clubs, will be at the meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club on Thursday of next week and will tell us all about the great doings at the convention and about his committee.

The meetings of the Retail Florists' Association will be resumed this month. The first meeting will be held on Monday night, September 16, but Secretary Geranios does not know in what hall it will be held. Notices of this will be sent to all members in due time.

Muskopp & Irish and Charles Fullgraf, landscape architects and engineers, are in for some big business this fall, having lots of work booked ahead.

The Standard Scale Fixture Co., the local representative of the McCray Refrigerator Co., has placed in the new store of the Mullanphy Flower Co. one of the largest McCray refrigerators, made to order. The box is twenty feet wide, fourteen and one-half feet deep and eight feet high, and handsomely finished inside and outside. It is said to be the largest in use by any retailer to date.

President-elect F. H. Weber and Vice-President-elect C. C. Young, of the Florists' Club, are back from their vacations and will at once begin a fall and winter campaign to make things lively for the members at all the meetings.

Commencing with September 16, the wholesale houses will do away with the early closing. The stores have all been

The entire party has now returned from the S. A. F. convention and all are loud in their praises of the way in which they were entertained on all sides by the Chicago boys. The many friends of Charles Graham were delighted with the success of his team in winning the inter-city bowling contest. This was his first capture and the team deserves it, as Cleveland is never among the missing in the team bowling.

Henry Berning is receiving large consignments of extra good roses, especially Beauties in all grades, as well as fine Killarneys, Marylands and Kaiserins. As business was still dull last week and stock was abundant, low prices prevailed.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. is handling some fine cut stock in Killarney roses from Werner Bros.; also a fine lot of White and Pink Cochet roses from the De Wever place.

The Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., the St. Louis Seed Co. and C. Young & Sons Co. are about ready to issue their fall bulb catalogues. These three seed firms expect a great amount of business this fall in the line of bulbs.

The new firm, known as the Windler Co., wholesale florists, will open for business September 16, at 1310 Pine street. As each of the wholesale houses has a distinctive color of paper for wrapping, the new firm's color will be goldenrod yellow, and the stationery will be of the same color.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its installation meeting on Thursday afternoon, September 12, at 2 o'clock, in Odd Fellows' building. Special notices will be mailed by the secretary to all members and a large attendance is looked for.

Among the visitors from close-by towns during the last week were: A. C. Canfield, Springfield, Ill.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Hugo Werner, John Wunderli and Paul A. Scheider, Clayton; C. E. De Wever, Olivette; Edwin Denker, St. Charles; Henry Emunds and A. G. Fehr, Belleville, Ill.; W. J. Pilcher, A. G. Ahner, Hugo Gross, F. W. Ude, Wm. Winter, F. Vennemann and A. Hartmann, of Kirkwood. Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE Holland seeds are beginning to arrive.

THE Door County Seed Co., Sturgeon Bay, Wis., received its first carload of Michigan peas of the 1912 crop August 20.

THE Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., Boston, has obtained much publicity in newspapers that are inclined that way by naming a new bright red dahlia the Bull Moose.

THE pea crop, on the whole, is turning out better than was expected, weather conditions after the late start and subsequent drought having been exceptionally favorable.

WORK has begun on the erection of the new warehouse for Noble Bros., dealers in field seeds at Foosland, Ill. The new structure will be built of brick on a concrete foundation, and will cover a space 100 feet square.

THE Welland Seed Co., Ltd., is the name under which the Dunkirk Seed Co. and the Lake Shore Seed Co., of Dunkirk, N. Y., will push into Canada. They were recently reported as having bought property for a warehouse at Welland, Ont.

POTATOES for seed will be refused entrance to the ports of the United States if they come from countries that have the wart disease. The Secretary of Agriculture is moving under the new plant quarantine law. See the article on page 63 of this issue.

THE California Seed Growers' Association is the name of a new company at San Jose, Cal. D. G. Fisher is president, J. W. Edmundsen is vice-president and manager, and M. W. Williams is secretary and treasurer. Mr. Edmundsen was formerly sales manager and Miss Williams was formerly secretary of the Braslan Seed Growers' Co.

SINCE Congress has adjourned its members have plunged into the campaign. A Washington newspaper tells of the plans of members to mend their fences and concludes: "Republican leader James R. Mann left August 25 to attend to the weeds and brambles that have been growing unchecked in the garden of his Chicago district during the long session."

THE Colorado Seed & Nursery Co., Denver, is a new concern organized by former employees of the Barteldes Seed Co. C. R. Root, president and manager, was with Barteldes for twenty-one years, fourteen of them as manager. W. F. Horlacher, vice-president, was with Barteldes nearly fourteen years, and Lewis Malone, secretary and treasurer, for four years has had charge of the Barteldes city store.

THOMAS W. CHISHOLM, for many years identified with one of the largest seedsmen in the country, prior to his coming west, has been made sales manager of the Braslan Seed Growers' Co., Inc., San Jose, Cal., with which he has been associated for the last year. Since returning from his eastern selling trip, Mr. Chisholm has had charge of the Braslan Sacramento and San Joaquin river growing operations, and his advancement is largely due to his success in this work.

JAMES VICK'S SONS

THE number of new concerns reported from week to week as starting in the seed business is really remarkable. Evidently the trade is increasing at an extremely rapid rate.

THE aphis appears to be the thing the California sweet pea growers have most to fear. As yet they are absolutely without means of controlling it and it is threatening the very existence of the industry.

J. A. SHELTON, who until recently was manager of the Southwestern Seed Co., Fayetteville, Ark., accompanied by his wife, is on a pleasure trip through Colorado, Utah and California, returning through southern Texas. They expect to be gone two or three months.

IT is said that the Pennsylvania railroad is negotiating for the purchase of certain property along the south branch of the Chicago river and the following has appeared in local dailies: "The property owned by the Chicago Utilities Co.," said S. W. Tracy, vice-president, "is now under lease to the Dickinson Seed Co., which has a large warehouse there. As soon as the Dickinson company's lease expires, within a year, the tunnel company will use the site for warehouse and tunnel purposes."

VICE-CONSUL CHARLES F. BRISSEL, at Amoy, China, in a report to the Bureau of Manufactures of the Department of Commerce and Labor, states that the production of narcissus bulbs, in connection with the generally splendid crops in the immediate vicinity of Amoy, has greatly increased, so that bulbs which in former years sold for about $8.25 gold to $9.40 per 1,000 bulbs in Amoy, are this year selling at from $6 to $7 per 1,000. He further states that the district of Chang Chow, about thirty miles from Amoy, grows practically all of these bulbs and is the only section of China which produces bulbs of such excellence.

C. S. CLARK, Wakeman, O., has just returned home from a 1,000-mile auto trip around the middle states, which took in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, part of Illinois and Michigan. He is fully convinced that the corn crop is fully three weeks to a month late. This is due to a cold summer and too much rain. The oat crop was found a month late and it has been so wet that many fields have rotted down. The farmers could not get into the fields to harvest and in many sections those cut have never been dry enough to stack or thrash and they have molded in the shocks. "We must have a warm September and a late fall to get any ripe corn out of the middle states," says Mr. Clark.

THE Secretary of Agriculture issued a warning, August 29, to prospective purchasers of hairy vetch seed against certain lots of low grade which are now being offered by wholesalers to the smaller dealers. The greater part of the hairy vetch seed used in the United States has thus far been imported from Europe. Among recent importations there are a number of seed of low quality, containing from fifteen to eighty per cent of hairy vetch seed, the balance being made up either of cultivated forms of spring vetch, which are not hardy in the northern states, or of various species of wild vetches, of doubtful value for agricultural purposes. This low-grade

DUTY ON CELERY SEED.

The Collector of Customs at Boston assessed an importation of fifty bags of celery seed as seeds not specially provided for. The Stickney & Poor Spice Co. claimed it to be wild celery seed and free of duty under the provisions in paragraph 559 for "drugs, such as * * * seeds (aromatic, not garden seeds)."

The question whether certain celery seed was wild celery seed or the "tame" variety, which is a garden or vegetable seed, has been before the board several times. The board has been sustained by the Court of Customs Appeals that the wild celery seed is not dutiable under the paragraph providing for garden seeds. In one case before the board the importer produced a microscopist and analyst who had gone thoroughly into the question of the difference between the cultivated celery seed and the wild celery seed.

"In that case," says the decision, "it was demonstrated pretty conclusively that there is a structural difference between the two, besides a difference in the quantity of aromatic oil, the wild celery containing more aromatic oil. The testimony of that witness was that in the wild seed there are generally twelve oil ducts, while in the garden seed there are but six. In this protest now before us we are informed that the seed in question conforms in its structure to the description given in the above case covering wild seed, but upon investigation we observe that it differs in that in this case the witness states the wild seed has but four ducts, hence there seems to be some confusion among the doctors. We are not satisfied, however, that the testimony in this case overturns the rule heretofore followed by the board and the court. We are not impressed with the probative force of the statements made by the witness Ross or the thoroughness of his investigations. There may be other ways of determining whether an importation is wild or garden celery seed, but in this case resort is had to the structural differences. We think the importers have failed by the method adopted in showing that the commodity is wild seed. The protest is therefore overruled."

THE FEDERAL SEED BILL.

The pure seed bill was passed in the closing hours of the recent long session of Congress and was signed by the President August 24. The law, as it now stands, is as follows:

An Act To regulate foreign commerce by prohibiting the admission into the United States of certain adulterated grain and seeds unfit for seeding purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after six months after the passage of this Act the importation into the United States of seeds of alfalfa, barley, Canadian blue grass, Kentucky blue grass, awnless brome grass, buckwheat, clover, field corn, Kafir corn, meadow fescue, flax, millet, oats, orchard grass, rape, redtop, rye, sorghum, timothy, and wheat, or mixtures of seeds containing any of such seeds as one of the principal component parts, which are adulterated or unfit for seeding purposes under the terms of this Act, is hereby prohibited; and the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Agriculture shall, jointly or severally, make such rules and regulations as will prevent the importation of such seeds into the United States: Provided, however, That such seed may be delivered to the owner or consignee thereof under bond, to be recleaned in accordance with and subject to such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, and when cleaned to the standard of purity specified in this Act for admission into the United States such seed may be released to the owner or consignee thereof after the screenings and other refuse removed from such seed shall have been disposed of in a manner prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture: Provided further, That this Act shall not apply to the importation of barley, buckwheat, field corn, Kafir corn, sorghum, flax, oats, rye, or wheat not intended for seeding purposes, when shipped in bond through the United States or imported for the purpose of manufacture, but such shipment shall be subject to provisions of the Act of August fifth, nineteen hundred and nine.

Boddington's "Quality" Christmas-Flowering SWEET PEAS

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

though roses are good sellers. Prices are rock bottom and the supply is adequate. The indications are for an early season and a busy one.

Various Notes.

On Tuesday, August 27, four representatives of the New England Dahlia Society were the guests of George L. Stillman, at Westerly. The party included J. K. Alexander, of Bridgewater, Mass., president of the society; Edgar W. Ela, of Woburn, Mass.; L. M. Bates, of Brockton, Mass., and J. H. Flint, of Salem, Mass. Upon arriving at Westerly the party were taken to Mr. Stillman's place, and later to Weekapaug, where a Rhode Island shore dinner was enjoyed.

James Hockey, of Pawtucket, has returned from a several months' visit to England and Scotland, where he went for his health. He is much improved.

Nathan D. Pierce, of Norwood, who has been in poor health for several months, underwent a serious operation at a hospital in Providence last week. He is reported to be slowly improving.

Lawrence Hay, of East Providence, has returned from a vacation trip to New Bedford and Fairhaven, in Massachusetts, and Newport.

Charles Hunt reports an unusual run of funeral work during the last fortnight. He has been spending his leisure time this summer in short automobile trips through New England.

Frederick Dietz is having a garage erected at his place on French street.

The Westminster Greenhouses have just completed the installation of a new tubular boiler, large enough to supply the entire plant.

S. R. Astle, proprietor of the Lakewood Dahlia Gardens, has announced an inspection exhibition of his dahlia fields at Lakewood.

The annual dahlia and general flower and plant exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society will be held September 14 to 16, while the annual ball will be held on the evening of September 17.

H. SCHULTZ & CO., Superior and Roberts Sts, CHICAGO, ILL.

William Jurgens, of Newport, has returned from the S. A. F. convention at Chicago.

The administratrix of the estate of Farquhar Macrae has discharged a mortgage of $5,500 against the greenhouses of John A. Macrae.

Business is brisk at the Newport store of A. T. Bunyard, New York.

The material for the new house 30 x 120 for J. Kopelman, at his range at Oaklawn, has been received from the King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, N. Y. The erection will be pushed at once.

Herbert Leach, of M. J. Leach & Co., of Pawtucket, has been on an extended automobile trip through New England with his wife.

Albert E. Brownell is having a fine exhibition of dahlias at the Seekonk Gardens, Jacob's Hill, for a few days.

John C. Coswell, with W. E. Barrett Co., has returned to his duties after a serious illness.

Preparations are about completed for the second annual exhibition in the Whitehall building, at Greystone, by the Greystone Horticultural Society September 7. W. H. M.

St. Cloud, Minn.—The Kindler Floral Co. has completed its new greenhouse, conservatory and salesroom, on Sixth avenue north. Concrete was largely used in the construction of the building, which is both handsome and substantial.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

McMINNVILLE, ORE.

For two days, August 16 and 17, we had the heaviest rainfall we have ever known to occur at this season of the year in the Willamette valley. Everything in the way of flowers growing in the open was more or less damaged, but the late crop of asters, not then in bloom, will be much improved because of the shower. The new early Crego aster, which has been in bloom since July 23 and has met with such general approval among the leading florists of Portland, Seattle, Spokane and other cities of the northwest, is now gone and the main crop of the Improved Crego aster and the new Oregon Monarch are coming into flower in time to meet the growing demand.

Mr. Whitlock, a retired florist of Silverton, Ore., recently made his annual visit to the McMinnville aster fields.

Herbert & Fleishauer are planning to erect a frame and stretch canvas over their late aster field, to protect the flowers from the October frost and heavy storms of wind and rain. On a recent Sunday this firm's aster fields were visited by S. B. Hendee, of Hendee Bros., Milwaukee, Ore., and Wm. Schaumann, formerly with W. Atlee Burpee & Co., at their Fordhook seed farms, but now with J. J. Butzer, of Portland, Ore. Both gentlemen were profuse in their praise of the choice specimens then to be seen in full blossom in the gardens, and specimens were taken to Portland to be placed on exhibition at the Florists' Club meeting in that city.

Mrs. Henry Clay Eckenberger, of the Lakewood Conservatories, and her nephew, S. S. Summers, were visitors at the aster fields of Herbert & Fleishauer last week. Mrs. Eckenberger recently severed her connection with the Tonseth Floral Co., of Portland, taking charge of the Lakewood branch of the business, which comprises about 25,000 feet of glass and sufficient ground to handle quite an extensive wholesale business.

H. T. F.

ASTORIA, ORE.

I have been intending to write you something concerning Astoria for some time. We have been in business for a little over a year and have done well, considering everything. The people have been sending most of their trade to Portland—why, I cannot say, for there has been a florist here about twenty years, and one went out of business just a few weeks before I came in. We have tried hard to always have a variety, but it is difficult. It seems to make no difference what I have in stock, all they want is carnations; however, they want to see all that is on the market. Asters are now in and we get the finest that are grown. This year we planted several hundred snapdragons outdoors, in the hope that we might create a demand for the plants in the spring. I warrant you that not as many as six people spoke of their beauty, and we have some beautiful shades of pink, red, yellow and white.

We have grown a number of roses this season, with the hope that we might find something besides the Caroline Testout and Karl Druschki. Our red roses are Gen. MacArthur and Lady Battersea. These are both good on the bush, but I do not like them as cut roses. I especially want a dark, velvety rose.

This spring we grew quite a quantity of bedding stock, but we did not sell enough to pay us for the trouble. I sold several hundred asters and about the same number of lobelias. Cosmos and ten weeks' stocks, most of the people didn't know what they were. We sell more geraniums than any other bedding plant. Verbenas do well here, but some people seemed to have failed on it and they will not try the second time.

We have not put up any greenhouses, for it has not seemed profitable. The trade here depends mostly on funeral work and therefore if we had greenhouses we would have to throw a great deal away.

Unfortunately, the undertaker here sends most of his orders to Portland. In reference to the discussion on undertakers' commissions, I think they make enough in their own business without exacting a percentage from the florist, and especially in small towns where the florist has to depend on funeral work to make a living. We think this is the reason we do not get the funeral work, because we are not able to give twenty per cent, and it comes hard to give ten per cent, which we do.

Charles E. Whiton.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

There is little new to chronicle with regard to stock. All varieties of outdoor flowers are still plentiful. Gladioli have eased up a little, especially the better grades of America. Amaryllis Belladonna has become quite a feature and is even more plentiful than last reported. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is in, but is not wanted—there are too many other good flowers on the market for mums to sell. Some of the best indoor carnations seen for a long time are now coming in from growers around Gardena. The White Perfection and Enchantress are splendid flowers for the season, and the outdoor stock is better than of late. Indoor roses find a much better demand, though the supply is limited. Prima Donna is now well distributed among the growers and is showing its true quality. At its best this is a magnificent rose and its free blooming qualities make it one of the most profitable. The newer ones make little headway in the market, as growers are holding back on them, but they will be heard from later. Valley is plentiful, but maintains its price, the only shading being in large lots or on orders for regular daily shipments.

Various Notes.

A writer who speaks of the large number of growers and nurserymen who have located at Montebello appears to think there is no place in California where frost is unknown. Contradictions are useless and prove nothing, but anyone familiar with plant life knows which plants succumb to frost and which do not. Now, at Montebello we have growing outside, with absolutely no protection, Philodendron pertusum (Monstera deliciosa) and this fruits regularly. Last winter was the coldest known for many years, yet not a leaf was damaged. Bougainvillea lateritia and Ficus pandurata also stood with no protection, while—perhaps the strongest evidence of all—egg plant stands the winter and fruits from 2-year-old plants in May. Now, I will ask any practical man, any man who knows plant life: How much frost would any of these plants stand? Yet Pasadena and other nearby points suffered, even orange trees being killed and ficuses so injured that they will take years to recover.

The Redondo Floral Co. keeps busy, Mr. Borden being called to the extreme east of the city and also to the west (Hollywood) one day during the week for wedding decorations.

The gladioli at the Los Angeles Flower Market are particularly fine just now, some of the growers for this concern evidently being greatly favored with soil and location.

During a somewhat hurried call at the Palm Nurseries of Ed. Rust, at South Pasadena, some interesting things were noted. Among the trees and shrubs the crepe myrtles were at their best and flowering finely. These beautiful shrubs ought to be much more planted. There are large numbers of magnolias, live oaks and ficuses that are worth going a long way to see, while the stock of vines of all classes is large and in first-rate condition. Rhynchospermum jasminoides is an old but most valuable vine for this section and the stock here is large. Palms of all kinds in magnificent order, ornamentals and conifers suited to southern California are grown in immense numbers. The Skinner system of irrigation keeps everything growing in fine shape. In the greenhouses stock of every kind is in grand order, but special mention should be made of some elegant large plants of Adiantum Croweanum in 12-inch and 14-inch pans. They are magnificent stock in every way. In the nursery Erica blanda is one of the most attractive of plants, and there are many new roses on trial which I should like to mention did space permit. Irish Elegance is the only one I will name, this being one of the most lovely single roses I have ever seen. It should be in everybody's garden. The fine condition of the whole place reflects the greatest credit on all concerned.

By a slip of the pen, Edendale was mentioned as the site of the new place of Tassano Bros. This should have been Glendale, as all local men will know, but I make the correction for the benefit of those not knowing the locality. Tony Tassano is still working hard at planting.

M. E. H. Keffel is still at the Diamond Hill Nursery, as he has not yet secured a suitable location for his new venture. He will probably stay the winter now.

Out-of-town trade continues brisk with S. Murata. He has now about twenty-five growers, Japanese and American, on his list of shippers and expects to tie up to others this fall.

Business keeps up well with Freeman-Lewis. The partners have been taking short week-end vacations at Catalina, taking turn and turn about. Alterations are in prospect at the store, including a new balcony and a rearrangement of the lighting system.

Dieterich & Turner are busy with the nursery end of the trade. Grand Cocos plumosa and other palms are being lifted and balled for removal and the quality of the soil here is shown in the magnificent growth made in so short a time.

The H. N. Gage Co. is busy planting bulbs and other stock at the new place at Montebello.

H. Reeve Darling, of the Hayward Floral Co., is to be complimented on being the first retailer in this town to take ample space in the best local papers for advertising his business. This should pay him handsomely and every cent spent will benefit not only him but the trade in general. The public has to be educated to enter a flower store without fear of being held up. Mr. Darling is making a specialty of the dollar box, a good beginning.

H. R. Richards.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Another quiet week has passed. Trade is almost nil; hardly anything but an occasional funeral to relieve the dull monotony of the flower business. Stock is all too plentiful and even the best of flowers are almost unsalable. Asters are arriving in good shape, but the garbage can is the chief outlet. We are all looking for a revival in business after next week, when the schools open and people return to town.

Various Notes.

J. A. Balmer, of Cle Elum, was in town this week, looking over the rose situation, but that is not to say that he is the least scared at the prospect of competition in this locality. He reports his rose stock in fine shape. He is again aspiring to legislative honors, being a candidate for representative for the nineteenth district. The flower trade here wishes him every success. His brother, who was long in Seattle, now superintendent of parks in Vancouver, B. C., is at present in Boston.

Hollywood Gardens had a nifty display of orchids in the store windows this week. Cattleya Dowiana is a beauty.

Miss Annie J. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., returned this week after an extended stay in the east.

John and Mrs. Woelz were in Tacoma recently, partaking of the hospitality of Henry Benthien. T. W.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The weather is rather warm, but not unpleasant. The townspeople are gradually sifting back into town and everything promises well for an early resumption of business. There has been a decided scarcity of carnations for the last week. The growers are changing their houses, and it will be a month at least before a full crop will be in evidence again. The price has consequently risen quite a bit and the present rates are at least fifty per cent more than those of three weeks ago. Good roses are likewise scarce, and as for fancy stock there seems to be none to be had. Asters are a little past their prime and

It Pays

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade?
Is it moving as it should?
No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash., June 26, 1912.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

The transient rate for space is $1 per inch per insertion. Those who have stock to offer all or a considerable part of the year around should write for contract rates.

the growers have added a little to the cheap prices we have enjoyed for the last month. Mums are daily becoming more plentiful, but there is little outside stock as yet. Dahlias and gladioli are beginning to show that they are near the end of their season. Amaryllis of the earlier sorts are over.

Various Notes.

Edward Brown, of Brown Bros. & Co., of Vancouver, B. C., is in town for a short trip.

John McCullough, formerly with the Trumbull Seed Co., is at present residing in Berkeley.

Alex. Mann, Jr., formerly with the Eddy Street Florists, is representing several New York houses in other lines of trade.

A visit to the nurseries of H. Hayashi & Co., at Elmhurst, shows a splendid lot of nephrolepis and cyclamens in line for the holiday trade. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business has shown an increase over the last report. The cool weather has caused many of the town folks to return to the city, hence the demand. Carnations of the new stock are coming in slowly but of good length. Roses are about equal to demand. Lady Hillingdon and Killarney Queen are proving the popular roses of the season. American Beauties are making wonderful growth, with a goodly crop of flowers. Francis King and America gladioli have been unusually fine this year, and have proven money-makers. Asters, dahlias and general perennial stock are plentiful. Valley is scarce, with little demand.

Various Notes.

About forty members of the Florists' Club journeyed out to the Oregon Nursery at Orenco, August 27, in response to an invitation from the company. The grounds were inspected in detail, and later the guests repaired to a spacious arbor erected on the lawn, where refreshments were served.

H. Plath, of San Francisco, is in town, en route home from the Chicago convention.

Wm. Sherwen, Carlisle, England, was a recent visitor.

The grand opening of the new department store of the Lipman Wolfe Co., September 3, called for an unusual quantity of flowers and decorations. The work was distributed among all the florists, basket arrangements being the prevailing features.

Chas. Hughes, Camas, Wash., was in town, securing greenhouse material for the enlargement of his place.

Joe Kioda, Milwaukee, is sending in the first violets of the season.

Wm. Jackson, Stevenson, Wash., was a week end caller.

John Bubach, representing Lion & Co., New York, is calling on the trade.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

IT is estimated that the apple crop in Idaho is 127 per cent larger than in 1911.

THE Birmingham Nurseries Co., Birmingham, Ala., has increased its capital to $30,000.

THE Prudential Nursery Co., Kalamazoo, Mich., has been incorporated with $20,000 capital.

THE Secretary of Agriculture already is moving, under the new quarantine law, to prohibit the importation of the plants which may bring in the white pine blister rust. The call for a hearing under the law was sent out August 28 and is printed on page 63 of this issue.

THE Chase Bros. Nursery Co., which employs a large number of agents, conducts an annual selling contest for six weeks in the summer as a means of stimulating business in the dull season. This year the largest volume of summer sales was obtained by W. D. Bush, of West Indiana, Pa.

THE nurserymen at Aalsmeer, Holland, are rejoicing that a railroad has been opened connecting their town with Haarlem and the world. Boskoop, where immense exports of nursery stock originate, still has to depend on road or canal, but is trying to obtain a railway connection with Gouda.

IT was in 1897 that W. J. Hughes and A. J. Baumhoefener started in the nursery business at Williamsburg, Ia. In 1908 they removed to Cedar Rapids and since have done business as the Cedar Rapids Nursery Co. They grow a general line of stock for the retail trade, using thirty acres of land, and are doing a nice business.

CHILI GIVES US COLD DEAL.

According to an official communication to the Department of Agriculture, American exports of nursery stock to Chili must be restricted hereafter to entry at two ports, and will all be subject to examination for plant disease. The importation of rooted grape vines and peach trees is forbidden by Chili. Other stock will be examined and if found infected by diseases or parasites dangerous to plant life the exporter must either have it disinfected or remove it. The expense of the examination, to be made by the Chilian Bureau of Plant Pathology, must be borne by interested parties. The two ports of entry for nursery stock will be Valparaiso and Talcahuano. The Cordillera ports are to be closed.

SOUTHERN NURSERYMEN MEET.

Officers Elected.

At the closing session of the fourteenth annual convention of the Southern Nurserymen's Association, at Augusta, Ga., August 28 to 30, the following officers were elected:

President—O. Joe Howard, Greensboro, N. C.

Vice-President—R. C. Chase, Huntsville, Ala.

Secretary-Treasurer — A. I. Smith, Knoxville, Tenn.

A Successful Gathering.

The convention brought together members of the trade representing fourteen states, as well as a number from outside the south who have business interests there. The visitors had a hot time, but both enjoyable and profitable. President E. W. Chattin said in his address: "We have seen the nursery business develop and grow from a small, disorganized side-line industry to a large, well-organized and well-systematized commercial business," and that was the keynote of the meeting. The program was as follows:

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28, 1912.

Morning Session 11:00 o'clock.

Invocation, by Rev. Howard D. Cree.

Address of Welcome, by Hon. Thomas Barrett, Jr., Mayor of Augusta.

Response, by Harvey M. Templeton, Winchester, Tenn.

Afternoon Session 3:00 o'clock.

President's Address, by E. W. Chattin, Winchester, Tenn.

"Wherein Lie the Largest Returns for Southern Nurserymen?" discussed by R. C. Berckmans, Augusta, Ga.; C. F. Barber, McClenny, Fla., and Harry Nicholson, Winchester, Tenn.

Address, by Prof. E. L. Worsham, Atlanta, Ga.

Report of secretary and treasurer.

Appointing of auditing committee, committee on place of meeting and officers, committee on resolutions.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 29, 1912.

Morning Session 10:00 o'clock.

Report on Grading of Trees as Adopted by the American Association of Nurserymen, by W. A. Easterly, Cleveland, Tenn.

"Rotation of Nursery and Other Crops for Retaining the Fertility of the Soil," by W. T. Hood, Richmond, Va., and James Fraser, Huntsville, Ala.

"Possibilities of Trade in the Central and South American States and Mediums for Obtaining It," by T. J. O'Hara, Huntsville, Ala., and O. Joe Howard, Pomona, N. C.

The P. J. Berckmans Co. is to be credited with having provided two delightful features. An evening reception was given at the Country Club and the following afternoon the guests were taken for an automobile ride through the city and to the Berckmans nursery. After going over a large part of the nursery, the visitors were carried to the home of R. C. Berckmans, where light refreshments were served.

THE QUARANTINES BEGIN.

The "Act to regulate the importation of nursery stock and other plants and plant products," published in full in The Review for August 1, passed by Congress in the latter days of the recent session and approved by the President August 20, already is beginning to bear upon the nursery and seed trades. The Secretary of Agriculture has announced that he proposes to exercise the power vested in him by the new law and declare a quarantine against the Territory of Hawaii in the case of the Mediterranean fruit fly, and also to prohibit the importation from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Italy of four species of pines and their horticultural forms liable to introduce the white pine blister rust, namely, white pine (Pinus Strobus), western white pine (Pinus monticola), sugar pine (Pinus Lambertiana) and stone or Cembrian pine (Pinus Cembra). The importation of potatoes that may bring the potato wart disease from Newfoundland and the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, and from Great Britain, including England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland, and from Germany and Austria-Hungary will also be prohibited.

In compliance with the law, however, he will, before issuing his quarantine proclamations, give public hearings to persons interested who may appear in person or by attorney, or submit their views in writing. Announcement is hereby made that these hearings will be held as follows: On the white pine blister rust, September 16; on the Mediterranean fruit fly, September 18; on the potato wart disease, September 20. All hearings will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at 10 o'clock a. m.

PLANTING EVERGREENS.

Next to spring, the last part of August and first half of September is the best time of the year for transplanting hardy evergreens. If the ground is moist and the plants can be lifted with a good ball, the chances of failure are few. Dig liberal holes for all trees and shrubs. Do not allow the sun and wind to dry the roots. Water well before filling the hole up. Be sure to firm the compost thoroughly about the roots. Mulch with old manure, decaying leaves or some similar material, and, to make doubly sure of success, where circumstances will allow it, give the newly moved plants a hosing over occasionally. Dryness at the root is fatal to all evergreens. It is the dryness, and not the winter cold, which is annually responsible for so many deaths. Planting, carefully done at this season, of any of the coniferæ, rhododendrons, kalmias, andromedas and the evergreen euonymus, will give satisfactory results. The ideal planting days are cloudy, cool and showery. Avoid moving trees when hot, drying winds prevail.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Stock in general is more plentiful and better at the present time than it has been all summer. Quantities of good roses, considering the season of the year, are to be seen in the store windows and the ice-boxes are fairly well filled with choice stock. Prices range from $4 to $8 per hundred. Particularly noticeable in this market are the new crop American Beauty roses, which are fine and of a sufficient quantity to supply all demands. Asters are at their height and are being sold without price; that is, a small quantity moves and the balance reaches the waste barrel. Carnations from the new plants are in fairly good shape and have ready sale at $2 per hundred. There has been a better supply of all varieties of flowers this summer than in any previous year. Up to the present time there has been plenty of good valley, orchids and gardenias to satisfy all calls. Business as a whole has been better also, due in part to the fact that Congress remained longer in session than it usually does.

Various Notes.

That automobiles are finding favor with the local florists is emphasized by the many new cars being delivered to the trade. Among the recent purchasers of machines is W. B. Shaw, of Brookland, D. C., who grows water lilies for the trade.

The birth records of Washington were materially increased during the month of August by numerous arrivals in the families of the local trade. Smiles may be seen on many faces, including those of L. E. Hoover, of Mayberry & Hoover, whose family has been increased by a 9-pound son. Hardy Pritchard is father to a girl, as is E. L. Bauers, with the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., and Henry Gottenkenny is walking the floor with a boy. Messrs. Pritchard and Gottenkenny are employed at the store of Gude Bros. Co.

Washington's vacation list at the present time is exceptionally heavy, especially in some of the larger stores. At Kramer's Mrs. Florence DuBois has just returned from a long stay in New York and Atlantic City and Mrs. Kaufman from a visit to relatives and friends in Parkersburg, Va. Their return makes possible the going of Mrs. Morse to Ridge, Md., for three weeks; Mrs. Ruppert to New York and Newport, and A. S. Sawyer to Atlantic City. Miss Myrtine Atwell, manager of the Ninth Street store, is spending several weeks at Colonial Beach.

O. A. C. Oehmler soon returns from his stay of a month at his cottage at Colonial Beach. Hardy Pritchard has gone to join his wife in St. Matthews, Ky., and Walter Hawley is now in Maine. Lewis Hohman and Harry Kennelly are also out of the city.

E. C. Mayberry has returned from a fishing trip with W. W. Kimmel, Harry Lewis and others near Blackistone's Island, and Mr. and Mrs. Z. D. Blackistone have returned from a stay at Arundel-on-the-Bay. C. L. L.

Manchester, Mass.—Axel Magnuson is building a greenhouse, 30x100, besides an office and boiler room, on the large field which he recently purchased on Vine street. He expects to remove his business, eventually, from Bridge street to this new location.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The market conditions present the same story that has been repeated so often at this time of the year. It is the old story of an almost crowded market, which has a few lines that clean up quickly or run short.

To this last class belong white asters. The good, both large and small, sold easily, and it is the opinion of many that more of them of quality could have been used to advantage by the wholesalers. The other colors of asters do not sell so well.

In the category of those flowers that are cleaning up regularly are lilies and Beauties. The former sell quickly because the supply is limited. The latter are in large supply and sell because they are good.

The flowers that crowd the market are the tea roses; i. e., the short ones, and gladioli. The offerings of each are, as a whole, of good quality, but only the fancy ones sell. The few carnations offered are picked up at low prices.

The offerings of green goods of all kinds make the supply of that line ample.

Various Notes.

Club meeting on Monday, September 9, at the Flower Market. Important papers on the geranium price question will be read and discussed and the knockers will be there in force and will have their hammers out for the bowlers.

The interior appointments and decorations of the Hill-Heller store were completed last week. They present a pretty appearance for a store of this kind. The opening day was Tuesday, September 3.

C. J. Jones recently spent some time at Culver, Ind.

Ernst Mack has been sending rubrum lilies of a high quality to the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange.

Recently the boys at Geo. Tromey's presented Harry Moormann with an overgrown cigar on his birthday anniversary. The card stated that it was "with heartiest congratulations and best wishes upon your '62nd' birthday, from the Wrecking Crew."

Milton Alexander, a stubble field adorning his upper lip, called on his trade in this city at the close of last week.

Utica, N. Y.—Frank McGowan has taken out a permit for the rebuilding of one of his greenhouses on Oswego street.

Albany, N. Y.—Fifty-four members and friends of the Albany Florists' Club enjoyed the sixth annual clambake of the organization at the Abbey, August 24. The bake was opened promptly at 5 o'clock and was up to the standard given in past years. The club will hold its next meeting at the establishment of F. A. Danker, Thursday evening, September 5.

SCRANTON, PA.

The Scranton Florists' Club has been having its meetings at the homes and establishments of the different members through the city, but one meeting was held at a little town on the Susquehanna river, known as Falls. Wm. MacDonald, of Moosic, and T. B. McClintock, of Scranton, have built a commodious double cottage at Falls, and invited the club to enjoy the sports on and around the placid waters of the beautiful Susquehanna. The scenery at this point is most charming. The mountains on the east side of the river tower into the skies, while on the west side, where the cottages are, the farming country rises to the foothills of the mountains. The invitation tendered by these gentlemen extended from Friday until Monday, so that the florists could suit their own time in coming and stay the whole time if they could leave their business that long. This not only included the florists of Scranton, but all of this vocation up and down the Lackawanna and Wyoming valleys. We noted the Wades, from Carbondale; Dillons, from Bloomsburg; MacDonalds, from Moosic; Webster, from Avoca, and a large majority of the florists of this city were in attendance.

B. E. Cokely, who summers on the hills of Susquehanna county, has returned to the city and his brother John is out on his trip through the states. John Cokely's wife and children have been spending the summer in her native state, Indiana. G. R. C.

DETROIT.

Louis Rush and George Hampton, Jr., returned from the Chicago convention in Mr. Rush's touring car in less than a day and one-half. This is making pretty fast time.

Among those who visited this city after the S. A. F. convention were a party from San Francisco: Julius Eppstein and wife, Angelo J. Rossi and Dan MacRorie.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Fetters spent several days, including Labor day, at Maysday lake, fishing and motoring.

Wm. Dilger was in Detroit on Labor day, visiting his friends in the trade.

Robert Smith, chauffeur for E. A. Fetters, has been away on a fishing trip.

All the young ladies on Schroeter's staff decided to get married about the same time, three leaving within a few weeks to prepare for their honeymoons.

J. F. Sullivan is seldom seen downtown lately. He is putting in all his time at the greenhouses and the plant never looked so well. H. S.

Sioux City, Ia.—A swiftly organized bucket brigade extinguished a fire in the Bishop greenhouses, Twenty-eighth and Davis streets, after damage to the amount of about $500 had been done, in the early hours of August 26. The greenhouses are not insured. Mrs. James B. Bishop is the owner. Mr. Bishop died last spring.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green.

These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to Look Us Up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

The Grand Trunk Locomotive Shops Horticultural Society has just held its eighth annual exhibition and it has proved most successful. The exhibits of dahlias, asters, sweet peas, pansies and gladioli were better than any yet held in the state. Twenty-five named varieties of Spencer sweet peas were counted on the stands. Fifty-eight varieties of dahlias, all named, were to be judged, while asters on stems thirty-four inches long and some measuring five and three-quarters inches were prize winners. The vases of the latest types of gladioli numbered among the hundreds and show just what kind of interest the members are taking in real amateur horticulture.

A great deal of the success of this society is attributed to its good patron, Matt Ullenbrouch, florist at Port Huron, Mich., who in season and out is continually instructing, encouraging and aiding the 287 members to grow the best. He came to Battle Creek and personally arranged the exhibits and converted the Grand Trunk Locomotive Shops Auditorium into a veritable tropical fairyland for the exhibitors and their visitors.

The judges were Chas. Miller, superintendent of the Postum Cereal grounds; Phil Hokenstrom, manager of S. W. Coggan's greenhouse, and Chas. Vanderwort, superintendent of grounds at Kellogg's sanitarium.

Canton, Ill.—George W. Jacobs, who attended the S. A. F. convention at Chicago, returned home full of enthusiasm as to the future of his business, which is growing steadily.

DENVER.

The Market.

The great quantity of outdoor flowers has had a depressing effect on business the last month. Asters, dahlias, gladioli, etc., have grown unusually well in the garden this summer, and consequently have lessened the demand for greenhouse stock.

Roses and carnations are plentiful, and a good many are sold, but at such low prices as to be almost given away. Green goods are scarce, and fern leaves are in demand, although there are none in the market as yet.

Various Notes.

The Bargain Flower Store, conducted by W. D. Black, has moved from 1455 Broadway to 235 Fifteenth street.

John Berry, for several years in charge of the Monument Valley park, in Colorado Springs, has been appointed superintendent of the City park of Denver. Mr. Berry is well fitted for the position, and his friends have no doubt that he will be most successful in his new work.

Thurston H. U. Smith has just completed another greenhouse, which will add 500 square feet of glass to his range.

C. J. Hurt has a new automobile. It is surprising how quickly the florists are catching the auto fever.

The new store at 1515 Champa street is the Colorado Seed & Nursery Co., wholesale and retail dealers in seeds, bulbs, plants, cut flowers, nursery stock, etc. The members of the firm are all former employees of the Barteldes Seed Co., and are C. R. Root, Wm. Horlacher, and Lewis Malone.

Visitors: J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; Ralph Richey, Albia, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Angermueller, St. Louis, Mo.; C. A. Espelin, T. J. Warren, Fort Collins; Frank Sauerwald, Colorado Springs; Mrs. B. C. Robinson, La Junta; P. O. Hansen, Greeley, Colo.

Geraniums

VINCENT and Geraniums, Geraniums and Vincent, are two names that have become so intrinsically linked together in the minds of a great majority of the florists that to think of one is to think of the other, and the reason for this is that they have learned by actual experience that it is to their advantage for them to secure their raw material from a specialist in that line, the same as other manufacturers do, rather than to go to the expense of carrying a lot of surplus stock of their own. It is our business to produce the raw material in the shape of 2-inch stock, so that the finisher can get what he wants when he has the room and is ready for it.

Last season we had to disappoint a great many of our customers who failed to get their order in on time. Although we have doubled our stock this year, we would suggest that you place your order early.

1200 BOSTONS, 1000 WHITMANI COMPACTA (new). This stock is from the bench and is in fine condition. The Whitmani compacta is simply a greatly improved Whitmani—it does not revert back to the Boston leaf as the old Whitmani does, and while in appearance it is much like the old variety, the fronds have a stiffer mid-rib and make a handsomer plant. Stock is 5 and 6-in. size, being mostly 6-in. As these plants now occupy my propagation benches, they must be closed out early. I can quote you bargain prices. A. A. Gannett, Geneva, N. Y.

Greenhouse Heating.

A READER in Cleveland sent, August 20, a heating inquiry that was incomplete, the second sheet, with part of the question and the signature, being missing. If he will repeat his question in full it will be answered with pleasure.

THE smokeless coals are in demand. Fuel dealers report the greenhouse trade taking hold strongly now that September has arrived. The forehanded growers bought several weeks ago and saved considerable money. Summer is the time to buy coal, winter the time to buy ice.

THE worst car famine in United States history may result this fall, according to figures in a bulletin warning issued August 30, by W. A. Garrett, chairman of the Association of Western Railways. Better get your coal in P. D. Q.; the car shortage is expected to develop in October.

CANNOT HEAT THE HOUSES.

We have three connected greenhouses, each 25x100, heated with hot water. The outside wall on the east is seven feet high, double boarded; on the west it is three and one-half feet high, double boarded. We have a Kroeschell boiler, about twelve feet long, with two 4-inch flows. There are six 1¼-inch pipes under each 6-foot bench. These are put in from a header running to the far end of the greenhouse, where they are connected to returns by return bends. We should have a temperature of 56 degrees, with zero outside, but the former greenhouse attendants tell me that the temperature gets down to freezing at the farther end from the boiler, in spite of hard firing. Our location is southern Pennsylvania. What do you think is the trouble and how would you remedy it? E. W. B.

To maintain a temperature of 56 degrees, a greenhouse 25x100 feet should have 900 square feet of radiation, and for three such houses a boiler should have a rating of 3,000 feet and upward.

The number of benches is not given, but is probably three, making a total of eighteen 1¼-inch pipes for each house, since there are six pipes under each bench. The trouble evidently comes from trying to use 1¼-inch pipe for both flows and returns. It would have been best to put in three 2½-inch flow pipes and eleven 2-inch returns in each house. If the present piping is to be utilized, I would advise the use of three 2½-inch flows overhead, connecting them with fifteen of the 1¼-inch pipes, to be used as returns. Unless the return pipes are above the top of the boiler, attach a generator.

A Special Discount of 5%

will be given every greenhouse buyer who will place an order of 3 cars or more for any greenhouse grade of coal before Sept. 15. The condition of the coal market and the serious car shortage do not warrant this offer, but it is made merely to add a few more florist customers to our already big list. You can save $2.50 per car on this offer. Coal to be delivered by Oct. 30. We handle all grades of bituminous coals. What do you want? Let your order come.

TOO MUCH PIPE IN RETURNS.

We have a Furman sectional steam boiler, rated at 4,350 square feet, heating the following houses, in this New York climate:

No. 1, even-span, 28x117; walls 5 feet, with 2 feet of glass; ridge, 12 feet.
No. 2, ¾-span, 14x125; ridge 9 feet; north wall 4 feet; south wall 3 feet.
No. 3, ¾-span, 22x125; ridge 13 feet; north wall 8 feet; south wall 4 feet.
No. 4, lean-to, 8x125; north wall 3 feet.
No. 5, even-span, 20x100; ridge 13 feet; west wall 4 feet; east wall 7 feet.
No. 6, extension to No. 5, contains 5 runs of 2-inch pipe, each 25 feet long.
No. 7, lean-to, 8x60; east wall 3½ feet.

You will notice the arrangement and size of the steam mains on the enclosed sketch; also the temperature desired. The returns are all 2-inch pipe. We run from zero to five pounds of pressure on the boiler and the supply pipes are too small, so that the difference in pressure between that in the boiler and that at the extreme end of the mains is so great that the water backs up in the steam returns, lowering the water line in the boiler and causing it to jump up and down from three to four inches in the water gauge, also sometimes emptying the water entirely from the boiler when it is pushed in extremely cold weather.

The boiler is set at least two and one-half feet below the lowest returns. Kindly tell us the proper size of pipe to use, beginning at the boiler, for mains, and the number of 2-inch lines for the houses. The boiler has three 5-inch outlets and the same for returns. H. W. B.

The principal trouble probably comes from using 2-inch pipe, instead of 1¼-inch pipe, for the coils. In house No. 1, 28x117, there are now one 2½-inch flow and ten 2-inch returns. The flow is amply large and six 2-inch returns would be enough to furnish 50 degrees.

In house No. 2, 14x125, the flow is 2-inch, with six 2-inch returns. Three returns should suffice.

For house No. 3, 22x125, and house No. 4, 8x125, one 3-inch flow is used. There are ten returns in No. 3 and three in No. 4. The flow is larger than is required, and in house No. 3 six returns would answer for 60 degrees, while two returns would be enough for house No. 4, where 45 degrees is required.

In house No. 5 there are mains sufficient to supply one-half the required radiation. Four returns should be enough for 60 degrees.

BERWIND'S NEW RIVER COAL
BEST FOR GREENHOUSES

Mention The Review when you write.

House No. 6, 20x25, has five runs of 2-inch pipe. This should give 60 degrees.

In house No. 7, three returns would be enough to furnish 60 degrees. No change is required in the size of the mains, which are now 3-inch.

Reducing the number of returns may correct the difficulty, but it would be better to use 1¼-inch returns, as follows: House No. 1, nine; No. 2, four or five; No. 3, nine; No. 4, three; No. 5, six; No. 6, seven; No. 7, five.

HEAT FOR SASH HOUSES.

In the fall of 1911 you gave me, in The Review, a piping plan for my greenhouse, in southwestern Ohio, and the plan gave good satisfaction. I now wish to add 6-foot sash houses to each side. The walls will be about five feet high, with two feet of glass in each wall. The south house will be used for propagating purposes, and will require a high temperature. The north house, for bulbs, etc., will need a low temperature. Will you kindly give a piping plan for both houses? Can the pipes in the present house be tapped to supply the additions, or should they be piped independently? E. S.

For the warm house, to be used for propagating, if to be heated by means of hot water, run a 2½-inch flow pipe on the back wall, and put in four 2-inch returns so that they will be covered by six inches of sand, and two others on the outer wall, just under the glass. If for steam, use one 1½-inch flow, with three 1¼-inch returns, in the sand, and one on the outside wall. In the cool house use one 2-inch flow and two 2-inch returns for hot water; for steam, use a 1½-inch flow and one return of the same size.

As to the practicability of tapping the pipes in the present house to supply the additions, it is difficult to speak positively, but there is little doubt that it will be safest to connect with the boiler.

SIZE OF BOILER.

Will you be good enough to advise me as to the size of boiler required to heat four greenhouses, each 30x120, with a height of five feet to the eaves and twelve feet to the ridge? There are two feet of glass in the side walls all around. My location is in northern Wisconsin. A. M.

The letter does not state what temperatures are desired, or whether steam or hot water will be used.

For an average temperature of 60 degrees, it will be advisable to use a boiler with a rating of 7,500 square feet for hot water and 4,000 square feet for steam. A fifty horse-power steam boiler should maintain a satisfactory temperature, if one 2½-inch overhead flow and sixteen 1¼-inch returns are used in the rose-houses and ten or twelve 1¼-inch returns for carnations. For hot water, use five 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve to sixteen 2-inch returns, according to the temperature desired.

PIPING IN SOUTHERN ONTARIO.

Will you kindly inform us as to the best method of heating our greenhouse with hot water? We are located in southern Ontario, in the same latitude as Buffalo, N. Y. The house is 17x130. The walls are of concrete and four feet high to the eaves. The height to the ridge is nine feet. The side benches are raised and the center bench is solid. The top of the boiler can be placed one foot below the returns. Should the expansion tank be on the returns or on the highest point of the system? The boiler is of the upright type, for hot water. The grate is circular and is twenty-four inches in diameter. Is this boiler large enough to heat the house? We want a temperature of 55 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. W. B.

So much depends upon the efficiency of a boiler that, without knowing something more than the diameter of the grate, it is not safe to be positive regarding how much glass a certain boiler will heat. As a rule, to heat a house requiring 900 square feet of radiation, which is the amount needed in the present instance, it is well to use a boiler with a grate at least twenty-five inches in diameter, and twenty-six inches would be found to be more economical. As the grate of the boiler in question is only twenty-four inches

WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

Cast Iron Boilers Break Down

Have fired greenhouse boilers since 1885, both steam and hot water. Yours suits me the best. I have two of your boilers. At one time I had two cast iron boilers working together, and during a blizzard the rear section of one boiler gave out and the front section of the other sprung a crack a couple of months later. No more cast iron boilers for me. I came very close to freezing out in both instances.

G. M. THOST, DeSoto, Mo.

Would Not Have a Cast Iron Boiler for a Gift Since I Tried the Kroeschell

The No. 6 Boiler is heating my entire range. I believe it would take care of 18,000 square feet. Have no trouble to keep temperatures of 55 to 60 degrees—I could keep 80 to 90 degrees if I had to. During the coldest nights I fired at 9, 12 and 3 o'clock. The boiler has given entire satisfaction—in fact, more than I expected. Previous to this I had a cast iron boiler, but would not have it for a gift now. If I know of any one needing a good boiler, I shall recommend the Kroeschell Boiler above all.

JOHN LIETZAU, Geneva, Ill.

The Kroeschell Does Our Work Easier than Cast Iron Boilers and saves 20% to 25% Fuel

The No. 4 Boiler is heating 10,000 square feet of glass—it would take care of 13,000 square feet easily. Have no trouble to keep temperature of 50 and 60 degrees in coldest weather. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. We had two cast iron boilers, one rated for 1,200 feet of pipe and one rated for 1,500 feet. These boilers never did the work at their best and when the greenhouses were new. According to our experience with yours, we will save twenty to twenty-five per cent of fuel. HILD BROS., Lake Forest, Ill.

Try the Kroeschell First—It's Ahead of Them All

I have had eight or ten other types of boilers. The Kroeschell is the best I have ever used. Your boiler heats the water very quickly—almost as fast as steam.

Yours very truly, in diameter, it will have to be quite efficient and will require careful attention in order to maintain a temperature of 55 degrees in weather 10 degrees below zero.

To provide the necessary heating surface, use three 2½-inch flow pipes and eight 2-inch returns, connecting flows and returns with the boiler by means of 4-inch mains. Attach the expansion pipe to the highest point of the flow.

A GREENHOUSE AND COTTAGE.

I wish to ask your advice concerning a heating proposition. I have been growing violets for several years in a house which is divided into two sections. The first room is 11x22, the other 14x24. The average height is perhaps eight feet. I have been heating the house with stoves, with natural gas for fuel, but, as there is a threatened scarcity of gas, I should like to put in a hot water heating system. Would you kindly tell me what size of boiler and what arrangement of pipes would be best for my use? I had hoped to heat a cottage, attached to the east end of the greenhouse, with the same plant, but do not know that it would be feasible, as the cottage is a rambling structure, stretching some fifty-three feet from library to woodshed. My location is northeastern Kansas. S. E. R.

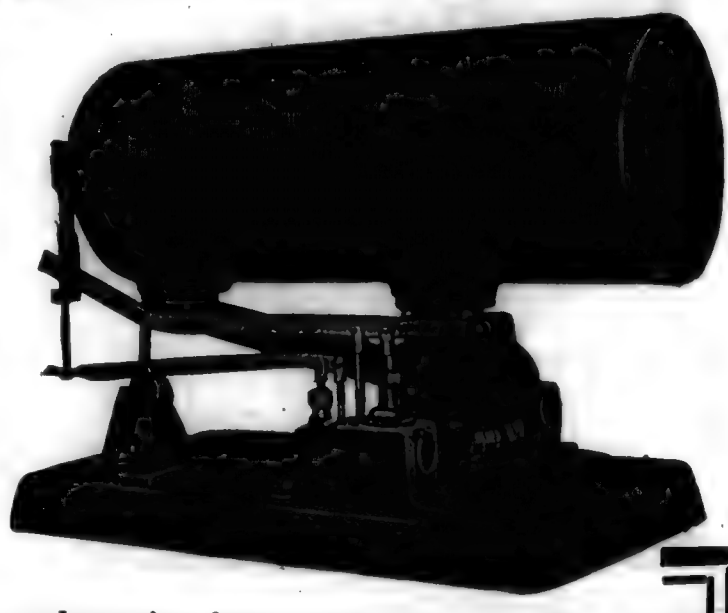
To heat the greenhouse, run a 2½-inch flow pipe overhead to the end farthest from the heater and carry back five 2-inch returns. One of these could be on the south wall and the others in the walks or under the benches. If the heater can be placed in the cellar, so that it will be below the floor of the cottage, there should be no difficulty about heating both the cottage and the greenhouse.

The greenhouse will require a heater rated for 250 feet of radiation. For the cottage use one foot of radiation for each square foot in the windows, plus one foot for each ten feet of exposed wall and plus one foot for each 100 cubic feet of space.

ONE HOUSE AND A LEAN-TO.

Kindly let me know how to pipe my house and lean-to in order to heat them satisfactorily in this Long Island climate. The house is five feet six inches high to the eaves and eleven feet nine inches to the ridge. It runs east and west. The north wall contains two feet of glass; the rest of the wall is concrete and seven inches thick. The house has a pitch of three feet toward the boiler pit and is twenty feet one inch wide. There is also a lean-to at the south side of the house. The lean-to is the same length as the house and is seven feet nine inches wide. There is no partition between the house and the lean-to. The south wall of the lean-to is six feet high to the eaves. The upper half of this wall consists of glass ventilators; the lower half is concrete and is below the level of the outside ground.



The boiler pit is four feet six inches below the floor level of the house. I have a Henderson Thermo No. 619 boiler and plenty of 2-inch pipe. Kindly let me know whether this boiler is large enough to heat the house to 60 degrees in zero weather. J. T. L.

The letter does not state the length of the house. Hence it is not possible to determine exactly the size of boiler required, but if the house is 100 feet long, a boiler with a rating of 1,500 square feet of radiation should be used, and it should be proportionately larger or smaller if the house is more or less than 100 feet in length. It is also im-

NAME OF PLANT.

I am enclosing a specimen of a plant seen in an old graveyard in this vicinity, in southern Pennsylvania. It grew in a shady place and seemed to me to resemble the myrtle, but, as I had not seen a variegated leaf on myrtle, I was at a loss to know what it might be. I shall be pleased to have any information concerning it that you may be able to give me. K. P. & T. F.

The plant is Vinca minor variegata, a variegated form of the common periwinkle or creeping myrtle. The treatment and propagation are just the same as for the green form. C. W.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

The month of August is gone and there has been nothing for us to brag about except the wonderful variety of weather we have had. This has been a record-breaking year for storms, much of the time too cold for comfort. The retail shops all have a better appearance than in former years. All look clean and fresh, with handsome palms and ferns and with really choice flowers to handle, so that the old objection to summer, that there is nothing fit to sell, is not true and you can go the rounds and not see an objectionable vase of flowers. The day of tuberoses, balsams and petunias is gone.

The cut flower growers are about planted up and are putting the finishing touches on their houses and cleaning up, after which they will have gentlemen's jobs the balance of the year. Their stock generally looks better than usual, especially carnation plants from the field, which are fine this season. There will be about the same quantity of stock grown in this section as last year, as there has not been much new glass erected for cut flowers.

The wholesale houses all seem to be well filled with fine stock, but there is not much life to the selling end. The only item that has been short was asters and these are now piling up, with the other stock, and there seems to be no way to make them move.

Various Notes.

The people returning from the convention kept dropping in all last week and all say it was a fine convention, satisfactory in every way except for selling goods, as most of the visitors were there to see and enjoy themselves and were too busy to buy.

The mayor of Wheeling died and it took thirteen automobiles to haul the designs to the cemetery.

Every florist in this city is converted to the use of the automobile for delivery, G. P. Weaklen & Co. having purchased a car.

Ray Page, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., who recently married, is now established in his new home at Beachwood and ready to receive his friends.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has just received a large Wicks tubular boiler, which is being installed against an emergency. An extra pumping and water system has been put in for the same reason.

SUCCESSIVE LETTUCE CROPS.

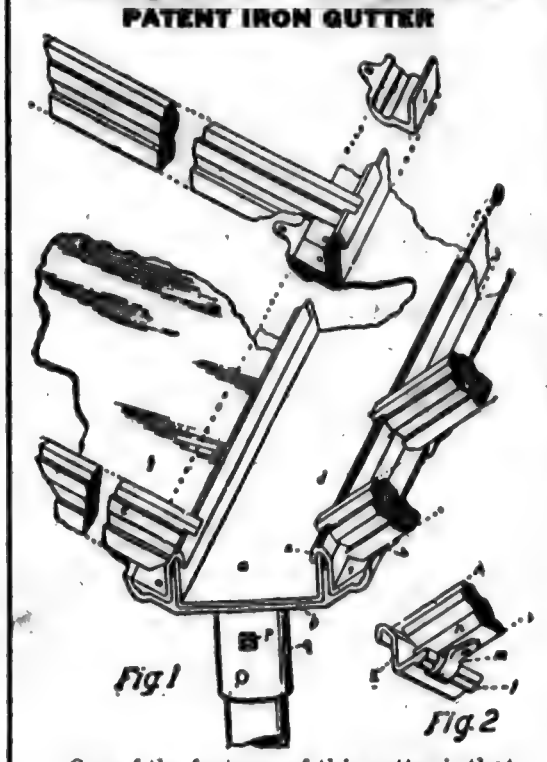
I have a few questions I should like to ask as to the growing of lettuce in this Pennsylvania climate. I want to fill one house with lettuce and I never before grew any in the greenhouse. I want to grow Grand Rapids and have the first crop ready in November, after freezing weather, so I can take out every other row and have the large ones ready for Thanksgiving. I sowed seed outside August 5; this is up about one inch. I sowed another batch August 15; this is up nicely, about one-quarter inch. August 20 I sowed seed inside; it is just coming up.

Which of the sowings shall I transplant to the greenhouse benches, to have it at the time desired? How close should it be placed? In watering, should the leaves be wet or should all the watering be done between the plants? For transplanting for the second crop, after taking off the first, when should the seed be sown?

G. R. S.

The lot you sowed August 20, if healthy, will probably be best for your November crop. You might use part of the sowing of August 15 for earlier cutting, but I think the last lot planted will be best and will not bring in outside insects to bother later. Transplant the seedlings into the beds—6x8 inches apart for large lettuce, 6x6 if for cutting as soon as ready.

You need not be especially particular about the watering now, but later it will be necessary to water only between the rows and not wet the foliage much when the leaves get thick, so they will not dry off. The second batch of seed should be sown six weeks after the first lot. When up, transplant to flats or, better, a bench, placing them about one or one and one-half inches apart, to remain until the first crop is cut off. Fumigate regularly for green fly.



H. G.

Pierre, S. D.—On the night of August 29 a cloudburst over the hills surrounding Pierre caused a flood that spread over the lower part of the city, filling basements and lower stories of many homes. The Capitol Greenhouse, H. D. Enoe proprietor, were heavy losers, having every plant outside destroyed and most of the plants in the greenhouse under five feet of water. This establishment had a heavy loss by fire last winter, making this a doubly disastrous calamity.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade is good enough, considering the season of the year and the temperature. It has been about 90 degrees in the shade for the last ten days. The greater percentage of the trade has been funeral work. Stock has been plentiful, some good asters, gladioli, lilies and others being obtainable.

Various Notes.

Baur & Steinkamp completed their new house this week. This firm has been sending in some first-class asters of late.

Henry Rieman intends to put in an automobile for delivery service soon.

Mrs. E. A. Nelson has been spending ten days in Brown county.

Geo. A. Heinl, of Toledo, stopped in Indianapolis while on an auto trip to Terre Haute.

Milton Alexander, with Lion & Co., spent a day with the trade last week.

Bertermann Bros. Co. will put a new Premier delivery automobile into service soon.

John Heidenreich has been cutting some good Easter lilies of late.

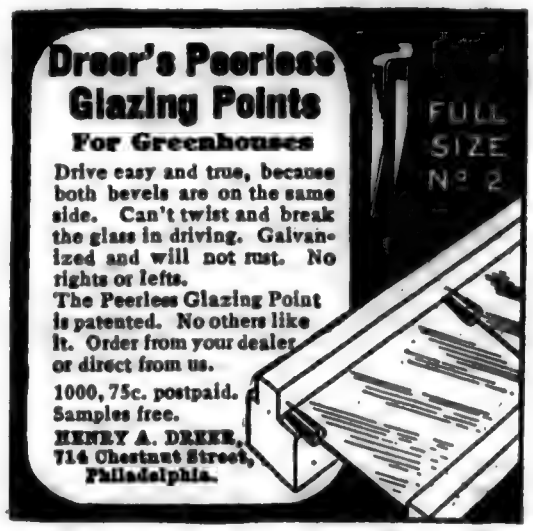
A Very Handy "RED DEVIL" TOOL for the Hothouse Man to Have



"Red Devil" No. 3-in-1

When your glass needs replacing and you try to cut with "the just as good" kinds and your breakage is something "fierce," just remember that "Red Devil" Glass Cutters have hand honed steel wheels that actually cut clear, clean and sharp. Don't take any other brand but "Red Devil"—your hardware man has them—just insist on "Red Devil" No. 3-in-1, shown herewith. If you can't get it, send us his name and 6 2-cent stamps and one sample only will be sent you, postpaid. The 3 wheels will cut any kind of glass.

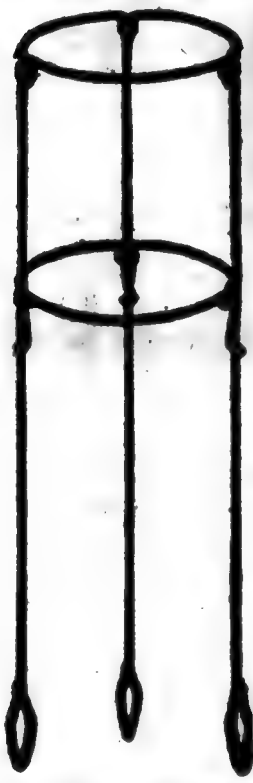
A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.



The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

MANCHESTER, MASS.

The annual summer show of the North Shore Horticultural Society was held August 21 and 22 in a large tent on the R. C. Winthrop estate. The entire proceeds of the show were given to the Beverly hospital.

For the best dinner table decoration for six covers, Mrs. H. L. Higginson was first, and Mrs. W. D. Denegre second. T. Harrison Stiles, gardener for Frank P. Frazier, had the best fifteen varieties of hardy perennials, capturing a cup. Mrs. A. T. Croll had the finest collection of dahlias. For collection of gladioli, Eric Wetterlow, gardener for Mrs. Lester Leland, led, followed by Frank P. Frazier. William Swan took the Connolly special for the finest collection of fruit. He had superb melons in eight varieties, grapes, peaches, nectarines, etc., all of highest quality, also awarded a cultural certificate.

The silver cup for twenty varieties of vegetables was won by Eric Wetterlow, with a splendid collection. He also won in the onion class, with immense Ailsa Craig. The Stumpp & Walter silver cup for vegetables was secured by Mrs. Geo. Wigglesworth. For collection of annuals Mrs. Geo. Von L. Meyer and F. P. Frazier won the Fottler-Fiske-Rawson specials. Alfred E. Parsons, gardener to H. S. Grew, showed a grand group of flowering and foliage plants. Eric Wetterlow also showed a splendid lot, which won many prizes.

Other prize winners included Mrs. R. D. Evans, F. Chapman, gardener for Mrs. E. C. Swift; Mrs. S. P. Bremer, Mrs. M. G. Horton, James Salter, gardener for Mrs. Philip Dexter; Mrs. Wm. Hooper, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Mrs. W. B. Walker and Mrs. Boylston Beal. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. received a certificate of merit for a table of Lilium Henryi, and the Mount Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me., a similar award for a splendid collection of hardy perennials.

W. N. Craig.

St. Augustine, Fla.—Among the contemplated developments in floriculture in this locality is a scheme which will shortly be put into effect by P. Robson, the florist in New Augustine. He is preparing a tract of land upon which he will establish a jonquil farm. He has ordered a shipment of 10,000 jonquil bulbs from Holland.

Aphine

The Insecticide that kills plant lice of every species

THE RECOGNIZED STANDARD INSECTICIDE

Not a cure-all, but a specific remedy for all sap-sucking insects infesting plant life, such as green black, white fly, red spider, thrips, mealy bug brown and white scale.

Universally endorsed by commercial growers and professional gardeners of reputation as the insecticide that does excel all.

$2.50 per gallon; $1.00 per quart.

FUNGINE

"Actions speak louder than words." So we are willing to let the merit of this comparatively new fungicide speak for itself. We claim it has no equal for mildew, rust and wilt attacking flower, fruit or vegetable plants. A trial will convince you.

$2.00 per gallon; 75c per quart.

Aphine and Fungine are spraying materials, readily soluble in water, used at various strengths, according to directions on each can. They are equally effective in the greenhouse and in the garden.

Floral Artist,

Boston, Sept. 6, 1912.

Wertheimer Bros.,
565 Broadway,
New York.

Gentlemen:

It is gratifying for me to write and inform you that the ribbon purchased last Saturday arrived in due time, and helped to complete one of the most artistic and best decorations ever done in Boston.

William Filene Sons Company, on last Tuesday, opened one of Boston's finest department stores, and gave me a contract to decorate the entire show windows, fifty-two in number, as handsome and artistic as possible, sparing no expense on same. The idea was carried out in American Beauty roses and gladioli in yellow and coral shades. The latter two flowers being very hard to match, the Ribbon and Sprinkle-proof Chiffon secured from you could not have been more perfect. The entire work constituted eight thousand American Beauties, mostly long-stemmed, and the same number of gladioli, upon which I used six thousand yards of Sprinkle-proof Chiffon and several thousand yards of Ribbon.

I was, indeed, very glad when I found that I could get what I wanted on so short a notice from you.

Again thanking you, I remain,

Very truly yours,

Sidney Hoffman

5-inch pots, ready September 15.....$50 per 100
6-inch pots for specimen stock for Christmas.....$9 per dozen

We also have a very large stock of Light Begonia Lorraine (Edwin Lonsdale) sport at the same prices. This variety we consider far superior to the original type, it making a finer shaped plant as well as holding the flowers much better, while the color is a little lighter than that of the original Lorraine.

THE NEW CLEAR SCARLET BEDDING GERANIUM "HELEN MICHELL"

The best commercial novelty for 1913 (name registered with S. A. F. & O. H.). Seedling cross Jean Viaud and Alphonse Ricard. This sterling novelty will be introduced jointly by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and ourselves and the plants will all be grown by us at our place at Norwood, where we will be pleased to have you call. You will find that this Geranium has all the good points claimed for it. "Helen Michell" is semidouble, of the clearest possible shade of scarlet, is early in bloom and produces these continuously during the season. It grows compact medium dwarf, with lustrous green foliage, and throws up gigantic flower heads continuously; we claim it to have the largest flower heads of any of the bedding geraniums. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is a common occurrence that a single 4-inch pot plant shows 4 fully open gigantic flower heads, several half open, and more in bud. We are booking orders that will be filled in rotation from January, 1913.

2¼-inch pots.....$2.50 per dozen; $15 per 100; $125 per 1000

RETAIL FLOWER STORE MANAGEMENT

THE USE OF SMILAX.

When a florist is called upon to decorate for a large dinner, he frequently finds that the table arrangement provides for the seating of the guests on one side only, the table usually being set around three sides of the room, sometimes in the shape of a horseshoe. With such an order the florist's task is not only to make the top of the table attractive with flowers, but to properly decorate the unused side.

The accompanying illustration shows an especially good treatment. This was an immense horseshoe-shaped table and the unused side was garlanded with smilax. The illustration shows how exactly alike all the loops in the garland were, and it is a more important feature than the flowers themselves, which consisted principally of roses in baskets. This was the work of John Mangel, Chicago, for a wedding dinner with fifty-two guests.

AN INTELLIGENCE DEPARTMENT.

In Every Retail Store.

One of the most crying needs of many an otherwise well managed retail store is what may, for want of a better title, be termed the intelligence department. Customers, especially in the smaller cities and towns, have a habit of asking for many things not usually offered prominently, though they are easily obtained and may be disposed of at a good profit. The ignorance of many clerks and even proprietors of retail stores, as to what kinds of plants are grown in nearby nursery or greenhouse establishments, is a culpable neglect of one of the greatest aids to business.

I am positive that, were one to strike an average, the proprietor of a retail store does not visit as often as once in two years the growers who supply him. The wide-awake ones do, and reap the benefit by always knowing what the various growers have to offer and where they can procure anything asked for and not usually kept in stock.

Visiting the Grower.

There may still be some dull days in store for us before the season opens up. Now, which is the better way to spend one of these dull days? Some proprietors we know, and also some clerks, stay around the store and grumble and kick about bad times, with occasional visits to a nearby bar to flog their drooping spirits. Others take a trip to the greenhouses or nurseries whence comes their stock, find out what is likely to be in the market and have a "crack" with the grower on topics of interest to both. Figure out which will be the better prepared the next day, should anything of the kind mentioned above materialize. In probably no other business is the proprietor so little informed as to what is going on as is the retail florist; yet, as a rule, no one is more disposed to talk about his wares or more anxious to give information than the grower of cut flowers and plants.

An Unseen Opportunity.

A plantsman complained to me one day that his customers, the retailers, were behind the times and would handle nothing but Boston ferns and coleuses. At the same time the plantsman pointed to some neat, well grown plants of Ficus pandurata and Aralia Japonica he was anxious to turn into money. A few days later I was speaking to a retailer who had a draughty window that he wanted to fix up, in which the ordinary plants would not last. Fortunately, I was able to act as his intelligence department and a call over the telephone did the business. It may be said that it was the grower's place to inform the retailer as to what he had and what useful plants they were for the purpose. This may be so, but it is equally or even more important for the retailer to know of these things, and this is where it pays the proprietors to visit, or allow their clerks to visit, the growing places around their town.

Where the Faker Steps In.

There are many other directions in which an intelligence department may be useful. In almost every town of any size there are street fakers and doorway florists handling staple lines of cut flowers. A grower may, for instance, be long on carnations and his regular customers are not able, in the ordinary course of trade, to handle his cut. Mr. Street Faker happens along with the money in his hand, and in a few hours is offering those carnations at less money than the retailer paid his grower. Let the seeker after information find out where these cheap flowers can be obtained and possibly a bargain sale may be arranged between the grower and retailer that will be to the advantage of both, besides keeping the flowers out of the hands of the faker.

In New Neighborhoods.

In towns that are developing rapidly the intelligence officer should familiarize himself with the progress being made in new neighborhoods, and possibly he may see a chance to profitably dispose of a few business cards or any advertising matter his firm uses. He may get acquainted with undertakers, hotel keepers and others in these new districts, where the business has not been pushed.

In short, a man can hardly spend a quarter in street car riding or on gasoline for his motorcycle without picking up something that will be useful in his or his employer's business. He must keep his eyes open, of course, and his gray matter working; otherwise he is out of his element in the intelligence department.

DESIGNS FOR CRITICISM.

W., New York, sends a design for criticism, but carefully conceals his identity. In case this meets his eye it is to remind him that, so far as we know, it is the universal practice to drop into the waste basket all anonymous matters. Names never are used by The Review without permission, but are necessary if a communication is to receive attention.

SOME LOCAL ADVERTISING.

As an instance of the way in which the enterprising and watchful florist takes advantage of public events in order to win publicity for his own business, an advertising scheme recently carried into effect by John E. Stelzig, of Stelzig's Floral Store, Bellefontaine, O., is well worth describing. Knowing that horse racing would be a conspicuous feature at the approaching county fair, Mr. Stelzig resolved to offer a horseshoe of flowers to the winner of the free-for-all pace, and he resolved at the same time to arrange all the details of his plan in such a way as to secure as much advertising as possible in return for his expenditure. Of course the outlay for the flowers was considerable, for a cheap or poorly made design would have been a poor advertisement, but Mr. Stelzig is satisfied with the results of his investment.

Mr. Stelzig's account of the working out of the plan is as follows: "About a week before the county fair opened, the newspapers of the city made announcement, in their local columns, that we were to give a floral horseshoe to the winner of the free-for-all pace. We then got an advertisement placed in the official racing score book. On the day of the race, at 1 p. m., amid a crowd of between 2,500 and 3,000 people, the horseshoe was hung up on the outside of the judges' stand and an announcement was made to the effect that the horseshoe was made and donated by us, and would be given to the winner of the free-for-all pace. After the race had been won, a similar announcement was made, the shoe was placed upon the neck of the horse and photographs were taken. On the following day the daily newspapers, in their reports of the races, made prominent mention of the horseshoe and its donors.

"The horseshoe we presented was forty-six inches in height and twenty-eight inches wide. It was filled with shell-pink asters, bright red gladioli, carnations and roses. A bouquet of Radiance roses, tied with a large bow of pink ribbon, served to fasten to the lower right-hand corner of the shoe a card that bore the following inscription: 'This floral horseshoe was designed and made at Stelzig's Floral Store and presented to the winner of the free-for-all pace at the Logan County Fair, held in Bellefontaine, O., August 23, 1912. May good luck go with you.'"

A Decoration of Fireproofed Oak Foliage.

FIREPROOF DECORATIONS.

A few years ago, when the insurance companies and fire authorities put a ban on decorations of wild smilax and other inflammables in stores and other places where fire risk is great, it was feared that much harm had been done the florists and dealers in florists' supplies, who had been furnishing these decorations. But the opposite has proved to be the case; the business has been bettered.

As an instance: The accompanying illustration shows an autumn decoration just put up at Hammond, Ind. Had it not been for the fire and insurance regulations, the decorator could have procured all the dry, inflammable oak foliage he wanted, for Hammond is in an oak forest. But to avoid the fire risk he had to apply to the dealer in florists' supplies, whose oak foliage is fireproofed. Practically all the florists' natural decorative materials may now be had preserved and fireproofed. And in the process the color is made almost anything the florist wants.

The prepared oak sprays were first brought conspicuously to the attention of the trade last season by one of the Chicago dealers in florists' supplies, who sold several tons of them. This season they are being widely used, and florists all over the country are finding them a source of profit. They go a long way, as twenty-five pounds sufficed for the heavily filled window shown, and the stock can be used over and over again, and worked up in designs when no longer in request for decorations.

AT McCONNELL'S.

In the comparatively new store of Alexander McConnell, at Fifth avenue and Forty-ninth street in New York, there has been installed the display case shown in the accompanying illustration. It is ten feet long, three feet four inches deep and nine feet six inches high, the ice chamber being overhead. The exterior, front and ends, is of white enamel. The doors and ends of the case, which stands on a marble base, are of two thicknesses of glass, the outer being beveled plate. The back and top of the display compartment are beveled plate mirrors. The floor is vitrified tile, the shelves of plate glass. The case was built to order for Mr. McConnell to harmonize with the rest of the fixtures, by the McCray Refrigerator Co., 368 Lake street, Kendallville, Ind.

REFERRING TO THE NEW PEST.

Mr. Gelven is not alone in his trouble with the pest he has written you about, his letter appearing on page 12 of the issue for September 5. We have the same pest here on our place, and it is the worst we have ever had to contend with, in the insect line.

It was first noticed on asters planted inside. The asters were planted in April, and about the time they were showing color the caterpillars appeared in such numbers that they stripped every leaf from the plants. We pulled up the asters and burned them. They spread from the asters to almost everything on the place, and seemed to be especially fond of mums. These are the only plants that they are doing any damage to at present.

We have used Slug Shot, arsenate of lead and several other insecticides without any noticeable effect.

The moth resembles the moth of the leaf roller, except that the wings are straight out from the body, instead of turning down. The caterpillar looks like the leaf roller and the cocoon looks the same. The egg is laid singly and looks like a small white glazed spot on the under side of the leaf.

If there is anyone who has been troubled with this pest and has found a way to destroy it we would certainly like to hear from him.

G. R. Oliver.

PANSY FOLIAGE SPOTTING.

Enclosed find two pansy leaves affected with black leaf spot of some sort. It started about three weeks ago in the old bed and is now affecting the young seedlings nearby. I have tried Bordeaux mixture, but it does not seem to affect it. Do you know of any remedy? As I have nearly 100,000 seedlings, I think I had better pull up the old plants. C. A. P.

This spotting sometimes occurs during spells of damp and warm weather, such as we often experience during the dogdays. Bordeaux mixture is the best remedy you could have applied. It will not check the spot at once, but if used once a week it will be of much benefit. The spotting is not likely to be serious. A change in weather conditions will probably help the plants to grow out of the trouble. If the old plants are badly affected, pull them up, as they have now fulfilled their usefulness.

C. W.

USE ARSENATE OF LEAD.

Will you please give me a good remedy to destroy worms on willow, birch and maple trees and holly plants? I generally pick them off as soon as I notice them, but large trees do not go as well as the little ones. What do you think about spraying those trees with some kind of insect destroyer, and can I use it also on fruit trees as well?

N. T.

To destroy worms on maples, willows and other trees, apply arsenate of lead, four pounds to fifty gallons of water, using a fine, misty spray nozzle. Apply when foliage is dry, and aim to cover the lower rather than the upper parts of leaves. This poison adheres practically the whole season and can be applied to apples, pears, cherries, currants and gooseberries at the above strength. For plums and peaches, two pounds to fifty gallons will suffice. Arsenate of lead can be applied to practically every tree and shrub, and there is practically no danger of damaging the foliage.

C. W.

FLY ON PANSIES.

Last spring for a few days some apparently small fly gnawed my pansy blooms full of fine, round holes and then disappeared. I tried to capture one of the insects, but they eluded me. Can you tell me what it is and the remedy?

C. A. P.

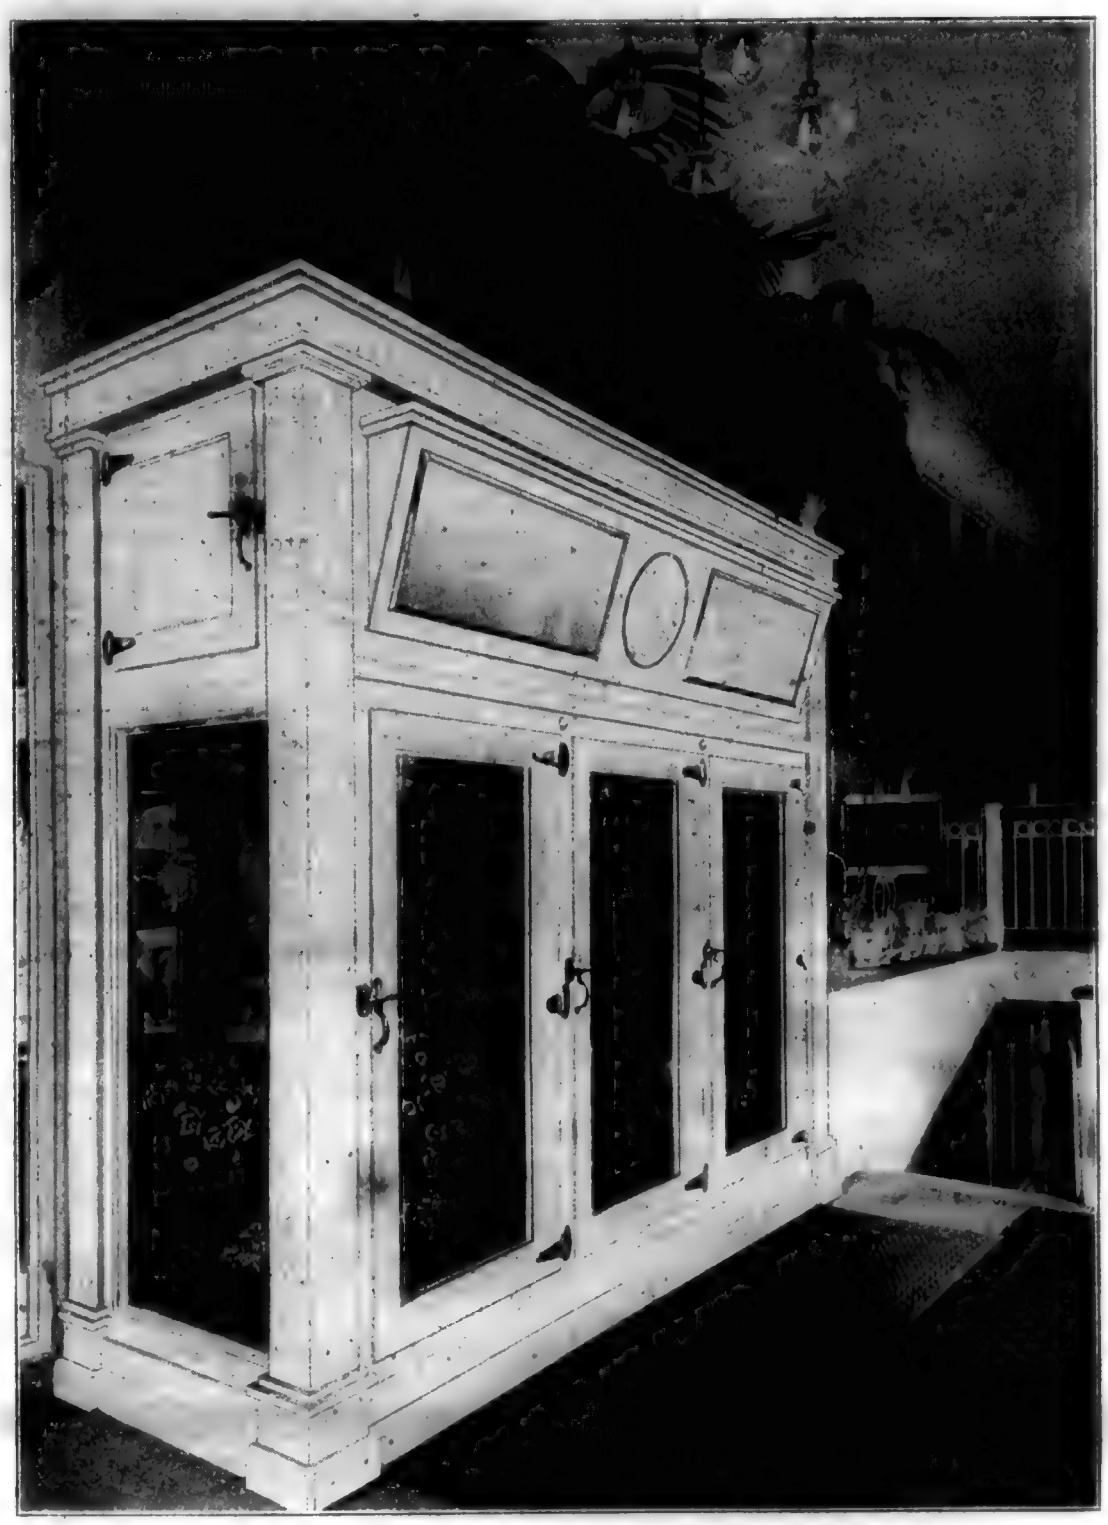
A small black flea attacks the flowers with the first really warm days in spring. The same pest attacks foliage on potatoes, tomatoes, egg plants, etc. Tobacco water, tobacco dust or a soap spray will clear it out.

C. W.

OTAHEITE ORANGES.

I would be greatly pleased if you would give me some information about Otaheite oranges. Where and how are they raised? How are they sold and is there a good demand for them? How are Otaheite oranges and other plants that are not hardy transported during severe winter?

K. T.



Texas.

The so-called Otaheite orange is a dwarf form of the common orange, adaptable to pot culture, and fruiting, as it does, when less than a foot in height, it proves quite popular commercially in America, the plant selling particularly well at Christmas, at which time thousands are disposed of each year.

Otaheite oranges, while they may be raised from seed, are usually budded in small pots under glass, a close atmosphere being required until the scions unite. They are grown under glass all the time in the northern states, where they meet with a large sale. In your balmy climate, which should be almost immune from frost, they would grow outdoors in all probability, but as the fruit, while decorative, is small and not of great value apart from the plant, it would be as pot plants that these oranges would pay you.

These and other plants not of a hardy nature are forwarded by express, long distances, sometimes thousands of miles, and arrive in excellent condition, provided they are heavily protected by paper and other coverings. Of course, shippers avoid sending tender plants during cold waves, selecting spells of mild weather for doing so.

A GREAT ENGLISH SHOW.

The largest provincial horticultural show in England is that held in Shrewsbury in August each year, under the auspices of the Shropshire Horticultural Society, founded in 1875. On this occasion there were nearly 3,000 entries, and records were established in several sections. Over $6,000 was awarded in cash prizes, in addition to trophies, cups and medals. In two days the show was visited by about 100,000 people and the gate money was over $25,000.

In addition to the display of flowers, there were military bands, balloon ascensions, horse-leaping and other attractions, considerably more than the visitor could give his attention to in one day. Among the large concourse I met T. Tyson, from Madison, N. Y., and Mr. Dunn, from New York district also.

Since the great international exhibition in London, W. A. Manda has made St. Albans his business quarters over here, and medals have been awarded to his exhibits at various shows. On this occasion he exhibited Polypodium Mandaianum, Dracæna Mandaiana, Asparagus elongatus and other plants, and another silver medal was added to his collection.

Montbretia Star of the East was one of the outstanding novelties of the show, and it is safe to predict that it will be in universal demand. It is the result of many years of selecting and hybridizing on the part of H. O. Davison, a private gardener. It has a large, deep yellow flower, suffused orange, from four to five inches across, on branching stems a yard in height.

Another sensation was the true sacred lotus flower of the east, Nelumbium speciosum, imported from Egypt and staged by Felton & Sons, florists, London. Flowers of a pink hue, about eight inches across, were exhibited on stems seven feet long, with immense foliage also. They formed an interesting feature. Blooms are selling in London at 3 shillings, or about 75 cents, each.

Mr. Stelzig's account of the working out of the plan is as follows: "About a week before the county fair opened, the newspapers of the city made announcement, in their local columns, that we were to give a floral horseshoe to the winner of the free-for-all pace. We then got an advertisement placed in the official racing score book. On the day of the race, at 1 p. m., amid a crowd of between 2,500 and 3,000 people, the horseshoe was hung up on the outside of the judges' stand and an announcement was made to the effect that the horseshoe was made and donated by us, and would be given to the winner of the free-for-all pace. After the race had been won, a similar announcement was made, the shoe was placed upon the neck of the horse and photographs were taken. On the following day the daily newspapers, in their reports of the races, made prominent mention of the horseshoe and its donors.

"The horseshoe we presented was forty-six inches in height and twenty-eight inches wide. It was filled with shell-pink asters, bright red gladioli, carnations and roses. A bouquet of Radiance roses, tied with a large bow of pink ribbon, served to fasten to the lower right-hand corner of the shoe a card that bore the following inscription: 'This floral horseshoe was designed and made at Stelzig's Floral Store and presented to the winner of the free-for-all pace at the Logan County Fair, held in Bellefontaine, O., August 23, 1912. May good luck go with you.'"

A Decoration of Fireproofed Oak Foliage.

FIREPROOF DECORATIONS.

A few years ago, when the insurance companies and fire authorities put a ban on decorations of wild smilax and other inflammables in stores and other places where fire risk is great, it was feared that much harm had been done the florists and dealers in florists' supplies, who had been furnishing these decorations. But the opposite has proved to be the case; the business has been bettered.

As an instance: The accompanying illustration shows an autumn decoration just put up at Hammond, Ind. Had it not been for the fire and insurance regulations, the decorator could have procured all the dry, inflammable oak foliage he wanted, for Hammond is in an oak forest. But to avoid the fire risk he had to apply to the dealer in florists' supplies, whose oak foliage is fireproofed. Practically all the florists' natural decorative materials may now be had preserved and fireproofed. And in the process the color is made almost anything the florist wants.

The prepared oak sprays were first brought conspicuously to the attention of the trade last season by one of the Chicago dealers in florists' supplies, who sold several tons of them. This season they are being widely used, and florists all over the country are finding them a source of profit. They go a long way, as twenty-five pounds sufficed for the heavily filled window shown, and the stock can be used over and over again, and worked up in designs when no longer in request for decorations.

AT McCONNELL'S.

In the comparatively new store of Alexander McConnell, at Fifth avenue and Forty-ninth street in New York, there has been installed the display case shown in the accompanying illustration. It is ten feet long, three feet four inches deep and nine feet six inches high, the ice chamber being overhead. The exterior, front and ends, is of white enamel. The doors and ends of the case, which stands on a marble base, are of two thicknesses of glass, the outer being beveled plate. The back and top of the display compartment are beveled plate mirrors. The floor is vitrified tile, the shelves of plate glass. The case was built to order for Mr. McConnell to harmonize with the rest of the fixtures, by the McCray Refrigerator Co., 368 Lake street, Kendallville, Ind.

REFERRING TO THE NEW PEST

Mr. Gelven is not alone in his trouble with the pest he has written you about, his letter appearing on page 12 of the issue for September 5. We have the same pest here on our place and it is the worst we have ever had to contend with, in the insect line.

It was first noticed on asters planted inside. The asters were planted in April, and about the time they were showing color the caterpillars appeared in such numbers that they stripped every leaf from the plants. We pulled up the asters and burned them. They spread from the asters to almost everything on the place, and seemed to be especially fond of mums. These are the only plants that they are doing any damage to at present.

We have used Slug Shot, arsenate of lead and several other insecticides without any noticeable effect.

The moth resembles the moth of the leaf roller, except that the wings are straight out from the body, instead of turning down. The caterpillar looks like the leaf roller and the cocoon looks the same. The egg is laid singly and looks like a small white glazed spot on the under side of the leaf.

If there is anyone who has been troubled with this pest and has found a way to destroy it we would certainly like to hear from him.

G. R. Oliver.

PANSY FOLIAGE SPOTTING

Enclosed find two pansy leaves affected with black leaf spot of some sort. It started about three weeks ago in the old bed and is now affecting the young seedlings nearby. I have tried Bordeaux mixture, but it does not seem to affect it. Do you know of any remedy? As I have nearly 100,000 seedlings, I think I had better pull up the old plants. C. A. P.

This spotting sometimes occurs during spells of damp and warm weather, such as we often experience during the dogdays. Bordeaux mixture is the best remedy you could have applied. It will not check the spot at once, but if used once a week it will be of much benefit. The spotting is not likely to be serious. A change in weather conditions will probably help the plants to grow out of the trouble. If the old plants are badly affected, pull them up, as they have now fulfilled their usefulness.

USE ARSENATE OF LEAD.

Will you please give me a good remedy to destroy worms on willow, birch and maple trees and holly plants? I generally pick them off as soon as I notice them, but large trees do not go as well as the little ones. What do you think about spraying those trees with some kind of insect destroyer, and can I use it also on fruit trees as well?

N. T.

To destroy worms on maples, willows and other trees, apply arsenate of lead, four pounds to fifty gallons of water, using a fine, misty spray nozzle. Apply when foliage is dry, and aim to cover the lower rather than the upper parts of leaves. This poison adheres practically the whole season and can be applied to apples, pears, cherries, currants and gooseberries at the above strength. For plums and peaches, two pounds to fifty gallons will suffice. Arsenate of lead can be applied to practically every tree and shrub, and there is practically no danger of damaging the foliage.

C. W.

FLY ON PANSIES.

Last spring for a few days some apparently small fly gnawed my pansy blooms full of fine, round holes and then disappeared. I tried to capture one of the insects, but they eluded me. Can you tell me what it is and the remedy?

C. A. P.

A small black flea attacks the flowers with the first really warm days in spring. The same pest attacks foliage on potatoes, tomatoes, egg plants, etc. Tobacco water, tobacco dust or a soap spray will clear it out.

OTAHEITE ORANGES.

I would be greatly pleased if you would give me some information about Otaheite oranges. Where and how are they raised? How are they sold and is there a good demand for them? How are Otaheite oranges and other plants that are not hardy transported during severe winter?

K. T.

Texas.

The so-called Otaheite orange is a dwarf form of the common orange, adaptable to pot culture, and fruiting, as it does, when less than a foot in height, it proves quite popular commercially in America, the plant selling particularly well at Christmas, at which time thousands are disposed of each year.

Otaheite oranges, while they may be raised from seed, are usually budded in small pots under glass, a close atmosphere being required until the scions unite. They are grown under glass all the time in the northern states, where they meet with a large sale. In your balmy climate, which should be almost immune from frost, they would grow outdoors in all probability, but as the fruit, while decorative, is small and not of great value apart from the plant, it would be as pot plants that these oranges would pay you.

These and other plants not of a hardy nature are forwarded by express, long distances, sometimes thousands of miles, and arrive in excellent condition, provided they are heavily protected by paper and other coverings. Of course, shippers avoid sending tender plants during cold waves, selecting spells of mild weather for doing so.

A GREAT ENGLISH SHOW.

The largest provincial horticultural show in England is that held in Shrewsbury in August each year, under the auspices of the Shropshire Horticultural Society, founded in 1875. On this occasion there were nearly 3,000 entries, and records were established in several sections. Over $6,000 was awarded in cash prizes, in addition to trophies, cups and medals. In two days the show was visited by about 100,000 people and the gate money was over $25,000.

In addition to the display of flowers, there were military bands, balloon ascensions, horse-leaping and other attractions, considerably more than the visitor could give his attention to in one day. Among the large concourse I met T. Tyson, from Madison, N. Y., and Mr. Dunn, from New York district also.

Since the great international exhibition in London, W. A. Manda has made St. Albans his business quarters over here, and medals have been awarded to his exhibits at various shows. On this occasion he exhibited Polypodium Mandaianum, Dracæna Mandaiana, Asparagus elongatus and other plants, and another silver medal was added to his collection.

Montbretia Star of the East was one of the outstanding novelties of the show, and it is safe to predict that it will be in universal demand. It is the result of many years of selecting and hybridizing on the part of H. O. Davison, a private gardener. It has a large, deep yellow flower, suffused orange, from four to five inches across, on branching stems a yard in height.

Another sensation was the true sacred lotus flower of the east, Nelumbium speciosum, imported from Egypt and staged by Felton & Sons, florists, London. Flowers of a pink hue, about eight inches across, were exhibited on stems seven feet long, with immense foliage also. They formed an interesting feature. Blooms are selling in London at 3 shillings, or about 75 cents, each.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

WHITE ANTS ON MUMS.

Can you tell us what to use for white ants at the roots of chrysanthemums? They work on the stems, just above the roots, and cause us much annoyance here, in central Tennessee. M. B.

The only remedy I know of for white ants on mum plants is tobacco dust, profusely applied to the foliage and soil. The white ants never trouble us in New Jersey, but I have heard that in certain sections of the south they are a great plague. The local agricultural station of Tennessee, if there is such a station, would possibly be best able to assist you to a solution of your difficulty. Chas. H. Totty.

YELLOW MUM FOLIAGE.

The foliage of my mums is of a yellowish color. The leaves look like wax. I have planted them in half soil and half manure, just as I have always grown them, and I have never seen them act like this before. Is there any way of growing them so as to restore them to their natural color? S. B.

I assume that the mums are yellow because they have been overwatered, and the only way to get them back into their proper condition will be to keep them on the dry side until they make successful new roots to enable the plants to get back their natural color. It would seem to me that half soil and half manure is too much of a percentage of manure for mums or any other plant, unless the manure is unusually old and well decomposed. I find that a proportion of one to four is plenty. Even where the fertilizer is well decomposed, the presence of so much humus in the soil causes the retention of too much moisture, which is the cause of the plants getting yellow and weakly.

Plants, like men, are more healthy when they have to work hard for a living, and it will always be found that when the mum has to spread its roots in all directions to look for moisture it is far more healthy than when bloated with fertilizer immediately at hand. Chas. H. Totty.

PARASITIC GROWTH ON MUM.

I am sending, under separate cover, a Jeanne Nonin mum plant with a certain growth on it, which seems to choke the plant or draw the life out of it. It is the only plant so affected and the growth comes from the plant as a fungous growth would. Please give us some information as to where it comes from or how it originated, as it does not grow out of the soil, but comes on the stem of the plant. Any information will be much appreciated. S. P.

The Jeanne Nonin mum was received. The growth on it, which is by no means a common one, is the dodder plant, botanically known as Cuscuta Gronovii. As you have only one such plant, you will not need to bother regarding it.

The dodder is an annual and is botanically described as a genus of degenerate, parasitic climbers. The seed of the plant is germinated in the ground, but as soon as the young plant finds an acceptable host on which it can twine, the root in the ground dies and the dodder attaches itself to the host plant, eventually throttling it, in most cases.

Varieties of dodder cause considerable trouble in some sections on clover and flax, but you will not need to bother much about your plants, as I have never seen more than an isolated dodder in a greenhouse.

Chas. H. Totty.

DISEASED WINTER CHEER.

I am sending you some Winter Cheer mum plants that are diseased. Will you please let me know what the disease is and a remedy for it? It started about a week ago. They were in fine growing condition until this disease took them. I have never sprayed them with anything except To-bak-ine and they have never been fertilized with anything. They were planted in new soil from the field. This is the only variety that is affected. I have 10,000 mum plants; the rest have had the same treatment and are looking fine. This is the first time I ever saw this and I am at a loss to know how to treat them. The disease looks like rust to me. If you will let me know at once, I shall appreciate the favor. J. K.

The Winter Cheer mum plants were practically rotten when I received them and I can not state whether they were affected with rust or not. There appeared to be traces of some fungoid disease, however, and I would suggest that if they are sprayed with a solution of sulphide of potassium (liver of sulphur), one ounce to two gallons of water, this will kill all the spores of fungoid diseases and keep the plants from getting any worse. The potassium can be procured at most drug stores, or you can use the new preparation, Fungine, which is a sulphur solution that is readily applied without the staining effect that the sulphide of potassium has. Chas. H. Totty.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Marguerites.

Old plants of marguerites in the field should now be lifted and potted. Cut around each carefully with a spade and be sure to have a moderate ball attached. Plants will no doubt live if the soil is all shaken away from the roots, but they will wilt severely and lose a large part of their foliage. With some soil adhering to the roots they will soon recover from the check of lifting, provided they are sprayed freely and given some shade from bright sunshine. These old plants are the best for early flowering and the small flowered sorts will give a good crop as early as Christmas. Plants carried over in pots should be shifted before they become too matted. They can be left outdoors for some time yet. If a sufficient batch of cuttings has not yet been taken, lose no time in getting them in, as there is now an abundant supply of good cuttings procurable. The variety Mrs. F. Sander should not be omitted. This has proved a satisfactory bedding plant the last summer and has also done well in window boxes. It is noted that while a great proportion of the flowers come single under glass, all are double when grown in the open ground.

Calceolarias.

The herbaceous calceolarias are not yet making much headway. They dislike hot weather, but as soon as we get really cool weather they seem to grow apace. There is no place equal to a coldframe for them for some time yet. Plunge the pots in coal ashes, shade from bright sunshine and give them an abundance of air night and day. Spray overhead so that the foliage will be dry at nightfall. In potting use a light but fairly rich compost. Three parts fibrous loam to one part old cow manure, with sand, broken charcoal and some soot added, will grow good plants. The soot is useful, as it helps to keep the soil clear of worms and makes the foliage a fine, rich green color.

Cuttings of the shrubby or rugosa section are now procurable in abundance and root readily in any ordinary cutting bench. These make desirable pot plants for spring trade. The flowers are smaller than those of the herbaceous type, but are tougher and come in useful some years for Memorial day trade. There are crosses between the herbaceous and rugosa section now to be had. C. Stewarti, yellow, is a good thing, with flowers as large as those of the herbaceous varieties.

Nerines.

The nerines, or Guernsey lilies, as they are popularly called, require similar treatment to the Belladonna lilies, and are now starting to send out their flower spikes. Unlike them, however, they flower most freely in comparatively small pots and pans, and while any repotting of overcrowded plants may be done now, it is unwise to pot too many in any one season, as they will flower but sparsely until the pots are a veritable mat of roots.

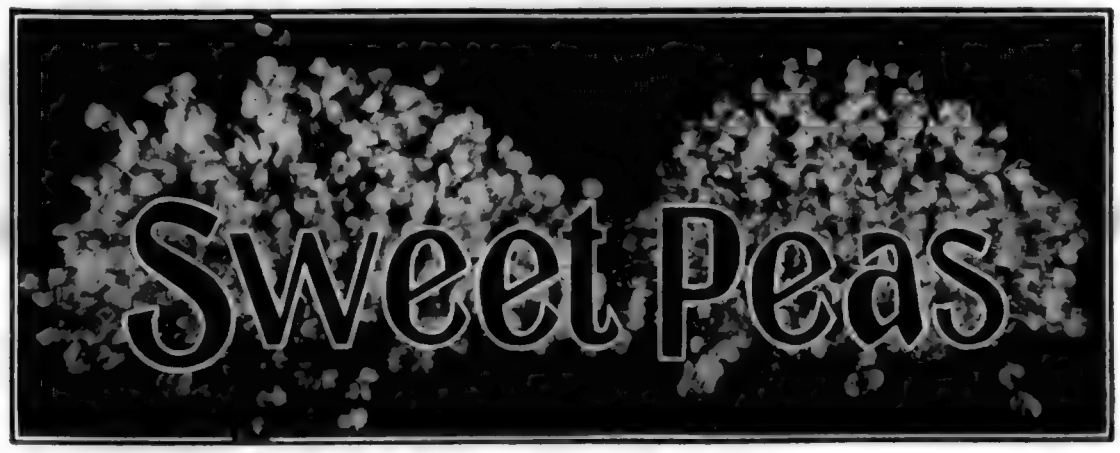
SEASONABLE NOTES.

Dendrobiums.

Some of the varieties which are deciduous when in flower now have pseudo-bulbs well made up. After the last leaf has appeared in the end of the bulb, a gradual reduction in the water supply should be made, and the plants removed from the close, warm, moist house, where they have been growing, to cooler, drier and airier quarters, where the bulbs can be well ripened. This applies to such sorts as the showy and popular D. Wardianum, also D. primulinum, D. chrysanthum, D. Devonianum and some others. D. nobile and its many varieties, also numerous hybrids, should be given a brisk, moist heat until their growths are completed, when they also should be moved to drier quarters, where they will be shielded from the direct sun. Do not cut off the water supply at once; this would be disastrous. Where young shoots or aërial growths appear, they can be cut off and placed in small pots or pans of sphagnum and fern fiber. Grown warm, they will soon become established.

D. Phalænopsis should now be coming into flower, and will continue to do so for some weeks. After the flowers start to open, it is better to give the plants somewhat cooler quarters, but it is not advisable to keep them lower than 60 degrees at night or the flowers will not open satisfactorily. This dendrobe succeeds best in pots or pans not over six inches in diameter. It dislikes large receptacles; the finest spikes we have seen, carrying fifteen to twenty or more flowers each, were always in small pans. The variety D. Phalænopsis Schrœderianum, now flowering, is better than the type, D. Phalænopsis, which, however, is useful, generally being in season for Christmas.

Cœlogyne Cristata.



This popular orchid is now in active growth, and the bulbs discernible at the base of the shoots. Here is a variety which resents anything in the nature of coddling; an ordinary greenhouse grows it well; better, in fact, than many special orchid houses. The plants now need an abundant water supply, and a spraying occasionally does them good. They should have a weak dose of cow manure once a week, as they are among the orchids which are much benefited by feeding. Some growers do not like to feed cattleyas and lælias, but when it comes to cœlogynes, thunias, phaius, cymbidiums, calanthes and cypripediums, the plants are much improved by a little judicious feeding.

Calanthes.

The bulbs of calanthes are now sufficiently advanced so that the flower spikes can in most cases be seen at their base. Give the plants a hot, moist house, and if you have any fire heat, turn on a little each evening, just sufficient to warm the pipes, for if there is one orchid more than another which really enjoys a smell of fire heat, even through midsummer, it is the calanthe. The finest cultivators of this magnificent midwinter flowering orchid attribute much of their success to using just a little artificial heat right through the growing season. The plants, being still in active growth, want abundant water supplies, and liquid manure should not be forgotten. Some growers spray their plants, but after this date this is better discontinued. The leaves should be kept green as long as possible, and late syringing is likely to develop leaf spot. The night temperature for calanthes is better held at 70 degrees. Of course they are often well grown cooler, but the best I ever saw were given this heat.

Cypripedium Insigne.

That good old orchid, Cypripedium insigne, can be well grown either warm or cold. The curious feature about it is that frequently when grown cool it will push its spikes up earlier than those given more warmth. It is still one of the most valuable and accommodating of all orchids. It can be held almost indefinitely, both on the plant and when cut, and in spite of its cheapness and comparative commonness, no other of the genus is in sight to displace it as a commercial flower. Any florist can grow C. insigne. It, in common with others of its family, has no drying off period, but needs a fairly liberal water supply the year around, and anyone with calls for funeral designs can make no mistake in growing a batch, and certainly any man able to grow carnations, roses or even geraniums can hardly fail with C. insigne. The cypripediums will still need a fairly heavy shading on the glass, and the bulk of them enjoy a moister, warmer and closer atmosphere than cattleyas or lælias.

TO SWEET PEA GROWERS.

J. J. Taubenhaus, assistant plant pathologist at Delaware College Agricultural Experiment Station, Newark, Del., sends The Review a list of forty-one questions and the following, with request for publication:

"For the last two years we have been working on the diseases of the sweet pea and their control. We are about to publish a preliminary bulletin and we are anxious to incorporate in our work the experience and observations of all the leading practical horticulturists and gardeners.

"In our investigations we have dealt with the following troubles: Damping off, similar to the damping off of lettuce and other plants; anthracnose, producing a wilt disease of the tips as well as a leaf and pod disease; streak, a dreaded disease in England now rapidly spreading in this country, characterized by a dark streak all along the center of the stem; mosaic disease, similar to the mosaic of tobacco and tomato; root diseases due to fungi and eel worms.

"Due credit will be given you in our report for any contribution which you will be so kind as to give us. The Department of Plant Pathology will highly appreciate and consider it a great favor if you will kindly fill out the lists of questions which we here include. An early reply will be duly appreciated, as it will save the unnecessary loss of time."

Unfortunately, there are limits on newspaper space, but Prof. Taubenhaus doubtless will send his question blanks direct to any who would like to answer them.

SWEET PEAS DROPPING BUDS.

What is the cause of outdoor sweet peas dropping their buds when about the size of a grain of wheat? The vines are strong and look healthy, but bloom sparsely, owing to the dropping of a great number of the buds, as stated. They are of the large Spencer type.

J. M.

Peculiar weather conditions, rather than soil or any cultural treatment, is usually responsible for sweet peas dropping their buds outdoors. I have seen it occur perhaps once in four or five years, and the strongest and most healthy looking vines are usually the most affected. Generally this dropping of buds

The plants, being still in active growth, want abundant water supplies, and liquid manure should not be forgotten. Some growers spray their plants, but after this date this is better discontinued. The leaves should be kept green as long as possible, and late syringing is likely to develop leaf spot. The night temperature for calanthes is better held at 70 degrees. Of course they are often well grown cooler, but the best I ever saw were given this heat.

Cypripedium Insigne.

That good old orchid, Cypripedium insigne, can be well grown either warm or cold. The curious feature about it is that frequently when grown cool it will push its spikes up earlier than those given more warmth. It is still one of the most valuable and accommodating of all orchids. It can be held almost indefinitely, both on the plant and when cut, and in spite of its cheapness and comparative commonness, no other of the genus is in sight to displace it as a commercial flower. Any florist can grow C. insigne. It, in common with others of its family, has no drying off period, but needs a fairly liberal water supply the year around, and anyone with calls for funeral designs can make no mistake in growing a batch, and certainly any man able to grow carnations, roses or even geraniums can hardly fail with C. insigne. The cypripediums will still need a fairly heavy shading on the glass, and the bulk of them enjoy a moister, warmer and closer atmosphere than cattleyas or lælias.

TO SWEET PEA GROWERS.

J. J. Taubenhaus, assistant plant pathologist at Delaware College Agricultural Experiment Station, Newark, Del., sends The Review a list of forty-one questions and the following, with request for publication:

"For the last two years we have been working on the diseases of the sweet pea and their control. We are about to publish a preliminary bulletin and we are anxious to incorporate in our work the experience and observations of all the leading practical horticulturists and gardeners.

"In our investigations we have dealt with the following troubles: Damping off, similar to the damping off of lettuce and other plants; anthracnose, producing a wilt disease of the tips as well as a leaf and pod disease; streak, a dreaded disease in England now rapidly spreading in this country, characterized by a dark streak all along the center of the stem; mosaic disease, similar to the mosaic of tobacco and tomato; root diseases due to fungi and eel worms.

"Due credit will be given you in our report for any contribution which you will be so kind as to give us. The Department of Plant Pathology will highly appreciate and consider it a great favor if you will kindly fill out the lists of questions which we here include. An early reply will be duly appreciated, as it will save the unnecessary loss of time."

Unfortunately, there are limits on newspaper space, but Prof. Taubenhaus doubtless will send his question blanks direct to any who would like to answer them.

SWEET PEAS DROPPING BUDS.

What is the cause of outdoor sweet peas dropping their buds when about the size of a grain of wheat? The vines are strong and look healthy, but bloom sparsely, owing to the dropping of a great number of the buds, as stated. They are of the large Spencer type.

J. M.

Peculiar weather conditions, rather than soil or any cultural treatment, is usually responsible for sweet peas dropping their buds outdoors. I have seen it occur perhaps once in four or five years, and the strongest and most healthy looking vines are usually the most affected. Generally this dropping of buds is worst early in the season, just when the flowering period opens, but the plants, so far as my observation has gone, soon grew out of it. Apart from peculiarities of the weather, such as a continuation of damp, murky conditions, the bud dropping might be caused by an excess of nitrogen in the soil, or too liberal applications of manure, water or fertilizer. I think this trouble will soon disappear if your plants are strong and healthy. C. W.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

A natural decrease in the aster shipments, and not quite so many gladioli, afford the first evidence of the waning summer season. The first respectable carnations of the new crop appeared September 7. Before the week closes this flower will take its legitimate place again in the procession. There is a great abundance of roses of every variety, including the new and popular kinds, which give early evidence of their claim for wide patronage this winter. American Beauties improve rapidly in supply and quality, and prices are steady. If such a thing as a surfeit of novelty be possible in New York, the new roses, especially the yellow shades, give that promise as the season advances. But the growing love for flowers here, and the later methods of influencing buyers, may offset this increasing supply and keep the ship on an even keel. The new crop grows more salable daily.

This week the dahlia demands more recognition. Most of the stock arriving is first-class, and many novelties of great size and beauty are offered. Asters and gladioli seem to have touched bottom, and the gladiolus novelties and late asters are in demand. Lilies and valley hold at recent quotations. Gardenias are here again. Chrysanthemums are arriving daily, revolutionary in their earliness. Plenty of tritoma and perfect hydrangeas give color and attractiveness to retail windows, backed by specimen ferns of a dozen popular varieties.

The scarcity of orchids during August lifted prices to abnormal figures. From now on there will be no complaint on this score, labiata, gigas and Hardyana are already here.

Club Meeting.

The opening meeting for the season, September 9, was most successful. The attendance was over 100. The visitors included President Vincent and President-elect Farquhar, also T. A. Vincent, of White Marsh; Dr. McDonald, of College Park, Md., and Mr. Smith, president of the Gardeners' Association of Lake Geneva, Wis., who is a guest of Harry A. Bunyard, and gave an interesting address.

This was gladiolus night and a grand display was staged by John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, and E. S. Miller, of Wading River. Chas. H. Totty showed Smith's Advance and several varieties of hardy mums, also his new hardy aster, Climax, and a vase of his new seedling pink rose, No. 1900.

Phil. Kessler reported a clean sheet for the outing committee. The treasurer's semiannual report showed a balance of over $4,300.

John Lange, of Englewood, N. J., was elected a member and George Asmus, of Chicago; Victor Morgan, Robert Maenner, James Newsham, John Moore and Clarence Slinn were proposed.

John B. Nugent made a public protest against the carelessness and discourtesy of ocean ship stewards, on the delivery of flowers to passengers. He was supported by Messrs. Totty and Berry, and Messrs. Nugent, Koehne and Warendorff were named as a special committee to endeavor to bring about better service.

W. R. Pierson gave a detailed report for the publicity committee. A local committee of twenty was then appointed, with Mr. Pierson as chairman, to comply with the resolution passed at the Chicago convention.

Committees were appointed to present resolutions on the deaths of W. R. Smith, Mrs. Alex Burns and a son of Alexander Hogg.

Mr. Donaldson referred to the proposed memorial to W. R. Smith, and Mr. Farquhar gave many interesting details of large projects in view.

Secretary Young gave an interesting address on the Chicago convention. He also criticised at length the reflections read at a recent meeting of the Philadelphia club. President Vincent also gave an eloquent address, and many others had interesting comments to make on the last convention, the next one and the intervening national show. The London show also was described by several and W. A. Manda exhibited the trophies he won there. It was nearly midnight when the meeting adjourned.

Various Notes.

At the Dongan Hills fair on Staten Island last week, Louis Schutz, of Flatbush, won first prize for his exhibit of palms and decorative plants. Other prize winners for plant and cut flower displays were B. De Meyer, of Westervelt; August Spies, of New Springville, and Fred McMasters. Fred Keibee was manager, and his big flag and also his pyramid of vegetables were much admired.

The Elliott Auction Co., Vesey street, opens its fall season Tuesday, September 17. The company will offer at a later date a choice lot of nursery stock from W. G. Eisele, of West End, N. J.

A. L. Rickards has joined the traveling force of the Stumpp & Walter Co.

W. C. Rickards has been appointed manager of the new seed and bulb department of the Young & Nugent Co., 42 West Twenty-eighth street. Frank Duggan, for nearly a quarter century with Bridgeman's, also has joined the Young & Nugent forces.

Mr. Eiseman, with Penn, of Boston, has been enjoying his two weeks' holiday in New York and Philadelphia.

H. C. Reidel and wife returned from their Canadian holiday September 9.

Several of the wholesalers visited their violet growers at Rhinebeck and vicinity last week.

H. M. Robinson and brother, of Boston, were visitors the last days of last week.

M. C. Ford has thoroughly redecorated his store at 121 West Twenty-eighth street.

George Cotsonas & Co. are receiving their European importations, including many novelties in baskets and vases.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co., on Vesey street, will open the auction season September 17 with the sale of an immense consignment of large palms and greenhouse plants from the estate of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Dun, in addition to palms, bulbs and plants of many kinds from local growers. Sales will continue every Tuesday and Friday until snow flies.

Samuel Woodrow returned September 9 from Narragansett, and his partner, Mr. Marketos, is now on his vacation.

E. C. Horan is back from his summer outing, looking as spruce and young as twenty years ago.

The Bedford Flower Co. is sending Moore, Hentz & Nash some splendid roses of the new varieties.

Messrs. Wienhoeber and Michelsen, of Chicago, were recent visitors.

Flowerfield is living up to its name. Imagine in this thousand-acre tract owned by John Lewis Childs 250 acres of bulbs in flower. Only fifty miles from New York, it is a wonder every tourist in this section has not been there. Late visitors include Martin Kohankie, of Painesville, O., L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, and Alex. Dewar and wife, of Boston. Mr. Dewar has been connected with the seed house of Farquhar for a quarter century. Mr. Kurtzweil, of the Iowa Seed Co., of Des Moines, also was a recent caller. I. S. Hendrickson, president of the American Gladiolus Society, does the honors at Flowerfield, and delightful hours may be spent driving over this immense tract, every acre of which will be ultimately used in the Childs bulb enterprise. Among the new varieties of gladioli, Panama seems to be the sensation. There is also, Mr. Hendrickson says, a great demand for Niagara, Peace, Alaska, Rosy Spray, Sulphur Queen, Wild Rose and Silver Sheen, but America has lost none of its popularity. Dahlias, lilies, cannas and irises are also grown heavily at Flowerfield. Visitors should go now, while the exhibit is at its best. Mr. Hendrickson celebrated his birthday September 6.

Judge Vesey, of Fort Wayne, was in the city September 9.

The Plant Auction Co. held its first sale of plants September 10 at 146 West Twenty-eighth street, with John P. Cleary as auctioneer. The company announces a daily sale and intends offering cut flowers also.

The Julius Roehrs Co., of Rutherford, has nearly completed two new orchid houses, 20x150. J. Austin Shaw.

PRIMULAS.

Primulas are now making splendid growth. They will still need some shade from the brightest sunshine, but less protection each day will be necessary. A variety of pests attack them at this season, including cutworms and a small green worm similar to the one so destructive to mignonette. This has a particular liking for P. obconica, and if not closely watched the plants will soon be skeletonized. Hand picking and dusting the plants, particularly their hearts, with tobacco dust are the best methods of extermination. Keep the plants potted on as required. The small later ones are useful made up into 6-inch pans, but it is safer to wait until the colors can be noted before doing this. A mixture of colors is quite undesirable.

The new Primula malacoides, if sown too early, will become unwieldy in size. May is sufficiently early to sow this sort unless large plants are wanted. I sometimes see it stated that early August is not too late to sow primulas. Anyone starting seed that late will find that the plants are so small as to be unsalable. Late winter and early spring is the time for sowing primulas. You are then sure of plants of sufficient size to be salable. Keep all the primulas as cool and airy as possible.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

New York, N. Y.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the U. S. District Court September 6 by Wm. C. Rickards, Jr., and Alfred J. Rickards, doing business under the firm name of Bridgeman's Seed Warehouse, Rickards Bros., proprietors, at 37 East Nineteenth street, with liabilities $21,194 and assets $1,381, consisting of accounts, $1,134, and bulbs in storage, $247. The stock was sold by a city marshal and the fixtures were sold under foreclosure of a chattel mortgage held by Mary A. Hurlemann for $4,000. The business was established in 1840 by A. Bridgeman & Son and Rickards Bros. succeeded to it in August, 1906. There are 130 creditors, as follows:

A Wild Smilax Packing and Shipping Station at Evergreen, Ala.

THE WILD SMILAX INDUSTRY.

Was it chance or an appreciation of the eternal fitness of things that makes Evergreen, Ala., the headquarters of the wild smilax industry?

Smilax, the botanists tell us, is native over a large part of the eastern and southern United States, but it was at Evergreen, amid the swamps of Alabama, that George W. Caldwell, the pioneer, established his shipping station, and it is from Evergreen that millions of cases of the hardy decorative evergreen have since gone out. Caldwell is dead, but the industry he founded is in the full strength of prosperity.

Just how many cases of wild smilax go out of Evergreen in a season it has never been possible to ascertain. Practically every express train from September to May carries its quota, and scores of solid carloads go out by freight, frequently in refrigerator cars, in which it travels splendidly. Wild smilax can be kept in cold storage almost indefinitely.

The three or four principal shippers from Evergreen enlist the services of a small army of men, gathering in season wild smilax, ferns, sheet moss, magnolia leaves, palm leaves and crowns, needle pines, mistletoe, etc., but the smilax is the important item. As with most if not all decorative greens, the shippers are not really gatherers, although they have their regular people in the woods. Payment is in accordance with the quantity and quality of the stock brought in, not by the day. The shipper will buy from anyone who brings in the kind of stock wanted, so that half the countryside augments its income by picking greens, in addition to those who depend on it.

While wild smilax is an article that keeps, the shippers do not as a rule carry much stock at Evergreen. It goes out as fast as it comes in, and on any large demand the stock practically is picked to order. The accompanying illustration shows four loads of smilax just in from the swamps of Conecuh county, of which Evergreen is the county seat, in front of the packing shed of Charles S. Lee & Co. This, with other loads picked that morning, went to make up fifty cases on an order for the C. A. Dahl Co., Atlanta, Ga. The stock goes from the wagon to the cases, and by mid-afternoon was in the express cars. The next day the Atlanta florist was putting it up in a decoration for an automobile show.

It is said that the supply of wild smilax in Conecuh county is practically inexhaustible. The summer's growth replenishes the winter's picking. The shippers get what they want when they want it, except for an occasional flood, which renders the swamps impassable and the smilax inaccessible. In the autumn the picking is close to town, but by spring the countryside is pretty well stripped, and the pickers have to go out some distance, but that matters little; there isn't any hookworm at Evergreen.

Those who have made the acquaintance of Charles S. Lee at the Baltimore or Chicago conventions will enjoy the illustration. He is the typical southerner. Does he stand next the bull dog, or the dog next to him? Whichever it is, you can tell they are good friends.

PUTS BENCHES ON THE PIPES.

The illustration on this page is that of the new heating system installed by the M. Winandy Co., of Chicago, at the plant of Michael Leider. The originator of the system asserts that it not only serves well in the matter of bench support, but that by its use the gravity principle of flow insures a perfect regulation of temperature without the use of circulators. The piping, laid on concrete posts, serves as a foundation for the bottom of the bench. The new system is patented by M. Winandy, who is a greenhouse builder of thirty-five years' experience.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Warm weather, a veritable avalanche of asters and a light demand were features of last week's market. Only on one day was there any real activity, this being due to the demand for the opening of a big department store. Asters continue to dominate everything and their numbers seem almost countless. It seems too bad to see such quantities of fine blooms selling for a mere song, or being consigned to the rubbish barrel. Some growers are praying for a frost, but this would benefit none but the rose men, as few carnations are yet in flower, and these short-stemmed. Roses are quite plentiful and short-stemmed. Stock is hard to move. There was a big Beauty demand September 3, but none now grow this rose here and the supply had to come from a distance.

There are some fine lilies coming in, for which the call is indifferent. The same applies to lily of the valley. Gladioli are overabundant and move slowly. In the way of mums, Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are seen in small lots. Sweet peas are still seen in fair numbers, but the quality is indifferent. Cosmos is good for the season. There is a good supply of dahlias, but not much call for them. Salpiglossis, sweet sultan, scabious, hunnemannia and other outside flowers are plentiful. One or two of the fall cattleya crops have arrived, also Dendrobium Phalænopsis. There is not much demand for either adiantum or asparagus.

Bench and Heating System as Installed for Michael Leider, Chicago.

Various Notes.

Wax Bros., on Tremont street, have one of their large show windows filled with named dahlias grown by E. W. Ela, of Woburn. They are also featuring aquatics. They have also a splendid display of such annuals as salpiglossis, Mexican poppies, sweet sultan, etc.

V. Fenvia, of South Sudbury, is one of the earliest shippers of new crop carnations to the Boston Coöperative Market. His flowers are handled by J. M. Cohen, who now does an immense aster trade.

The opening of Filene's big new department store in Boston September 3, one of the largest and most up-to-date of its kind in America, brought good business to many of the retailers. The fifty-two windows were devoted to floral displays the first week, Hoffman having the order. American Beauty roses and gladioli were used in thousands and were the leading flowers. Throughout the store flowers, palms and ferns were used lavishly, the huge restaurant on the top floor being particularly well decorated.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. is keeping up a continuous display of named dahlias in one of the show windows, grown at the Marblehead farm. A large exhibit will be made at the dahlia show in Horticultural hall this week.

James Tulis, of South Sudbury, is well in the lead with his new crop carnations, of which Enchantress and White Enchantress are leaders.

Raymond Derycke, of South Bend, Ind., was a caller at the wholesale markets September 5. I was also pleased to see visitors from California and Ohio the same day.

Galvin's, on Tremont street, is showing fine sweet peas, cut with the haulm, this week.

William Sim is busy pulling out his tomatoes, which have yielded wonderful crops this season, and making ready for violets. He will devote one large house to new sweet peas of Mr. Zvolanek's introduction.

B. P. Winch, of Framingham, is sending in a fine crop of such gladioli as Augusta, May and America to the Boston Exchange.

Nelson & Johnson, of Framingham, are first in the market with Smith's Advance chrysanthemum. Their carnation crop is coming along in fine shape.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has issued schedules for the mid-winter flower show, February 1 and 2, and the spring show, March 14 to 16, 1913. Many new classes have been provided and premiums are liberal. Roses, carnations and sweet peas have numerous classes at the March show.

Albert Roper, of Tewksbury, has a good batch of a new light pink seedling carnation, which he believes will take some beating at the National Show next April.

S. J. Goddard is sending in the finest White Wonder carnations seen this season. He will have several other varieties this week.

Everett E. Cummings, the Woburn violet specialist, says his plants are of fine size. He will have flowers ready to pick in a day or two. He is growing mums quite heavily this season.

Frank T. White, of Holbrook, has an unusually well grown lot of nephrolepis in variety, which are selling well at the Boston Flower Exchange.

George Cartwright, the treasurer of the Boston Flower Exchange, left September 7 for a vacation in northern New York.

Neil S. Casey, the well known Melrose florist, lost his father September 2. At the interment, September 5, there was a large floral display.

Edward Bingham, of Dedham, is cutting a fine lot of Golden Glow chrysanthemums this week.

Don't forget the club meeting at Horticultural hall September 17. John K. M. L. Farquhar's illustrated lecture on the London Royal International Show should draw a big crowd, and there is a lot of business to transact. Everyone will be welcome, ladies included.

William R. Nicholson has started picking some nice carnations of the new crop. Beacon and White Enchantress are leaders.

C. L. Peirce, of Holbrook, in addition to being one of the local aster kings, has a splendid cut of cosmos, which moves well.

Abundant rainfalls the last few weeks and comparatively cool weather have wonderfully benefited dahlias, and the quality at the annual show this week promises to be unusually high.

The members of the Boston Flower Exchange voted September 7 to move to the new and more commodious market quarters in Winthrop Square. While the lease of the present market runs for about eighteen months longer, the new site may be occupied early in the new year.

Thomas Pegler, president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, is meditating a change to Brunswick, Me. A stay there for a year or two will do Mr. Pegler a world of good, but we do not want to think of him being lost to Boston for any long period.

Daniel MacRorie and Angelo J. Rossi, of San Francisco, were among our callers September 9. W. N. Craig.

New Houses 60 x 1000 Feet Built for J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

THOUSAND FOOT HOUSES.

Among the largest greenhouses ever built are those recently completed for J. F. Wilcox & Sons, at Council Bluffs, Ia. There are two houses, each 60x1,000 feet, covering an area of 120,000 square feet of ground. These houses rival in size the big ranges built by the same concern, the King Construction Co., for Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at Riverton, N. J., comprising twenty houses 21x203 feet, and the Florex Gardens, at North Wales, Pa., covering 120,400 square feet. A feature of special interest is the fact that while the house shown in the foreground in the accompanying illustration was blown down by a hurricane, the adjoining house, only twenty-five feet away, was not harmed. The accident occurred at 6 p. m. July 31 and this photograph was taken August 13, just ten working days later.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

There has been no change in the market situation during the last week, and no improvement is to be expected until the frost completely kills all outdoor blooms. There is an abundance of asters and roses, but the call is so small that prices are below normal. Funeral work continues to be the only feature that maintains any standing whatever. All of the growers are now busy benching their stock and, generally speaking, the stock is looking better than in several years. Good crops are expected during the coming months.

Various Notes.

Included in the appropriations recommended by the city council committee on finance for the maintenance of the various municipal departments of Providence for the year 1913 are the following: Public parks, general account, $23,000; Roger Williams park, $64,500; payment on park loans, $53,990, and for museum at Roger Williams park, $6,200; office of public parks, $4,500. The forestry department has an appropriation of $15,000.

Giles S. Congdon furnished the decorations for the church and house at the Rishe-Macauley wedding at Bristol.

Peter S. Byrnes, of Wickford, had several large wedding and reception decorations at Narragansett Pier and Watch Hill during the closing week of the season.

L. J. O'Connor, son of Timothy O'Connor, has been given $100,000 by the will of his grandfather, James Hanley, the wealthy brewer of this city, who died last week.

John W. Gibson, of Gibson Bros., Newport, has been confined to his house for more than a fortnight by a severe attack of bronchial trouble, but is reported as improving.

George A. Stillman, of Westerly, was one of the largest exhibitors of dahlias at the Connecticut State Fair at Hartford last week.

Charles Johnston, of Rochambeau avenue, is reported as having slightly recovered from his recent serious attack of rheumatism.

Albert Holscher is bringing in the first white chrysanthemums, Smith's Advance, which find ready sale at $3 per dozen retail. He is also cutting grand pink and white asters.

E. B. Hopkins, with W. S. Pino, has returned from a six weeks' vacation, which he spent down in Maine. H. C. Neubrand, with the same firm, has also returned from a vacation trip to his old home in western New York.

Henry M. Wilson, the Newport nurseryman, who has been ill since last spring, is showing a slight improvement.

Charles Smith, with Joseph Kopelman, had a narrow escape from serious injury a few days ago. He was doing some work at Mr. Kopelman's farm in Oaklawn, when he fell a distance of about twenty-five feet, shaking himself up badly, but, fortunately, without breaking any bones.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island will hold its first meeting since the summer adjournment on Monday evening, September 16.

Mrs. L. Foster, of Woonsocket, who has been ill of pneumonia for several weeks, is convalescing.

Frank Jancek is erecting another greenhouse, 16x85, at his place in Jamestown, for violets and early vegetables.

The Foley Mfg. Co., of Chicago, is putting up the new house for Joseph Kopelman at his range at Oaklawn, instead of the King Construction Co., as previously announced. It is 30x200.

The funeral of James Hanley, one of the principal brewers of this city, called for an unusually large number of floral pieces. The work was well distributed. T. J. Johnston & Co., Joseph Kopelman, Thomas Curley, M. Macnair, Lawrence Hay, J. B. Canning, Eugene McCarron and the Shepard Co. furnished several pieces each. The bulk of the work was by T. O'Connor and Johnston Bros.

Mrs. William Butcher, of 38 Pitman street, arrived home a few days ago from a visit to England, France, Belgium and Holland.

Miss Annie O'Connor, with Johnston Bros., on Dorrance street, was in New York last week on her vacation.

Richard Higgins is putting up another house, 30x120, on his premises on Academy avenue.

Frederick C. Covill, manager of the flower department of the Shepard Co., has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Boston and Cape Cod.

Frederick Law Olmsted, landscape architect of Boston, was in Newport September 5, on invitation of the Newport Improvement Society, to make recommendations for the possible improvement of the city.

Charles Hunt, of Burnside street, was one of the party that went on the ten days' excursion of the Providence Veteran Firemen's Association, September 5, to Buffalo, N. Y., and Wilkesbarre, Allentown and Reading, Pa.

Eric Bonevier, manager for Mrs. Butcher, has returned from an automobile trip to Cape Cod and southeastern Massachusetts.

Samuel Resnick, with J. Kopelman, has been off duty for several days on account of blood poisoning resulting from a rose thorn in the ball of his right thumb. W. H. M.

Middletown, O.—N. O. Selby, successor to H. Behrens, Sr., has installed a new boiler and is making other improvements. Business is increasing steadily, both wholesale and retail. He notes that much mail goes astray, being addressed to Middletown, Conn., instead of Middletown, O.

Saginaw, Mich.—The Wm. Roethke Floral Co. has torn down the old show house, at South Washington avenue and Hayden street, and will erect in its place a modern iron-frame house, with first-class facilities for the display of stock. The firm's range of greenhouses on Gratiot avenue is said to be the largest in the state.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

Club Meeting.

The regular September meeting of the Springfield Florists' Club was held Monday evening, September 9, on the lawn in front of the offices of the Good & Reese Co., under ample light from the lamps of President Binning's touring car. A nominating committee was appointed, which submitted a ticket with two names for each office, to be balloted upon at the October meeting of the club.

The entertainment committee was instructed to provide suitable festivities for the evening of the annual election. This committee will be in somewhat of a quandary in choosing between three invitations, one from Ward Welsh to enjoy a watermelon feast at his peony farm at Mud Run, another from the Reeser Plant Co. to hold a banquet in its potting shed, and a third from C. Pearl Berthard to share in his contemplated celebration when the city turns over to him the generous amount of cash awarded him by the appraisers in condemnation proceedings which took his Ferncliff Floral Co. plant for park purposes.

Various Notes.

In the course of a brief visit to the southern group of greenhouses in our city the customary amount of repairs and enlargements were noticed, active preparations being in progress to combat the attacks of Jack Frost during the coming fall and winter.

Kriegbaum & Campbell, operating what is known as the Dutch Greenhouse, have extended their shed 20x63 feet and are now erecting two houses, each 30x110 feet, conforming in style to their present houses. This concern grows for the local wholesale trade and has practically completed propagating roses for this season.

Gustave Schneider has razed the older houses which were obtained in the original purchase from P. J. Agnew and is preparing to cover the space with new houses. Excavation for a new boiler cellar is now in progress and a new boiler will be installed. It is understood that Mr. Schneider will sever his connection with the houses near Cleveland which he has operated for several years and will confine his attention exclusively to his business in Springfield.

Four new houses, each 21x150, which were started last season, have been completed by the American Rose & Plant Co. and are among the most modern in this section. Solid benches with cement walls have just been finished and the piping system is being installed in a most approved fashion. A new cellar, 20x50 feet, has been substantially walled with concrete and a No. 14 Kroeschell boiler will be installed. Ferns are the specialty of this company.

Four houses, each 20x100 feet, are being rebuilt by the Good & Reese Co., after having served them for twenty years. Frank E. Good, the grower for this company, reports the cutting of rose wood for propagating purposes now completed, but a considerable amount of potting is yet to be done.

The group of Springfield florists who regularly spend a number of weeks at Grand Lake, Mich., have recently returned from their annual outing. The party included John M. and Frank E. Good, Opha Jackson and Harry Reeser, with their families; also Roger Murphey and William Reeser, of Urbana. Harry F. Good visited the same place a little too early in the season and was driven back by mosquitoes; ask him to relate a mosquito story and the proverbial "fish story" will sink into utter insignificance. Ge Dale.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

September 9 the market cleaned up in jig time, and more stock might possibly have been used. Before the week is over, however, it probably will be the old story: Cleaned up Monday, heavy receipts Tuesday and an overcrowding Wednesday that lasts until the close of the week. It is to be hoped that this week will prove a welcome exception.

Last week, while business was a trifle ragged at times, it showed an improvement. White asters and Easter lilies were on the short side. Beauties, too, cleaned up from day to day. The other flowers offered were easily adequate for all demands. This is particularly true of white and red roses. Only the best of them sold, while pink fared only a little better. In asters the fine large blooms from New York state have just started to come in strongly. They proved a welcome addition and sold on sight. There is plenty of smaller stock in the colored varieties. Gladioli have let up to such an extent that now the supply and demand seem about equal. Carnation cuts are beginning to increase. The greens supply is ample. Wild smilax is ready.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club's meeting was well attended September 9. The question of the price for geraniums was thoroughly handled in papers by Henry Schwartz, R. Witterstaetter and Frank Dellar, while President Adrian took a prominent part in the discussion that took place afterward. The matter was then referred to a committee for preparation for future discussion. The sentiment locally seemed to be that growers are not realizing proper returns on this stock. A letter from the New York Florists' Club relative to publicity was referred to a committee.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange had been in existence just one year September 9. The year's business has exceeded the plans and hopes of Alex. Ostendarp and A. C. Heckman, Jr.

Frank Schumann, of Delhi, has been sending good dahlias and cosmos to L. H. Kyrk.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Adrian, Mr. and Mrs. Max Rudolph and Wm. Gear have returned from the Chenaux Islands. Mr. Rudolph reports a warm day while there, on which the temperature reached almost to 70 degrees.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett and daughter have returned from Traverse City, while C. J. Ohmer came back from Dayton, O., about the same time.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Critchell, who took the trip up the Hudson and up the St. Lawrence to the Thousand Islands, cut short their trip and returned home because of the cool weather.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Kyrk's twenty-seventh wedding anniversary was September 9.

At Wm. Murphy's it is said that September business has made a good start in spite of the heat.

P. J. Olinger went to Muncie and New Castle, Ind., last week.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Greenhouse Plants Sold.

Negotiations are practically closed for the purchase of the properties of the Grand Rapids Greenhouse Co. by Reed & Cheney, who will organize a company to continue the business. The greenhouse company has been in the hands of William H. Gilbert, as receiver, since early in the year and the sale will be subject to the approval of the Kent Circuit court.

The Grand Rapids Greenhouse Co. was organized in the spring of 1908 and represented a consolidation of the successful greenhouses conducted by Frank M. Strong, Samuel J. Perry, Edward E. Taylor and Frank J. Cook, and later M. B. Stover put in his property. The company was capitalized at $300,000 common stock, with $175,000 subscribed and paid in in property, and $200,000 preferred stock with $125,000 subscribed and paid in in property. In addition there was a bond issue of $100,000 to provide working capital. The financing was done by Edward M. Deane & Co. The company rebuilt the plants taken over and made many improvements. It specialized in lettuce, radishes, tomatoes and cucumbers, with some flowers, but a succession of unfavorable seasons and other causes stood in the way of success. The receivership was created in January, to conserve the interest of the creditors in the crops then growing.

The properties held by the company and which will be taken over by Reed & Cheney include five acres on Burton avenue, just inside the city limits; nine acres on Madison, eight on Alger and twenty on South Division, just south of the city limits, a total of forty-two acres. On each property are extensive greenhouses, with a total spread of about 225,000 square feet of glass, the largest glass area under one control in the state. The largest plant is on Madison, where a single greenhouse covers more than an acre.

Charles L. Reed and H. J. Cheney, the prospective purchasers of the property, are well known in commission circles, with offices and warehouse on Market avenue near the railroad. Mr. Reed formerly was of Maynard & Reed and has been engaged all his life in the commission business and has had a large experience in the greenhouse business as well. Mr. Cheney was with H. F. Hastings for several years in the commission business and later with the Clark, Jewell & Wells Co., wholesale grocers. Reed & Cheney began business as partners five years ago and last year incorporated. They have been selling agents for the Grand Rapids Growers' Association for three years and have been successful in marketing this city's extensive greenhouse winter crops.

Gee! but it's hot; no rain for over a week, everything sweltering in a temperature of 92 to 95 degrees, night and day. Carnations are all planted, and attention is now being directed to repairs, overhauling heating apparatus, and getting ready for the cold nights that are expected to come as soon as this torrid wave sails by.

Preparations are going on for the fair. The competition will be keener, the display more extensive and the interest shown greater than in many years. Those entered are Henry Smith, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., Eli Cross, Wencel Cukerski and H. Danhoff.

Business is picking up some, if it is hot. Some venturesome ones are even getting married, and all along the line business is beginning to show activity. Gladioli are still in good supply, as are also asters. Carnations are beginning to be seen again, although still short and burnt around the edges. Roses are in good supply.

A meeting of the Florists' Club will be held next Thursday, September 19, at the store of Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. Everybody is expected to attend.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

After an unusually cool summer, the weather for the last week or two has been extremely hot, with almost no rainfall. The last week has been the hottest of the season. The supply of outside flowers is being rapidly cut down. Those who had been able to depend on their own gardens for most of their flowers now find it necessary to buy. The opening of the schools has already had its effect in bringing many back to the city. This, with several large funerals, has caused the flower trade to pick up all along the line during the last few days. The last of the week found all of the growers better cleaned up than they had been for some time.

The supply of flowers continues good, with the stems of the roses a grade longer. The few chrysanthemums that are on the market are of good quality and find ready sale. Asters continue abundant, at about the same prices as for the last month. Gladioli are in good supply, but with little surplus. Dahlias have not made their appearance as yet, though a few are beginning to open. The few new crop carnations that are appearing are of good quality for the season.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. has secured the services of Mr. Johnson, of Peoria, Ill., an expert rose grower. He begins work this week. This firm reports business as picking up decidedly in the last two weeks. They are still cutting a good supply of good gladioli. Their chrysanthemums are just coming in, are fine for the season and are quickly snapped up. They are cutting a good supply of Killarney and Richmond roses.

Geny Bros. report a heavy run of funeral work and some good out-of-town orders, which cleaned up about all their good stock at the end of the week, with enough business in sight to make things interesting the coming week. Their houses are full of stock that gives great promise for the future; no disease anywhere.

The Belmont College Conservatories have their grounds in beautiful condition for the opening of school. Their greenhouses are in good condition also. They are doing a thriving business, not only in cut flowers, but also in bedding plants.

Joe Brown, of the Lischey Gardens, reports that business has been satisfactory all summer. He has a good stock of hardy ornamentals and trees. His houses are well filled with pot plants.

Haury & Sons have found a ready sale for a good stock of fancy caladiums that they have put on the market during the last few weeks. They report business as picking up a little.

Floyd Bralliar.

Cobleskill, N. Y.—Martin S. Borst reports that he has secured the use of the greenhouses formerly operated by the late D. C. Dow.

Skowhegan, Me.—F. G. Danforth has completed the renovation and rebuilding of his greenhouses. In rebuilding the rose house he added ten feet to its width.

Hobart, Ind.—A. Londenberg & Son are building greenhouses for a branch establishment at Valparaiso. Five acres of land have been purchased and the start will be made with three greenhouses, about 20,000 feet of glass.

Alfred, N. Y.—Prof. W. J. Wright, formerly of the department of horticulture of the Pennsylvania State College, has resigned to accept the directorship of the New York State School of Agriculture at Alfred University, in this town.

OBITUARY.

Angelo Baldocchi.

Angelo Baldocchi, one of the best known florists on the Pacific coast, died in San Francisco September 3 and was buried September 6. Though but 41 years of age, he was one of the pioneer retailers, having been actively engaged in the trade for over twenty years. He started in business with the late Victor Podesta, on Sutter street below Grant avenue, and continued there until his building and the other buildings of the neighborhood were put out of existence at the time of the fire. Immediately afterward he commenced again, by opening a large store on Sutter street, near Van Ness avenue. He continued in business there until about four years ago, when, with his partners, he opened the finest florists' establishment in town at the present location, 224 Grant avenue. They easily took first place among the retailers in that section, which position they have been able to maintain ever since.

In various other lines of investment Mr. Baldocchi was quite as successful as in the flower line, and his real estate holdings were large in San Francisco and vicinity. He was a popular member of the craft and his loss will be keenly felt by the trade all over the coast. He was not married. He was a native of Italy and is survived by two brothers.

Charles L. Yates.

Charles L. Yates, treasurer of the American Association of Nurserymen, died suddenly at his home in Rochester, N. Y., September 5, of acute indigestion. He was born in Canada in 1847 and leaves a wife and one son. Mr. Yates was manager of the National Nurseryman. Only a few weeks since Prof. John Craig, the editor of the paper, also died.

Cornelius Casey.

Announcement is made of the death of Cornelius Casey, the well-known florist of Melrose, Mass. The funeral took place September 6 at the home of the family, 93 Maple street. Services were held in St. Mary's church, and burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, Stoneham.

Sherman, Tex.—The Texas Nursery Co. is reported to have shipped 50,000 King Humbert cannas to a New York customer.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

AN extremely well written and interesting, if not altogether accurate, illustrated feature story of the origin of the American Beauty rose has been going the rounds of the Sunday supplements.

THE florists' supply houses complain that they cannot get the stock to meet the demand. The staple lines of baskets, for instance, are not only higher in price but are positively hard to keep in stock.

FIELD-GROWN carnation plants sold splendidly early in the season, but are not going so well now that nearly everyone is planted up. A little later small lots again will be in request to replace the plants that have failed on the benches. The early bird catches the worm in this as in other matters.

ONE thing that pretty nearly discourages the Query Editor is the number of questions that are received with no means of identifying the sender. After all the times the statement has been published, it seems as though everyone who reads this paper should know that no attention is paid to anonymous inquiries. The reference to it is simply because it is not desirable that even those so thoughtless (or thoughtful) as to not sign their names should feel that they were ignored. This is specially for Subscriber, who writes about sweet peas, and C. F., who asks about heating and wood ashes.

THE YOUNGEST LIFE MEMBERS.

In The Review, page 19, dated August 29, appears a paragraph stating that R. E. Jones, of Richmond, Ind., became a life member of the S. A. F. at the recent convention, also stating that he is 18 years of age and, except for F. H. Traendly's son, is the youngest person who ever joined the S. A. F. as a life member. This statement is incorrect, for the reason that Ernest F. Gude, 3800 New Hampshire avenue, Washington, D. C., became a life member of the S. A. F. at 12 years of age and Adolphus Gude, Jr., Gudemont, Anacostia, D. C., became a life member of the S. A. F. at 16 years of age.

Wm. F. Gude.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

The Third National Flower Show of the S. A. F. is to be held at the new Grand Central Palace, New York city, April 5 to 12, 1913. The exhibition will occupy several floors of the building. The trades' display was one of the most successful features of the Boston national show and will be elaborated for the New York exhibition. John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., is manager of the trades' display for the New York affair. He has had plans made showing the first, second and third floors of the building and the spaces allotted to trade exhibits. Space on the main floor is being sold at $1.50 per square foot. On the second floor the charge is $1 per square foot, and 75 cents per square foot on the third floor. Anyone interested in the plans can secure copies and reserve space by addressing John Young, 54 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city.

The National Flower Show Committee is working on the final schedule. The committee respectfully requests of business houses or individuals who may be considering the offering of special prizes that they make decisions at once, so that they may receive due publicity and the growers have a chance to grow specimens for the prizes offered.

THE MARKET PLACE.

The Review is the universal market place for all florists and all florists' products. This is the way it works when the offer is a seasonable one:

We sold all the carnations immediately, so please discontinue the advertisement. We will have other stock to offer later.—Phoenix Nursery Co., Bloomington, Ill., August 29, 1912.

Will you kindly cut out the Beacon from our ad, as we are entirely sold out of that variety? We can assure you that we are much pleased with the results of the ad in The Review.—D. T. McCarthy & Sons, Lockport, N. Y., August 30, 1912.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

A decided change took place in the market during the last week and, although the heat has worked its worst on the quality of the goods, prices have jumped back to meet the increased demand that began with the last two days of last week, September 6 and 7. The heat has for a time worked around in favor of the wholesaler, inasmuch as the continued torrid weather has already taken off practically all the surplus stock, while the supply of field-grown goods is slowly but surely being wiped off the slate. Asters have suddenly worked themselves out and while there still are plenty on the market, there are indications that the season for these is over, with the exception of the few late varieties. Gladioli has suffered to the same extent and the supply is not anywhere near so abundant as was the case last week. The demand, too, has picked up considerably during the last week on these, so that, while the wholesalers are not able to realize any fancy prices, they are getting a much better average for the growers than was the case a week ago.

Roses are in big supply, but the continued hot weather has not improved the quality by any means, and the wholesaler finds a difficult problem on his hands to keep them from popping open before they can be shipped. American Beauties still are in heavy supply and are being cut mostly in medium and short stems. Long stems are to be had, however, but not in as large supply as a week ago, when there was an overabundance of first-class stock on hand. On these as with other

THERE REALLY ARE NO FINER ROSES THAN OURS

If buyers who are using other Roses than ours will send us a few orders they will find that our stock is at least as good as any other. That is putting it conservatively—we firmly believe they will prove to themselves that there is no other source of supply that can serve them so well. We always have had a LARGE supply of the very best Roses, but this season our supply is NEARLY DOUBLED. That is why we can take care of a lot of new customers.

Our list includes a complete assortment—all the varieties you need—but you DO need ALL these, and you cannot get them everywhere:

roses, the tight shipping stock is not plentiful and the wholesaler is forced to do more sorting than usual to get the stock that will stand traveling. The Killarneys are coming in faster, while Maryland does not seem to be so abundant as has been the case through the summer. Sunburst is arriving in larger quantities, while Lady Hillingdon and Mrs. Taft also have felt the forcing effects of the heat and continue to arrive in big lots. The same is true of Richmond, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Radiance.

Easter lilies appear to be about holding their own with the heat and the quality on these has suffered less than on any of the other flowers on the market, with the possible exception of lily of the valley, which is coming in more freely than for the last month in order to meet the demands of the fall weddings that began last week.

Cattleyas are scarce, but there is a fair supply of dendrobiums, which sell well for wedding work. The heat has hurt the mums. Both Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are seen in some quantity, but many, especially the latter, are too poor to sell, and demand could not possibly be strong in such hot weather. Few dahlias are seen; they have cut little figure this season. Cosmos is offered in quantity, but most of it is poor.

Greens are about as usual, but there is an overstock of bronze galax in storage.

The city retail trade met with increased demand soon after Labor day, and large wedding orders have been reported, in addition to other important work for various social occasions. The Jewish holidays have also created extra business for the local retailers, and the demand from this source is expected to be fairly heavy for the week.

present. Mr. and Mrs. Fogarty left for a trip to Niagara Falls and into Canada, after which they will take up their residence in Austin, near the Tonner home. Mr. Fogarty is well known in the market, having been for a long time buyer for O. J. Friedman, in whose employ he has been for nearly twenty years. His bride was for some years in the wholesale commission business on her own account, first in the Flower Growers' Market and, since that institution went out of business, at 30 East Randolph street, where her sister, Miss Olga Tonner, is continuing the business under the same name.

In spite of the heat and the fact that the excitement is all over, there was an attendance of some thirty members at the meeting of the Florists' Club at the Union September 5. Convention reminiscences were the principal feature of the evening. The committees are now engaged in auditing the accounts for payment, so that no final report could be made. C. G. Anderson, of Morton Grove, was elected to membership. The club instructed the sports committee to go ahead with the organization of a club bowling league.

E. B. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, who has been absent from the store on account of illness, has improved rapidly during the last fortnight and last week cut a figure in golf circles by winning a place among the leaders in a tournament where keen competition was a feature.

H. N. Bruns and family sailed from Hamburg September 6 on the Cincinnati. They are expected to arrive in Chicago about September 17.

Canger & Gormley are well pleased with the business since opening on Michigan avenue. September 7 they decorated three pony carts for the Lake Forest Horse Show, carrying away two of the prizes. September 8 they were extremely busy with work for the Dawes funeral at Evanston.

Otto W. Frese reports that A. F. Longren, formerly with E. H. Hunt, is the latest addition to the store staff of Poehlmann Bros. Co. He will travel for the supply department.

A. L. Randall Co. has marketed a large crop of gladioli and an immense cut of asters for E. T. Wanzer, of Wheaton, who is just beginning to cut carnations.

Tim Matchen says that Emil Reichling, who has been superintendent of the Peter Reinberg establishment for the last few months, has thus far succeeded in keeping out the little worm which has done such great damage in the rosebuds the last several seasons. September is the critical month, and Mr. Reichling is proving himself the friend of the insecticide manufacturers. This is one of the cases where an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, for all the north end growers who have had experience with this worm know how difficult it is to clean it out after it once has become at home. It has cost the growers many thousands of dollars and been the subject of a book published by the state entomologist.

Frank Ayres, who is C. W. McKellar's right-hand man, stated early this week that he leaves September 12 for Paris. That does not necessarily mean France; his family has interests at Paris, Texas.

John W. Poehlmann is serving on the September grand jury. It is generally considered an honor, but it means work. The jury has over 400 cases to act on.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., who has just returned from a trip to the Hudson river violet country, says he found conditions about the same as last year. The violet growers have not been making money so fast as they did a few years ago, and there is no increase in glass at Rhinebeck this year. At Poughkeepsie there actually is a small decrease, while at Rock City a few new houses have been built. The stock is a little late, but no one regrets that shipments will be delayed a few days. September is the critical month for the growers; after this month conditions are more settled.

has begun to cut, shipping his stock to D. E. Freres.

Winterson's Seed Store received ninety cases of Dutch bulbs September 9.

Arthur Blomé has spent the greater part of the summer at St. Joe, Mich., taking the baths.

A. C. Kohlbrand, president of the Cook County Florists' Association, states that a meeting was held September 11 for the organization of the association's bowling league.

N. P. Miller, of Kennicott Bros. Co., says he seldom has seen a quicker change than came over the market September 9, especially in the matter of gladioli and asters. He reports E. E. Pieser as being at Quebec, but homeward bound.

N. J. Wietor says he looks for a decided change in the market immediately the weather becomes seasonable, but no long continued shortage of roses.

The Bohannon Floral Co. says September started well. Besides decorating a number of pony carts for the floral parade at the Lake Forest horse show, the store force was engaged in decorating a dinner table for ninety people and making up the bouquets and other work for a wedding at Dubuque, Ia.

A. C. Spencer, at Kyle & Foerster's, attributes a considerable part of this week's better call for Beauties to the celebration of the Jewish new year, September 12.

Bassett & Washburn have started planting at the new range at Greggs Station, one house 34x600 already being planted with carnations.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Philadelphia has reached the dress suit case period. They are to be seen in numbers on the principal streets. Their effect is felt on the railroads, in the offices and, in anticipation, by the market. Business is improving slowly. It is still dull, but there is an improvement over the business of a week ago. There are days when it seems impossible to market the flowers, but there also are days when it seems impossible to secure the flowers of the required variety and quality. The buyer generally leaves no stone unturned to get just the right thing.

Asters are fast diminishing from nearly all points; only the end of the crop remains. The best asters are coming from New York state. The supply is excellent. Dahlias have been hampered by the unseasonably hot weather. They do not give satisfaction in tropical heat. Roses are abundant; Beauties, Maryland and Kaiserin lead. Really fine stock brings excellent prices, but poor stock is not in demand. Cattleyas have become more plentiful with the approach of October. The price is a point easier. Gardenias have come off the back track; they are better and more sought. Carnations are once more of importance. Some good pink and white, mostly Wards, are offered, being nice flowers with fair stems. Valley is in good demand. Easter lilies have had many friends when funeral sprays were required. Chrysanthemums have made their appearance; Golden Glow in quantity, two weeks ahead of last year, and Smith's Advance in lesser numbers. These crops are expected to continue steadily until the end of the season.

Activity at Craig's.

It was evident that the plant season had fairly opened. An automobile on Market street was being loaded with ferns and decorative plants. An express van was pulled up at the side for its load of neatly packed boxes. The packing shed was full of orders picked out ready for the packers. Duncan Macaw stopped just long enough to say a pleasant word and was off. Presently Robert A. Craig appeared, full of business, but with that easy good humor that makes things go. He said, "We have the stock this year." Inquiry developed the facts that the eighth new house is well under way at Norwood, and that William P. Craig has started in one direction and Cornelius Vanderbreggen in another in the interest of the company.

Mr. Fuld's Work.

Maurice Fuld has been extending his field of activity to the middle west. As previously announced in this column, he spoke before the gardening clubs of Lake Forest, Ill., and of Detroit, Mich. At Lake Forest Mr. Fuld spoke on dahlias and gladioli. Part of his address was indoors and part in the garden. His audience was composed of the most intelligent and cultured class of flower lovers. They are growing for the most part old-fashioned varieties and went wild over the newer types of dahlias, the cactus and especially over a single specimen of the peony type. Mr. Fuld considers the peony dahlia as possessed of extraordinary possibilities for future development. At Detroit Mr. Fuld spoke on "New Flowers." Here many of the members of the Garden Club came from distant points in Michigan. Many new places are being laid out and the interest in securing eastern ideas for their adornment with plants and flowers is marked. Mr. Fuld was obliged to cancel his engagement at Cleveland in order to be present at the opening of the show of Henry F. Michell Co., in this city.

ers air balance system. It is a simple device, designed to maintain an even temperature in the greenhouse heated by hot water under pressure. It is especially adapted to meet the needs of the florist or gardener who does not employ a night fireman. The system is somewhat similar to the automatic steam regulator. It is intended for a pressure of not more than ten pounds, and will undoubtedly save fuel, as the draught is checked when the temperature reaches the desired point. The company is the agent for the device, which has been patented.

The Event of the Week.

Growers will be especially interested in the purchase of the tract of land, greenhouses and dwelling lying near Churchville, Holland Station, Bucks county, by Fred Sheuzsky from Charles E. Meehan. The plant was purchased about ten years ago by Mr. Meehan; the previous owner, who had built the greenhouses, had been frozen out. The farm consisted of about fifty acres of ground. There were, I think, four greenhouses, each about 20x100 feet. To these Mr. Meehan added one large King house, a peony field, some lilacs and other improvements. The increase in his responsibilities, caused by the rapid strides made by the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., made Mr. Meehan wish to part with his property at Holland, to which he could not devote his time. Mr. Sheuzsky was formerly salesman for the Robert Craig Co. and for the last few years manager of the Collingdale Greenhouses. His friends wish him success in his new undertaking.

Mr. Rosnosky's Paper.

Israel Rosnosky read a paper before the September meeting of the Florists' Club on "The Convention from a Seedsman's Standpoint." Mr. Rosnosky attacked the tariff of charges in detail, pointing out that they were too high. He pointed out with the skill of the trained business man accustomed to detecting the weakness in the enemy's trenches that such charges would drive away the seedsmen. He dwelt sorrow-

The vegetable show of the Henry F. Michell Co. was held at 518 Market street September 10 to 12. Prizes offered amounted to $250 and brought out many exhibits. There was a good attendance.

Herbert G. Tull, treasurer of Henry A. Dreer Co., returned from North Carolina last week. The secretary, J. Otto Thilow, is now taking his turn at a change of air and scene.

George Atkinson, right-hand man to Walter P. Stokes, was greatly pleased with the preëminence of Bonny Best Early and others of their tomatoes in sharp competition at the trial exhibit of the Campbell Canning Co.

W. J. Sherry reports the arrival of all varieties of foreign bulbs save one at the store of the Johnson Seed Co. They are in fine condition.

Clarence W. Moore thinks the unfavorable weather in Europe will create a shortage in Romans and Paper Whites on this side of the water.

The Market.

Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia have been having the worst rains and floods in the experience of the oldest inhabitants. While great damage has been done, greenhouses seem to have escaped, but the market gardeners on the low lands have suffered great damage in loss of crops. In some sections the water was high enough to cover the corn tassels, and whole crops were lost. Railroad tracks were washed out and the shipments of flowers for Monday, September 9, could not be made. Great inconvenience and loss to the wholesalers resulted. The Pan-Handle and B. & O. railroads were the worst sufferers; in some cases miles of track were washed away.

Great quantities of asters are coming in from all directions. Some of the flowers would be fine, but all show the effect of rain and the blooms are spoiled. The heat and rain continue. Those growers who did not get their planting done early are having their

The Right Display Is the Big Secret of Success In Your Business

Maybe you've never looked at this Refrigerator question in its true light. Getting the right flowers is only half the battle. Selling is your big proposition.

A McCray Refrigerator

will play a vitally important part in getting your flowers into your customers' hands and getting their money into your cash drawer. Hundreds of florists have found this out to their steadily growing profit. They've found that in addition to saving them big money, the McCray has boomed business with a rush—by keeping the flowers in the beauty and freshness of perfect condition—and by displaying them with the very limit of attractiveness.

Write for our Catalogue No. 73, which gives all the facts—lots of useful information which you should have whether you're in the market now or not.

Alexander McConnell of New York City, whose refrigerator is shown in the cut, writes us as follows:

"The refrigerator you installed in our place of business has been very satisfactory in every particular. The flowers retain their freshness and color. The refrigerator is ventilated in so satisfactory a manner that the glass is never covered with moisture; consequently the stock can be inspected without opening the doors. The box is also economical in its requirement of ice."

Announcement

WE WISH to announce to the trade that we will again handle the same grade of Boxwood we did last fall. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," not in the exaggerated advance notices, and those who last year handled our Boxwood, with no exception, pronounced it the best they ever handled. It will be put up in light 50-lb. crates and contain no surplus wood. You might just as well save a few dollars and make sure of having the best on the market by placing your order now.

trouble in trying to get soil dry enough to fill their beds. White and yellow chrysanthemums are coming in, but are not meeting with much demand.

Various Notes.

B. L. Elliott, on the evening of Saturday, August 31, met with what might have been a serious accident. While out in his auto with his family, he was met in a narrow road by a party of young men driving a large Pierce-Arrow touring car, running at about sixty miles an hour. The Pierce-Arrow cut both wheels and the mud guard off Mr. Elliott's machine. He and his people were thrown out of the car, but were not hurt. The other car ran about 100 feet and turned turtle, pinning some of the men to the ground; three of them are still in the hospital.

Mrs. E. A. Williams was compelled to leave her summer home at the lake to help take care of some large funeral orders Saturday and Sunday, September 7 and 8.

Frank Schoen, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., was a recent visitor. He has many friends here.

The Florists' Club met Tuesday night, September 3. There was a good attendance. It was gladiolus night, but there was not much of an exhibit, as the storms played havoc with the blooms intended for the show. Those who had attended the S. A. F. convention expressed their appreciation of the courtesies extended to them by the Chicago florists.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has secured an auto truck for hauling coal.

Hoo-Hoo.

Skaneateles, N. Y.—J. G. White has erected another greenhouse, to be used for violets. His business for the present year has been the best in his experience.

Janesville, Wis.—J. T. Fitchett's dahlia gardens, at 735 Milton avenue, have lately been attracting many visitors. Besides the best of the older varieties, he has many of the latest introductions, some of them still in the experimental stage.

York, Pa.—Aug. H. Schaefer, 15 West Market street, is building a fine, modern residence near his greenhouses.

FOR SALE

THE FAMOUS ULLRICH GREENHOUSES, OF TIFFIN, OHIO.

Sale made necessary by the death of the owner, Lewis Ullrich, well known to the floral world. Tiffin is one of the most progressive towns in northwestern Ohio. Good shipping facilities, good schools, in fact, an ideal place to live and do business in. There are on the Ullrich lands sixty thousand or more feet of glass, and well stocked. Two substantial residences, one recently completed, barn, sheds, bulb and cut flower cellars, wagon shed, tools, wagons, in fact, a complete equipment. Located on one of the principal streets of the city. Land for growing stock. Floral store, white enamel fixtures, located down town, and everything there required by a first-class floral store, and practically new. Everything must be sold to settle up the estate. A bargain for the right man. No others need apply. For further information address

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

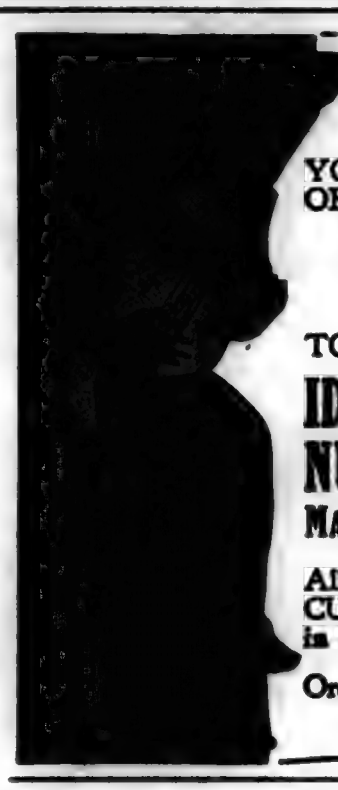
The extremely hot weather during the last week certainly did not help the flower business any. A great lot of cut stock, especially in roses, was consigned to this market during the week, and the hot weather played havoc with the blooms; they had to be disposed of at once, as they were worthless next day. That was the condition of all varieties of roses. Carnations from the young stock were fairly good, but were still short-stemmed, and the best of them did not bring over $1 per hundred.

Asters are still arriving in great abundance, and shipments of them are being received from as far as New York. The home-grown flowers, however, are in better demand than the eastern stock, which does not come in good condition. Everblooming tuberose stalks are not nearly so plentiful as they were last season, and the price is up to $4 per hundred for the best. Last year at this time the wholesalers were disposing of them at $1 per hundred. Easter lilies are not any too numerous. Lily of the valley is also scarce just now.

The retailers say that this hot spell has cut off what little transient trade there was, and funeral work was all they could depend upon for business.



Various Notes.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., called on the local trade last week and cleaned up some nice business.

Adolph Brix, of the Brix Floral Co., is the only one of the local florists who has not yet returned from his vacation. He has been touring Europe all summer, and has written to friends that he has been having a great time and expects to be home by September 15.

George Walters, the wire worker, says that since being closer to the buyers in the wholesale cut flower district his business has increased.

The "House of Flowers," arranged by Ostertag Bros. at the made-in-St. Louis show, at the Coliseum last week, was presided over by Miss Helen Ostertag, assisted by several of Miss Ostertag's lady friends. The flowers used were donated by Ostertag Bros., and the proceeds went to charity.

Paul Scheider, at Clayton, is just finishing up a large new house for roses, which are planted, and he is sending cut blooms from this young stock to the Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

R. J. Windler, on South Grand avenue, says that he has had quite a rush of large funeral designs to work up of late, but cooler weather is needed to stimulate the other lines.

The sunken garden in the rear of the Public Library, which is to be known as Library park, is completed, and is quite attractive in appearance. This was laid out by Mr. Kesseler, city landscape architect, who is connected with the city park department.

Charles Young and his younger brother visited Moline, Ill., last week, to purchase an automobile delivery to be used at their downtown store.

The new wholesale house, the Windler Co., which opens September 16, is nearly ready for the opening. The members of the new firm have been busy all the week putting their fixtures and stock in place, and the establishment will present a fine appearance.

August Kunz, the well known florist, is now head of the parks of the city water department, in place of W. E. Robinson. Mr. Kunz took up his new duties September 6. The Chain of Rocks park and the Reservoir park come under his supervision. His selection for the position was a good move of the department.

The Mullanphy Flower Co. held a two-day opening September 6 and 7, at the firm's new store, 3514 to 3520 North Grand avenue, and large crowds visited the store each day. A band of music enlivened matters, and cut flowers were given away as souvenirs. The store was decorated with designs in mantel and table decorations, and presented a handsome appearance. The officers of the firm are: Wm. J. Sieger, president; Nat. Kingsley, vice-president, and Martha J. Sieger, secretary and treasurer.

The Foster Floral Co. will open for business next week in a new location, at the southwest corner of Delmar boulevard and Kingshighway. The store has a frontage of sixty feet on Kingshighway and twenty-four feet on Delmar boulevard. Fred J. Foster, the head of the firm, says it will be the largest retail flower store in the west end, and he expects to make it a winner from the start, inasmuch as business in the west end differs greatly from that of downtown. This will leave only three flower stores in the extreme downtown business district.

Carl Goebel, son of Phil Goebel, head of Reservoir park, has passed the examination at the Missouri Botanical Garden and is now a student there. Mr. Jennecke, superintendent of the garden, has everything looking at its best. The large conservatories that are being built there by the Pierson U-Bar Co., of New York, are being pushed to completion. These new additions are great attractions for the visitors.

The Retail Florists' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at the Washington hotel on Monday evening, September 16, at 8 o'clock. All members are expected to attend, as important business will be transacted.

The Market.

The condition of the market is practically the same as previously reported. Several weddings and a large amount of funeral work have been keeping the stores busy, although the volume of business as a whole is not great. The Queen Beatrice and Mrs. Taft roses are in good form and some few Lady Hillingdon are being shown. This latter is a rose that may be counted upon to met with great favor during the coming season. Carnations are arriving in better shape, and summer roses are in profusion.

Club Meeting.

At the regular meeting of the Florists' Club last week the entertainment committee was requested to arrange, if possible, with Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., for his illustrated lecture on "Rose Growing at Home and Abroad," to be given before the club sometime in October. William Furmidge, employed at the United States Propagating Gardens, and John Turner, 1239 Vermont avenue, N. W., were admitted to membership. Alfred Heitmuller, Sr., was proposed.

William F. Gude gave an interesting account of his trip to the convention, telling what had been done toward raising a memorial to the late William R. Smith. Something like $3,000 has already been contributed towards this project. In speaking on the convention subject, Mr. Gude suggested that steps be taken toward sending a bowling club, representing the District of Columbia, to the next convention, to be held at Minneapolis, Minn. Following this came the cry of Washington, 1914.

Following the regular business, the members were invited to partake of a buffet luncheon, and an hour or two was spent in the discussion of business of purely local interest.

Club Field Day.

Probably the most enjoyable event on the social calendar of the Florists' Club was the field day, held at Potomac Heights, D. C., September 5. Although warm, the day was an ideal one for the sports, and many of the games were participated in by most of those attending. The most exciting event was the 100-yard dash, won from a field of thirty by George Dalglish, who carried off the prize offered by George C. Shaffer. Next in point of interest were the quoit singles for members. Here again the winner, George C. Shaffer, had but a few points over his contestants. The prize was a large and handsome stein, offered by Harry Lewis. For the ladies, basket ball and steamer quoits, with races for the younger ones, kept the crowd interested for quite a time. The results of the events were as follows:

25-yard dash, for boys under 12—Lawrence Barry, first; Hiram Kimmel, second.

25-yard dash, for girls under 12—Agnes Barry, first; Pearl Minder, second.

Flag race, for boys under 10—Lawrence Barry, first; Herbert Gatton, second.

Flag race, for girls under 10—Gayle Johnston, first; Agnes Barry, second.

50-yard dash, for boys over 12—Herman Busley, first; Hiram Kimmel, second.

50-yard dash, for girls over 12—Edith Sauer, first; Blanche Sauer, second; Augusta Machen, third.

50-yard dash for men, open to all—George Barr, first; Milton Redman, second.

100-yard dash, for club members only—George Dalglish, first.

100-yard dash, open to all—Sam Everett, first; George Barr, second.

Three-legged race—Kimmel and Gatton, first; Everett and Barry, second.

Sack race—Sam Everett, first; Herman Burley, second.

Steamer quoits, for ladies—Mrs. Somers, first; Miss Barry, second; Miss Lott, third.

Basket ball for married ladies—Mrs. Hess, first; Mrs. Shaffer, second; Mrs. Mayberry, third.

Basket ball for single ladies—Miss Klug, first; Miss Oehmler, second; Miss Minder, third.

Quoits, singles—George Shaffer, first.

The crowd, about 150 in number, arrived about 2:30 and were received by President David J. Grillbortzer, Chairman W. W. Kimmel, N. L. Hammer, George Dalglish and Secretary Oehmler. The ladies were served with ice cream, assorted cakes and other good things, there was a buffet with plenty of iced goods for the gentlemen, and the kiddies had a good time looking for prizes in the popcorn packages. Music was furnished by a stringed orchestra from the Poli theater. The guests availed themselves of the opportunity furnished for dancing in the pavilion. Here was where Secretary Oehmler shone. Business was entirely forgotten, many of the stores were closed for the day, and everybody worked hard to make the other fellow happy.

Various Notes.

The car of Gude Bros. Co., covered with a canopy of white and decorated with American Beauty roses, ferns and butterflies, chauffeur and attendant in white livery, won first prize of $150 in the automobile parade on Labor day. To George M. Barker went the second prize of $75. The car had been turned into a miniature colonial mansion, with vines strung over the sides and window boxes at each window. A door panel, of white and purple asters, completed the design. The decoration was by Z. D. Blackistone. The car entered by the Old Dutch Market, decorated by George C. Shaffer, with wheels trimmed with gladioli and oak leaves, a windmill at the top in goldenrod, and a monogram and shield in red and white immortelles, took third prize of $75. Mr. Schaffer's own car, a handsome one, received honorable mention. In the parade were some 300 commercial cars, decorated and undecorated. Gude Bros. Co. had two, and Wm. Marche & Co. had one car in the undecorated class.

While working around his greenhouses in Anacostia, D. C., M. J. McCabe, who also operates a stand in the Center Market, had the misfortune to run a nail into his foot, and as a result is confined to his home.

Mrs. Beatrice R. Moss, who has been with F. H. Kramer at his F street store for the last fifteen years, has returned from a month's vacation spent on board a private yacht with friends. Mrs. Moss is the young lady for whom the Queen Beatrice rose was named.

C. L. L.

Cochranville, Pa.—A. B. Campbell's trade is increasing steadily and he has found it necessary to build another greenhouse.

Batavia, Ill.—Andrew Anderson has torn down the old greenhouses at Batavia avenue and Morton street, to make room for two large new greenhouses to be erected at the corner, filling almost the entire block. Besides the two greenhouses, he will construct a handsome office building at the corner, to be used instead of the present offices, located near the middle of the block.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

THE death of Charles L. Yates, treasurer of the American Association of Nurserymen, is reported in this week's obituary column.

JOHN HALL, of Rochester, secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen, has mailed to members the annual volume, containing the stenographic record of the Boston convention and the full list of the association's membership, 388, including a number in the allied trades.

IMPORT PERMIT REGULATIONS.

The Review has kept the trade informed of the progress of the plant quarantine bill that became a law August 20, the full text of the bill being printed as an exclusive feature in the issue for August 1. The act will go into effect October 1 and after that date it will be unlawful for anyone to import nursery stock without first obtaining a permit from the Secretary of Agriculture. Forms of application for permission to import such stock will be supplied to importers on application to the Federal Horticultural Board, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

For purposes of classification the following method has been adopted:

Quantity.	General Nature.	Age or Height.
.....	Fruit trees	.....
.....	Fruit tree stocks.....	.....
.....	Grape vines	.....
.....	Bush fruits	.....
.....	Roses	.....
.....	Rose stocks	.....
.....	Forest and ornamental deciduous trees....	.....
.....	Coniferous trees.....	.....
.....	Ornamental deciduous trees	.....
.....	Evergreen trees other than conifers.....	.....
.....	Evergreen shrubs other than conifers	.....
.....	Field-grown florists' stock not otherwise listed	.....
.....	Stocks, cuttings or seedlings not otherwise specified.....	.....

TEXANS IN SESSION.

The twelfth annual convention of the Texas Nurserymen's Association was called to order at Marlin at 8 p. m. Tuesday, September 10, there being an excellent attendance as a result of the central location and the low railroad fares. The complete program for the two days' session is as follows:

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 8 P. M.

Call to order by the president.
Invocation, by one of the local pastors.
President's annual address, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.

RUST ON CRATÆGUS.

Will you kindly tell me what causes the yellow spots on the enclosed leaves of cratægus? Please suggest a remedy. P. S. D.

The cratægus leaves were affected by a rust which has been fairly common all over the eastern states during the last few years and seems to increase rather than diminish. The cause I do not know, but the best remedy, and in fact the only one, is to spray frequently with Bordeaux mixture through the season, starting before the leaves unfold. Then, as soon as the leaves have developed, repeat the sprayings at weekly intervals until early July. Cratægus are attractive in flower and fruit if their foliage is clean. Unfortunately, they are notoriously dirty subjects, being attacked by red spider, thrips, aphis, leaf miners, rust, borers, San Jose scale and practically everything on the calendar. A poison spray, in addition to the fungicide, is necessary at least twice through the season. Arsenate of lead mixed with Bordeaux is excellent for this purpose.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE prices on California sweet pea seed will be ready in a few days, as most of the stock is in the bag.

SOME of the French growers report good crops of carrot, but as the yield elsewhere generally is deficient prices are expected to continue rather high.

RADISH is grown in considerable quantity in America, but the crop this year is poor, in California a failure second only to sweet peas. In Michigan, where there is a much smaller acreage, the crop is better. The French crops are reported as below average, but Holland is said to have an excellent crop, now cut.

UP to the time that the text of the new pure seed law became available to the trade in last week's issue of The Review the Department of Agriculture at Washington, and other sources of information, had many requests for copies of the law or advices as to its status. Some of the news agencies had sent out the erroneous information that the bill had been lost in the closing hours of the Congress.

THE season for harvesting cow peas in the Tennessee section has arrived and the weather is perfect. This means a good crop, as the growth was extra and the peas have set well. Soy beans, of which a good acreage is grown in the vicinity of Nashville, will be ready to harvest in about two weeks. They are looking well. It is not expected that the high prices that have obtained for the last two years on these two items will continue.

A PETITION in bankruptcy was filed September 6 by Rickards Bros., New York, who had been proprietors of Bridgeman's Seed Warehouse since 1906, the business having been founded in 1840. A list of the liabilities, which far exceed the assets, will be found on page 15 of this issue. A. L. Rickards has entered the employ of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, and Wm. Rickards has entered the employ of a new concern, the Young & Nugent Seed & Bulb Co., 42 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

THE German consul at St. Louis has reported to his government a list of seed and drug houses in the southwest which he says "want to import the seeds mentioned" after their names. The list is going the rounds of the European horticultural press, but with nearly all the addresses wrong.

REPORTS by mail and wire from all California lima bean growing counties indicate a shortage of fifteen per cent or more from the record breaking production of last year. The beans will be harvested rather earlier than usual, and according to all accounts the quality is excellent, though the beans run small in size, the extreme hot weather in June and July having retarded development, which accounts for the shortage in this season's output.

SEEDS of the garden peas will be a better crop than appeared possible in June, but nobody need worry over the disposal of the surplus.

THE growers of lettuce seed are in hopes that the carryover will be cleaned up this year and the business put back on a basis where there is some incentive to push ahead.

THE elimination of the prison penalty from the federal pure seed bill as printed in last week's issue of The Review probably settles this point for any further seed legislation.

THE boat from Bermuda that arrived at New York August 30 brought nineteen cases of lily bulbs, thirteen consigned to F. R. Pierson Co. and six to L. D. Crossmond & Co. This brings the season's total to 2,767 cases.

T. F. HILL, a dealer in seeds at Malden, Mass., was arrested recently for having in his possession a quart measure with the bottom too near the top. He asserted that the sealer of weights and measures had pushed in the bottom with his thumb when he picked the measure up and that anyway it was used simply as a scoop, the seeds being sold by weight, but the court assessed a fine of $25.

THIS is Charles Dickinson's field week. The Chicago grass seed dealer is an enthusiastic patron of aviation. He has financed one of the entrants in the meet now in progress at Chicago. September 7 he lost from his pocket $500 in money drawn for his airship payroll, but is reported to have remarked that he was having fun enough to compensate for a little unforeseen expense.

Boddington's "Quality" Christmas-Flowering SWEET PEAS

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

RECORD CROPS.

They Mean Banner Business.

The government crop report issued September 9 holds forth assurances of banner business for the season now opening. The report shows that with the single exception of soft winter wheat, crops are of bumper proportions in every section of the country. The moving of the big crops from the farms to the consumers is now the big question, and complaints of car shortage are coming from every quarter of the big grain belts. Prosperity for the farmer certainly means prosperity for the railroads, and when these two, the country's greatest industries, are prosperous, all others, and certainly the florists, have good business assured.

The summary of the crop report, with comparison with 1911, is as follows:

	Total yield
	1912 estimated.	Final 1911.
Winter wheat	390,000,000	431,000,000
Spring wheat	300,000,000	191,000,000
All wheat	690,000,000	621,000,000
Corn	2,995,000,000	2,531,000,000
Oats	1,290,000,000	922,000,000
Barley	209,000,000	160,000,000
Rye	35,000,000	33,000,000
Buckwheat	18,000,000	18,000,000
Flax	29,000,000	19,000,000
Tobacco, pounds	976,000,000	905,000,000
Potatoes	398,000,000	293,000,000
Hay, tons	72,000,000	55,000,000

The report is as of September 1. The weather since that date has been extremely warm over the greater part of the country and, while it has been unfavorable for the business of the moment, it has been of material assistance in finishing the crops ahead of the early frosts. The condition of corn is much better today than it was September 1.

VEGETABLE GROWERS.

The Vegetable Growers' Association of America closed a most successful convention at Rochester, N. Y., September 6, with the election of the following officers:

President—H. T. Hall, Moorestown, N. J.

Vice-president—Chauncey West, Irondequoit, N. Y.

Secretary—E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O.

Treasurer—M. L. Ruetenik, Cleveland, O.

withstood the heat far beyond his expectations, and figures that the cool weather of the earlier part of the summer has helped by giving the plants greater vitality.

The first annual meeting of the stockholders of the Percy Jones corporation was held September 1, it being one year ago that the firm became a corporation. According to President H. Van Gelder, the year was an exceedingly good one, and the stockholders were well pleased with the report.

John Kruchten, who makes a specialty of gardenias, says he is getting advance crop shipments daily now, and that a week or ten days will bring in a full crop.

H. H. Wilkerson, manager for Henry Wittbold, reports unusually good business for the last two weeks. In addition to a number of large department store decorations, the force has been rushed this week with five large wedding decorations and bouquets.

John F. Kidwell, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says everything cleaned up in fine shape September 6 and 7, notwithstanding the glut during the earlier part of the week.

A. L. Vaughan, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., says the out-of-town orders have increased rapidly during the last two weeks.

E. R. Farley, chairman of the Chicago Florists' Club's sports committee, has called a meeting of the bowlers for September 12 to organize for the coming season. The meeting will be held at the store of the J. B. Deamud Co., at 6:30 p. m.

Fred H. Rowe is at his residence, 517 East Forty-second place, having resigned his position with Muir during the summer.

The premium list for the floricultural section at the Illinois State Fair, Springfield, October 4 to 12, has been printed as a separate 8-page pamphlet.

Visitors: Mrs. W. C. Johnson, Grand Forks, N. D.; Mr. and Mrs. Heintz, Waterloo, Ia.

Miss Grace Sawyer, whose father exhibited the new astermum at the convention, arranged the floral tribute of sympathy from the Central Trust Bank to Charles G. Dawes, whose son was drowned at Lake Geneva.

Erne & Klingel report that early shipments of cosmos have found ready sale to local buyers.

Fishing at Camp Lake, Wis., is excellent, according to Frederick Charles Price, of J. A. Budlong's shipping force, who is spending a two weeks' vacation at the Badger State summer resort.

The trade regrets to hear of the death of W. E. Peters, a son-in-law of Emil Nelson, the Morton Grove grower. Mr. Peters died hardly a year after his marriage to Mr. Nelson's daughter. His residence was at Evanston, Ill.

Rhinebeck, N. Y.—Hazel Van Wagenen, formerly a violet grower here, announces that she is no longer in the trade.

Valley Junction, Ia.—W. K. Fletcher has had an exceedingly busy summer, and says that it has been the best growing season in several years, the rainfall being as though to order.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business has taken on more activity as the season has advanced. With the arrival of September, many weddings are in evidence, and general business is in proportion. August receipts show an increase over a year ago, to the satisfaction of florists in general.

Stock is not overplentiful. Roses are showing a gradual increase, with a daily clean-up. Asters show the effect of the bad weather of last week, which reduced the shipments of choice stock. All other outside stock fared accordingly. Mums are still scarce and bring good prices, considering quality of stock, which is the Golden Glow variety.

Various Notes.

C. Lundgren has leased the place of A. M. Le Grand at Milwaukee. He will grow a general stock of flowers and bedding plants.

The Nippon Floral Co. is cutting a nice lot of auratum lilies.

E. G. Scott, Moscow, Idaho, was a visitor last week.

The state fair was held at Salem, Ore., last week. There was a good exhibit by the seedsmen and nurserymen. Rahn & Herbert took first prize on palms and ferns and Routledge Seed Co. came in second, and first in the aster and dahlia display. The Willamette Dahlia Co. secured second on dahlias. The Portland Seed Co. confined its exhibit to poultry and accessories.

A. L. Kitchen and Guy Black have established a nursery at Roseburg, Ore.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Trade is still extremely quiet. Roses and carnations are moving a little faster, but most other stock is in excess. The recent rains have played havoc with most of the outdoor flowers. The early asters were mostly spoiled and the later ones, now coming in, also show the effects of the weather. This has been a poor season for growers of outside flowers; there were too many grown, and no prices for anything but first-class stock.

Various Notes.

On Labor day a bunch of enthusiastic growers paid a visit to the Hollywood Farm. The journey, a most interesting one, was made in a launch over Lake Washington and up Squak's Slough to the farm, a distance of twenty-six miles. The day was fine and the water also, judging by the experience of one of the party, who made a graceful, unintentional dive from the upper deck of the launch during the trip up the slough. The greenhouses were pretty minutely investigated and everyone was surprised and pleased at their completeness. The same may be said of the stock of carnations and chrysanthemums. The carnations, especially, looked splendid. The party was shown over the extensive dairy farm which is run in conjunction with the greenhouse plant, and were impressed with the cleanliness of the barns and the beauty of the large herd of Holstein cows, for which the ranch is becoming famous. The plants of White Wonder and Pocahontas carnations, benched in May, were looking exceptionally fine, but it was the concurrent opinion that the whole stock was hard to beat. A force of ninety men, a man with a hobby and capital to burn ought to accomplish something, and certainly it is being done here.

Mr. Mathes, formerly of Minneapolis, Minn., is conducting Mrs. L. W. McCoy's new store in the Pike Street Market.

Mr. Schnap is assisting Harry Crouch in his store on Second avenue.

The frequent attendance of some of our florists lately at the baseball park shows the condition of the trade.

George Antenen has returned from the east, looking and feeling better for the trip.

Capt. Buckley had seven designs to make last Sunday. Needless to say, his absence from church was noticeable.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

While there are still enough to go around, flowers are not so plentiful as they were; some lines, notably gladioli, have shortened up quite suddenly. It seems as if a few weeks of plenty and poor prices lead some growers to neglect their stock, thus inclining the pendulum the other way. Indoor carnations are a little more plentiful. Roses are short in some varieties. There are plenty of the pink varieties, but whites are scarcer. Valley is plentiful and there are enough orchids to meet the demand, which is light. A few wedding and other decorations have helped to keep the retailers busy, but funeral work has shortened up somewhat.

Various Notes.

Dieterich & Turner secured the contract for the supplying, planting and one year's care of about 600 Cocos plumosa, to be planted on the new section of Wilshire boulevard. As the price of the palms alone is $7.50 each, the contract is an important one and the firm secured it solely because of the fine quality of the cocos stock as grown on the Montebello ranch. About one and a half miles of the boulevard will thus be planted, and probably another stretch of this fine thoroughfare will be planted later with this most elegant of all street palms.

M. Kai has his winter sweet peas up and looking well, though he had considerable trouble with the whites, which he says never germinate so well as the colored ones. Mr. Kai has a good local reputation for winter sweet peas.

S. Slack, lately of the Wittbold place, at Edgebrook, near Chicago, where he ran the restaurant for the help, has arrived with Mrs. Slack at Los Angeles. He early found his way to the nursery section at Montebello.

Polder & Groen are planting large breadths of winter sweet peas. Both partners express themselves as well satisfied with the season just past—their first.

At the meeting of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society, held at Kruckeberg's hall September 3, there was only a limited attendance, our florist politicians being busy with election matters. President Payne being absent on vacation, H. R. Richards was voted into the chair, and J. M. Grant acted as secretary in the absence of Mr.

Kruckeberg. The evening's address was on "Vegetable Biology and Botanical Geography," by J. M. Grant. Mr. Grant's paper was a carefully prepared and highly interesting one and it brought out a good discussion. A vote of thanks was unanimously given to Mr. Grant and also to W. W. Felgate, gardener to Dr. Barlow, of Sierra Madre, for a choice showing of zinnias. Mr. Felgate's flowers were unusually large, of fine, compact build and bright, attractive coloring. Arrangements for a picnic, to be held at Redondo Beach, were left in the hands of a committee named by the chair, with power to act.

James Russell, formerly connected with the park department and more recently in the employ of Chas. Winsel, has been engaged by the H. N. Gage Co. as foreman and grower at its new ranch at Montebello.

The terrible fire at Ocean Park probably destroyed the store of Walter Armacost, as nearby buildings are reported razed. I tried many times to get into communication with Mr. Armacost or someone connected with his place, but was unsuccessful. His growing quarters at Sawtelle would not, of course, be affected in any way, but all who know him in Los Angeles were of the opinion that the retail store could not have escaped.

Large shipments of Chinese narcissus bulbs are arriving at the H. N. Gage Co.'s place. Among the baby roses I noted some excellent flowers of Perle d'Or, a pretty coppery yellow that makes a welcome addition to the Cecil Brunners. Five acres of the Montebello grounds are being equipped with the Skinner watering system.

At the Homer Laughlin ranch, at Hollywood, there are some extra fine live oaks in boxes, these having been boxed up by Mr. Taylor last winter. Sequoias are also good and well established.

The cut flower end of the business keeps up remarkably well at the Hayward Floral Co.'s store, and a chart showing business fluctuations indicates that trade here has been almost double that of last summer. Cactus dahlias sell well here.

Frank Lichtenberg reports a busy time and he still looks far from well.

I was pleased to meet Fred Sperry, lately of Vaughan & Sperry, Chicago, in the city, and especially to see how well he was looking. Mr. Sperry is delighted with the climate of this favored spot and intends to stay, as he says he has not felt so well in years as he has since coming here.

H. R. Richards.

The Market.

Business for the last week has been extremely quiet, though there are signs in the air that we may expect increased activity in the near future. With the exception of a fair amount of funeral work, generally distributed among the retailers, there is nothing worth mentioning. Flowers, however, even in the face of their poor selling qualities, are gradually rising in price. This has been noticeable for the last two weeks, and already carnations have almost doubled in price in comparison with a few weeks ago. Roses of any merit are scarce and the most of those offered for sale are not first-class. Most of the growers are in the midst of changing their houses and this fact accounts for the conditions in this neighborhood. Asters are much scarcer and also of poor quality. Mums are daily becoming more plentiful, but up to this time we have had mostly inside flowers. The outside stock will not be at its best for several weeks yet.

Valley is scarce. Violets are both scarce and poor; they lack the moist atmosphere and will have neither firmness nor color until the weather changes. Orchids are in about sufficient supply to cover demands. Japanese lilies are not plentiful. All the early varieties of amaryllis are out of blossom and the later blooming kinds are in full blast. Dahlias and gladioli are commencing to show the lateness of the season. Other kinds of stock are about as usual.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Rosaia, of Seattle, Wash., are in town for a short visit.

A visit to the houses of Clarke Bros., at Fruitvale, shows everything in good shape for the coming season. The houses of carnations and roses look especially thrifty.

Angelo Baldocchi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, died in this city, September 3. Further particulars will be found in the obituary column.

E. L. Werner, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., is in town. He is well pleased with this part of California and will probably locate here permanently.

Frank H. Wilson, the well known Fresno nurseryman, is in town on a pleasure trip. He is accompanied by his wife.

J. M. Holland, for many years in the retail trade in Berkeley, will shortly open a store on Shattuck avenue, in that town.

J. P. Nissen, landscape gardener with the Cragmont Land Co., of Berkeley, has left that firm and will devote his time to general landscape work.

Andrew Bartz, a well known landscape gardener, was severely injured by the bursting of a boiler on the grounds of A. B. Spreckles, Napa, Cal., and has brought suit against his former employer for $5,250, for damages sustained. G.

NAME OF HYDRANGEA.

I shall be glad if you can let me know the name of a hardy hydrangea which flowers about the same time as H. arborescens grandiflora alba, but has foliage of a darker green shade and less cordate in shape. The trusses are not quite so large and the individual bracts are smaller and narrower, and in many cases are in threes, while in the grandiflora alba they are, with us, in fours and fives. Does this description apply to H. cinerea sterilis?
J. W. M.

The hydrangea to which you refer is probably H. radiata, also called cinerea. The leaves of this variety are whitish and the cymes have sterile flowers. This flowers at practically the same time as H. arborescens grandiflora nivea. C. W.

Bowerston, O.—J. G. Gamble has found his greenhouse space inadequate this season and has omitted his usual crop of lettuce in order to be able to supply the increasing demand for cut flowers. He has planted his lettuce house with carnations. He is planning to build more houses next season.

It Pays

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash., June 26, 1912.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

The transient rate for space is $1 per inch per insertion. Those who have stock to offer all or a considerable part of the year around should write for contract rates.

...NEWS NOTES...

Bellingham, Wash.—The Bellingham Flower Association held its annual show August 30 and 31. Park Superintendent Gibson acted as judge.

Sacramento, Cal.—George D. Radcliff, superintendent of the capitol grounds, has decided to make an exhibit of cut flowers and plants at the state fair.

Walla Walla, Wash.—Fred M. Young has just completed another greenhouse, which gives him 14,000 feet under glass. A new boiler has been installed, with fifty horse-power, providing capacity for further extension of the glass.

Oakland, Cal.—The business formerly conducted by G. Nagao under the name of the Continent Nursery Co., on Jones avenue, Elmhurst, is now owned by Shima & Satow, who will be known in the trade as the Jones Avenue Nursery Co.

Toppenish, Wash.—Construction of a greenhouse, the first in Toppenish, has been started by J. B. Evans. Mr. Evans formerly conducted a hotel, which was recently burned to the ground, and he is utilizing the charcoal from the ruins as a filler between the double walls.

Redlands, Cal.—The work of building the $12,000 greenhouse of the Hockridge Nurseries, on the University of Redlands campus, is being rushed. The greenhouse will be the largest in southern California. It is of steel. Twenty thousand rose and carnation plants at the propagating plant will soon be transferred to the new building.

Portland, Ore.—The Portland Florists' Club, which had its first annual picnic August 27 at the grounds of the Oregon Nursery Co., at Orenco, plans a dahlia and aster show for September and a chrysanthemum show for early autumn. The officers are: President, E. T. Mische; vice-president, James Forbes; secretary, R. M. Bodley; treasurer, A. G. Clarke.

Spokane, Wash.—A. J. Burt has secured a three-year lease of a one-story building at the corner of Riverside avenue and Lincoln street, and will remove to it as soon as the work of remodeling it has been completed. He will use the entire building, though it was formerly divided into three store rooms. There will be entrances on both streets and the whole frontage will be reconstructed and fitted with suitable show windows.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Business has been good for the last few days, owing to heavy orders for funeral work.

Jacob Schultz has been busy overhauling his greenhouse in the rear of his store and giving it a new coat of paint. He has put into service his auto delivery, which had been laid up during the summer dullness.

We are a little short of flowers at present, as the aster crop is almost done and there is not much to fill in the gap.

G. B. T.

Fremont, Neb.—C. H. Green has completed arrangements for the erection of another large greenhouse.

York, Pa.—Henry S. Brandt is erecting a boiler house and installing a new steam boiler, with sufficient capacity to take care of the present range and some more glass which will be added in the near future.

Something New

Abbingdon Floral Company, Huntsville, Alabama, will have 10,000 Chrysanthemum Blooms to offer from Oct. 10 to Nov. 15, 1912. Your order will be appreciated.

CLEVELAND.

The Sixth City.

Carnations, fine indoor-grown stock, are arriving in small quantities. Roses are more plentiful. A few early mums are seen. Business in general is beginning to tone up. Giganteum lilies are in good supply, of extra good quality, and sell well. Valley has been "under the weather" for a few weeks, but is expected to improve in quality with the cooler nights. Beauties have been good for this season of the year. Green goods, especially plumosus, are scarce.

Various Notes.

Joseph Hassak has been engaged by the Ohio Horticultural Society to manage the big flower show which will be held by the society in Gray's armory, November 14 to 16. Mr. Hassak, while not a florist, has been indirectly connected with the business for some years. The knowledge he has derived from the management of Cleveland's once famous horse shows, and his experience with the West Side Industrial Exposition and other enterprises, will stand him in good stead in this, the Ohio Horticultural Society's first show. The premium list is in the press room and will be out in a few days. Copies can be secured by applying to J. N. Stockwell, City hall, Cleveland, O.

M. Barrett, foreman for H. Heepe's Sons, Akron, O., was a recent visitor, utilizing his vacation in visiting several of Cleveland's plants. Among other visitors were: S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia; Mr. Dysinger, of the Ionia Pottery Co., and I. Rosnosky, of the H. F. Michell Co.

George Bate is spending a well earned vacation at Turkeyfoot lake, near Akron, O. F. A. F.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., offers for registration the following new seedling rose, a hybrid tea, J. B. Clark x Richmond. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from date.

RAISER'S DESCRIPTION.

The rose is a hybrid tea, a cross between Richmond and J. B. Clark. The habit of growth is strong and sturdy, and foliage excellent. The flower is large and double and opens perfectly at all seasons of the year. In color it is similar to Richmond, although richer in color and in the bud. In form of flower and in fragrance it resembles Gen. Jacqueminot, and combines with this excellent color strong growth, great productiveness and wonderful keeping qualities, which strongly recommend the variety as an excellent forcing rose. The variety will be disseminated in 1913. The name which we wish to give to the above described rose is Milady.

Sept. 3, 1912. John Young, Sec'y.

NORFOLK, VA.

The Franklin Plant Farm, Inc., is the name under which the Franklin Nursery Farm will in future be conducted. The corporation is capitalized at $10,000. Frank Brunton is president and manager, Frank Dillingham is vice-president, and A. C. Dillingham is secretary and treasurer. A. C. Dillingham is rear admiral, retired, U. S. Navy. Frank Dillingham is a resident of Denver. The plan is to grow for the trade vegetable plants, roots and bulbs, also early vegetables for the northern markets. Seed growing is expected to be added as soon as the other operations are well under way. Franklin Farm consists of 150 acres of good land with all necessary buildings, located seven miles from Norfolk on the electric division of the Norfolk & Southern railway. The Skinner system of irrigation is being installed to cover ten acres of seed beds.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green.

These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When In Philadelphia be sure to Look Us Up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

ST. PAUL.

The Market.

The business for last week showed a remarkable increase over the previous week. With the state fair on and the city full of visitors, the retailers state a fine business resulted. General business was good, funeral work plentiful and flowers for weddings were in demand. Inside grown stock is coming in fine, and the demand is large enough to take care of the supply. Outside stock has been more or less damaged by the excessive rainfall the last month and good stock is hard to get.

Various Notes.

Holm & Olson, St. Paul, made a clean sweep of the blue ribbon prizes at the Minnesota state fair held at Hamline last week and captured every first award out of the forty offered, with the exception of the three in the display of asters and the three gladiolus exhibits. F. A. Farr, St. Paul, took two first prizes in asters, J. S. Farmer, Minneapolis, one, and D. W. C. Ruff, St. Paul, took two first prizes for his display of gladioli, while J. S. Farmer also got one in this class. Aug. S. Swanson, of Minnetonka, acted as judge and proved exceedingly efficient in that capacity. Gus Malmquist, of Minneapolis, assistant superintendent of the floral division, stated that the stock exhibited in the cut flower classes was not as good as a year ago, but all the plant exhibits were far ahead of the previous years.

The C. J. Haupt Florist Co., Concord and South Robert streets, has just completed the erection of a fine new greenhouse which will be devoted to bedding stock. The balance of his plant is being remodeled and put in shape for the winter season.

Holm & Olson are displaying in their windows the awards they received at the state fair. This attracts considerable attention. This firm furnished and hung the southern smilax used in the Horticultural building. Thirty-five cases were used.

The out-of-town florists visiting the fair were C. Kinsman, Austin, Minn.; N. Clarine, Faribault, Minn.; N. Neilsen, Mankato; W. R. Hall, Osage, Iowa; J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, and Henry H. Wenderoth, representing Nicholas Wapler, New York. C. R. F.

Florists Look! Take Notice!!

County Fairs are Next on the Program. Are You Prepared?

Hit the bull's eye, be successful, and buy your exhibition plants from Godfrey Aschmann. You will surely meet with success in carrying both prizes and certificates of honor. We make a specialty of raising plants for county fairs.

Who? Godfrey Aschmann, the Araucaria King of Philadelphia. He and his Araucarias are more popular than pennies are with school children. No arguments needed to sell his goods; 25 years' experience in importing and shipping the Araucaria (his specialty) makes him the Araucaria King of all America. Now is the time to stock up your houses.

WHEN YOU BUY, IT PAYS TO BUY GOOD STUFF

See what one of our customers says, who bought $44.45 worth, Sept. 3, 1912:

Dear Sir: Binghampton, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1912.

Your shipment of Palms, Plants and Ferns arrived in fine shape. I certainly am well pleased with all stock you sent me, and I will send you another order shortly.

S. W. BAKER, Billy the Florist, 93 Front St., Binghamton, N. Y.

1200 BOSTONS, 1000 WHITMANI COMPACTA (new). This stock is from the bench and is in fine condition. The Whitmani compacta is simply a greatly improved Whitmani—it does not revert back to the Boston leaf as the old Whitmani does, and while in appearance it is much like the old variety, the fronds have a stiffer mid-rib and make a handsomer plant. Stock is 5 and 6-in. size, being mostly 6-in. As these plants now occupy my propagation benches, they must be closed out early. I can quote you bargain prices. A. A. Gannett, Geneva, N. Y.

FERN RUNNERS, fine stock. Boston, Whitmani, Amerpohlii and Springfieldii, $1.80 per 100; $15.00 per 1000. Roosevelt runners, very fine, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000; 4-in., $15.00 per 100; 5-in., $25.00 per 100. Asparagus plumosus, 4-in., handsome stock, $8.00 per 100. 50,000 feet of glass at Cleveland, O., devoted exclusively to ferns. I have the best stock to be had anywhere. Prices are low for cash only.
Schneider, Florist, Springfield, Ohio.

Ferns, good, strong plants. Boston, Piersoni and Elegantissima, 3-in., $7.00; 4-in., $12.00; 5-in., $18.00 per 100.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE growers who bought their smokeless coal during the early summer, as advised at the time in this column, are a good many dollars ahead of the game. Pocahontas mine run advanced last week to $1.50 at the mouth of the mine. It is a record price for this time of year, but the big dealers say they are in position to accept only a limited amount of business even at this figure.

PIPING A CARNATION HOUSE.

I have a carnation house, 33x132 feet, with four feet of glass in each side wall, above three feet of 8-inch concrete wall, and with both ends of glass. How shall I pipe it for hot water, so as to secure a night temperature of 55 degrees when the mercury drops to 20 degrees below zero? I am located in the eastern part of New York state. There are five solid beds in the house and the boiler pit is four feet deep. J. L. Y.

Use five 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one on each plate, one under the ridge and the others under the upper purlins, if there are two on each side. With the flows on the plates supply three 2-inch returns on each wall; the flows under the purlins will each carry three returns to run along the ends and down the sides; with the ridge flow supply three returns to be carried in the walks.

INSTALL A SEPARATE MAIN.

I should like to get some information in regard to heating a small house with hot water, in this Pennsylvania climate. The house is 12x42 and eight and one-half feet high to the ridge. The sides are five feet high, with two feet of glass in one wall and the rest boarded. The house runs north and south and the boiler shed adjoins it at the northwest corner. The north end of the house is tightly boarded, except that it contains one window sash.

I am thinking of running a 2-inch main to this house, from the 3-inch main which goes into the other house, 26x100. From the 2-inch main I would run two 2-inch flows overhead, each feeding two runs of 2-inch pipe on the sides, making in all six runs of 2-inch pipe. Will this give 50 degrees in zero weather? The house will be planted to sweet peas. I have enough 1½-inch pipe for two runs of returns in case the six lines of 2-inch would not be enough. How should these be arranged, if I must use them?

Would a 3-inch main be better than the 2-inch main to go across into the small house? That would be attaching a 3-inch main to another 3-inch main—the main that goes into the larger house. Would that check the heating of the larger house in any way? I

Foster Pressure Regulator

With this simple device attached to your steam main just inside the greenhouse the pressure on the heating coils will be absolutely constant, anywhere from 1 to 15 pounds (whatever the grower sets the Regulator at), no matter how the pressure on the boilers runs up and down.

If the weather changes, or the sun heat varies, instead of turning on more pipes, just turn a nut on the Regulator, and get more steam, or less steam, at once. Made in sizes from ¾-inch to 10-inch just for this work.

have a sectional boiler, with a grate surface of five and one-half square feet. Will it heat the two houses to about 52 degrees in zero weather?

W. R. D.

The plan for piping the smaller house, as submitted, would probably give good results, but the temperature specified can be maintained more economically if a 1½-inch return is run along the wall which has the glass, in addition to using the four 2-inch returns as proposed.

The temperature of the larger house is not given, and if it is kept at 60 degrees the 3-inch main would not be able to supply the new house also. In fact, it will be better to run a new main from the boiler, even though the large house is only kept at 50 degrees. If this cannot be done readily, at any rate connect the main for the new house to the present main as close to the boiler as possible. While it would answer to use a 2-inch main for the new house, better results can be secured if it is 2½-inch or even if a 3-inch main is used. If the boiler is a good one, it should heat the two houses to 52 degrees.

greenhouse, 18x50, to 55 degrees in this Ohio climate? I have a quantity of 1¼-inch pipe which I want to use. The house is tightly built. R. B. K.

The letter does not state whether steam or hot water is to be used. For steam put in one 2-inch flow pipe and six 1¼-inch returns. To use 1¼-inch pipe for hot water, put in twelve returns, in addition to two 2½-inch flow pipes on the plates. It would be better, however, to use eight 2-inch returns instead of the twelve 1¼-inch returns, for hot water.

IN NEW YORK STATE.

We have one old house, 30x100 and ten feet to the ridge, with the eaves close to the ground. One end is glass. The house is fairly tight. It is heated with a Florida steam boiler, No. 225. It contains two 2½-inch flow pipes and fourteen 1¼-inch return pipes. Eight of these returns are badly split; so we shall have to take them out. We are going to grow lettuce and violets. Can we change from steam to hot water, and how many 1¼-inch return pipes would we need?

We are also building three new houses. Two of them are connected and are each 25x100 and five feet to the eaves, with two feet of glass and one end glass. The height to the ridge is eleven feet. In these houses we want a temperature of 50 degrees. We intend to put in two 2½-inch flow pipes and eleven 2-inch returns. Would that be enough, or would you advise us to get larger flow pipes and more returns? The other new house is separate; it is 20x90 and ten feet to the ridge, with two feet of glass in each side and one end glass. In this house we want a temperature of 60 degrees. We have one 3½-inch flow pipe and intend to have 2-inch returns. How many returns do we need? O. S. M.

To heat the old house, 30x100 feet, with hot water, use two 2½-inch flow pipes and eight 2-inch returns, in addition to using the six uncracked 1¼-inch returns. If it is desired to use all 1¼-inch returns, eighteen will be required.

In the new houses 25x100, the plan of piping proposed could be used, but it would be better to put in three 2½-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns, in each house. For the house 20x90 feet, to be heated to 60 degrees, thirteen 2-inch returns will be required in addition to the 3½-inch flow pipe. It might be better to use three 2½-inch flows and eleven 2-inch returns.

From the fact that the old house has been heated with steam, it would appear that the top of the boiler is beworkroom, 10x20, in the corner thus formed. My boiler, rated for 10,500 square feet of glass, is in the basement of the residence, which joins the workroom on the west. I wish to extend the larger house fifty feet next summer. How many 3-inch or 4-inch flows and 2-inch returns will be needed, so I can connect the addition next year by extending the pipes without increasing the number of flows or returns? The required temperature will be from 48 to 60 degrees. I am located in northwestern Ohio. C. W. S.

For main flows and returns, run two 4-inch pipes through the workroom and along the north side of the lean-to. From one of the mains take off three 2½-inch pipes to run through the larger house to the farther end; with the other main supply two 2½-inch flows for the wide house and then reduce it to a 2½-inch flow pipe to be extended to the east end of the lean-to, where it should be connected with seven 2-inch returns.

In the large house carry one flow under the ridge, two upon the plates and the remaining two flows under the purlins. For the returns in this house, use fifteen 2-inch pipes, three of which will be supplied at the north end by each of the five 2½-inch flow pipes, and, after placing three of the returns on each wall, distribute the others under the benches. In the lean-to all of the pipes can be on the south wall, or a part of them can be on the sides of the solid beds.

This plan will answer for the present house, and when the addition is made it will merely be necessary to extend the pipes through it.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has been about the same as at the last report. The state fair last week called for a little additional stock. Good asters are scarce. Dahlias are arriving in fair quantity, with little demand. Lilies and glads are still plentiful. Some first-class Beauties and roses are to be seen, but with little call.

Various Notes.

The Indiana State Fair was held here last week. While the entries were a disappointment, the displays were creditable. Fred Dorner, of La Fayette, acted as judge. The Pahud Floral Co., the Roepke & Rieman Co. and the Reinken Floral Co., all of this city, were represented in nearly all the classes, and the awards were divided pretty evenly among them.

B. F. Haugh, father of J. E. A. Haugh, of Stuart & Haugh, Anderson Ind., died last week, after being confined to the house for about six months. Mr. Haugh was 83 years old. Haughville, a suburb of Indianapolis, was founded by Mr. Haugh, when he was in the foundry business there, in 1880. The funeral services were held at Anderson, and the burial at Crown Hill, Indianapolis.

The regular monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association was held at the Denison hotel Tuesday night, September 3, with a fair attendance.

Oliver Steinkamp spent a couple of days in Richmond last week.

Visitors for the week: Fred Dorner, of La Fayette; J. E. A. Haugh, J. S. Stuart and E. Hyatt, of Anderson; W. W. Coles, of Kokomo; Frank Farney, with M. Rice & Co.; Guy Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago: George Gause, Richmond; George Reid, Danville; N. Gano, Martinsville; B. F. Hensley, Knightsville.

A. Wiegand & Sons have been busy with decorations for the Masonic gathering this week.

L. F. Benson intends to get a new location down in the center of the city, where the water is warm. H. L. W.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Business is just as quiet as at any time during the summer. The Minnesota State Fair brought thousands of visitors last week, but they left little money with the florists.

The fair offered $1,300 in prizes for the florists and there were some good exhibits, especially in foliage plants. Practically all the prizes in this class were won by Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, the Minneapolis Floral Co. and John Vasatka, of Minneapolis, in the order named.

Holm & Olson won first prize for table decorations, using oncidium and dendrobium orchids, Farleyense and valley. The Florist Shop, of Minneapolis, was second, using ageratums and valley, adiantum and lavender net. The Minneapolis Floral Co. was third, using Lady Hillingdon roses, adiantum and smilax. The Hoyt Nursery Co. was next, using red rambler roses and green tulle.

First for a wreath on easel was won by Holm & Olson; second, Minneapolis Floral Co.; third, Ralph Latham; fourth, the Florist Shop.

Basket of flowers, first, Holm & Olson; second, Florist Shop; third, Minneapolis Floral Co.; fourth, Ralph Latham.

Panel designs, first, Holm & Olson; second, Ralph Latham; third, Minneapolis Floral Co.

Holm & Olson and Minneapolis Floral Co. won first and second in the order named for roses and mums.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

The weather has been hot and dry this month; consequently business is almost at a standstill. Every day recently the temperature has been over 90 degrees, and it has been as high as 94¼ degrees by the official thermometer. Other thermometers have registered as high as 99 degrees for several days. Flowers of all kinds are poor and unsatisfactory.

The opening of the new Evansville and Henderson traction line was an event which will aid in making this a larger and more important city. The florists will receive great benefit from it.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. is cutting as good roses and carnations as can be expected. The firm is planning an extension of the rose houses.

Julius Niednagel & Sons have completed the removal of the large house which was in the way of Bell street. Their roses and carnations are in good growing condition. Their new residence is about completed, and the cost will be about $10,000.

Ben Kramer has had a good trade right along, considering the hot weather and poor flowers.

Miss Nellie Goodge has been seriously ill for some time.

Louis Fritsch has his carnations planted, and they are doing well.

Mr. Fenton, of Royston & Fenton, was one of the sufferers in the recent epidemic of diphtheria here, and was in a dangerous condition for a week, but antitoxin proved an effective remedy. He is about well again, except for a weakness of the throat. E. L. F.

Nicholson, Pa.—Arthur Maynard, who purchased the greenhouse formerly owned by Ed. Day, has removed the glass to his place on High street.

Pontiac, Mich.—L. C. Lewis has enlarged his plant during the summer and now has 40,000 feet of glass. C. E. Schmidt is the grower in charge.

Aphine

The Insecticide that kills plant Lice of every species

THE RECOGNIZED STANDARD INSECTICIDE

Not a cure-all, but a specific remedy for all sap-sucking insects infesting plant life, such as green black, white fly, red spider, thrips, mealy bug brown and white scale.

Universally endorsed by commercial growers and professional gardeners of reputation as the insecticide that does excel all.

$2.50 per gallon; $1.00 per quart.

FUNGINE

"Actions speak louder than words." So we are willing to let the merit of this comparatively new fungicide speak for itself. We claim it has no equal for mildew, rust and wilt attacking flower, fruit or vegetable plants. A trial will convince you.

$2.00 per gallon; 75c per quart.

Aphine and Fungine are spraying materials, readily soluble in water, used at various strengths, according to directions on each can. They are equally effective in the greenhouse and in the garden.

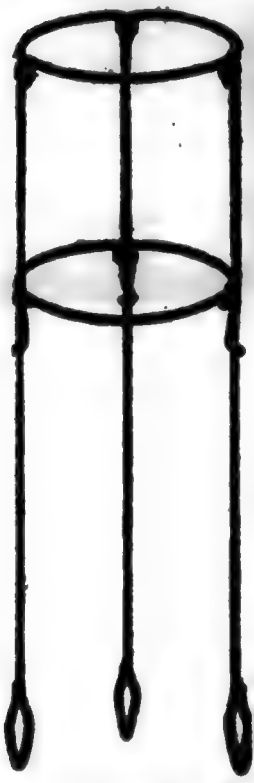
A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.



"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

The Market.

While the demand for stock, especially the last week, was what one would call good for this time of the year, the supply was so far in excess of the demand that the returns for the growers are not entirely satisfactory. Being blessed with plenty of rain and cool weather the best part of the summer, the market the last fortnight was simply swamped with gladioli and asters. Easter and rubrum lilies have suffered under the weather conditions. The only good proposition, of late, has been the newer varieties of roses, such as Taft, Ward, Melody and Jardine. Taking it all in all, prices have not been so low in many years.

Various Notes.

At the funeral of the late Gen. Arthur MacArthur there were several large floral offerings, both from local and out-of-town dealers.

J. M. Fox & Son had the decorations for the Van Dyke wedding, which took place September 7. A large quantity of cut flowers was used.

The decorating business has started in earnest with the A. F. Kellner Co. The company was busy last week and has all its decorative plants promised for the fall openings of local department stores.

Last week the Wisconsin State Fair was in progress, which brought the usual number of out-of-town visitors.

Eug. Oestreicher, of the Heitman-Oestreicher Co., successors to Heitman & Baerman, is now nicely domiciled in his new home in the place of business located at North avenue and Fifty-fifth street.

Miss Anna Zender, of Rogers Park, Ill., will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holton for this week.

The greenhouses of the C. C. Pollworth Co. are in apple-pie shape. Prospects are good for the coming season.

A. Reinhardt, late foreman at the Nic. Zweifel carnation plant, North Milwaukee, has purchased the A. Groth place, in the near vicinity of the Zweifel plant. He will grow mainly carnations for the wholesale market.

Roses and mums are looking fine at the greenhouses of Holton & Hunkel Co., at Brown Deer.

Gust Rusch, of the Gust Rusch Co., wholesalers, says that business is keeping up well, considering prevailing conditions.

An increase of business got the force of the McKenney Co. moving around quite lively last week. E. O.

KING GUTTER
WOOD

"LEST YOU FORGET,"
we want you to know that we make a wood gutter, and a good one, too. It combines all the good points of other wood gutters,
"AND THEN SOME"

NOTE that the condensation and drip run down the sides and sloping bottom to a drip pan placed under the gutter, where it makes no shade

We know it will do that, for we have tried it. This gutter lends itself to an outside wall as an eave most admirably on any greenhouse project you have in mind. We may give you new ideas, and you will see A GREAT LIGHT

LET US FIGURE WITH YOU

CAXTON BUILDING
508 South Dearborn Street
CHICAGO

Advertising forms close
TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Sharon, Pa.—W. B. Hackett has purchased the business of O. E. Hall, the flower and vegetable grower.

OUR GREATEST PROBLEM is the origination of new fabrics for the floral trade. Where in former years a limited variety sufficed, now the florist is, if anything, more particular than the milliner or dry goods merchant in insisting upon having fabrics which are original and entirely dissimilar from those used by other trades. We have, however, kept pace with this demand, and the consequence is a large following of florists who buy from us to obtain this highly specialized service.

Catering to the floral trade is a much more difficult proposition than supplying the millinery or dry goods trade, as the demands for different localities are so dissimilar that a rare understanding of the necessities of the floral trade is requisite. This can only be attained by a highly specialized organization such as ours.

If our travelers do not visit you, write for samples. DO IT NOW.

BEGONIA GLOIRE DE LORRAINE.

We have the largest and finest stock of this grand Christmas plant in America.

4-inch pots.....$35 per 100; $325 per 1000
5-inch pots, ready September 15.....$50 per 100
6-inch pots for specimen stock for Christmas.....$9 per dozen

We also have a very large stock of Light Begonia Lorraine (Edwin Lonsdale) sport at the same prices. This variety we consider far superior to the original type, it making a finer shaped plant as well as holding the flowers much better, while the color is a little lighter than that of the original Lorraine.

THE NEW CLEAR SCARLET BEDDING GERANIUM "HELEN MICHELL"

The best commercial novelty for 1913 (name registered with S. A. F. & O. H.). Seedling cross Jean Viaud and Alphonse Ricard. This sterling novelty will be introduced jointly by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and ourselves and the plants will all be grown by us at our place at Norwood, where we will be pleased to have you call. You will find that this Geranium has all the good points claimed for it. "Helen Michell" is semidouble, of the clearest possible shade of scarlet, is early in bloom and produces these continuously during the season. It grows compact medium dwarf, with lustrous green foliage, and throws up gigantic flower heads continuously; we claim it to have the largest flower heads of any of the bedding geraniums. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is a common occurrence that a single 4-inch pot plant shows 4 fully open gigantic flower heads, several half open, and more in bud. We are booking orders that will be filled in rotation from January, 1913.

MIKADO'S WREATH.

The daily papers last week were full of affairs Japanese: the funeral of the mikado and the events that accompanied it. In the cables many references were made to the representative of the United States government having placed a huge wreath beside the catafalque of the deceased emperor at Tokio. Well, in the accompanying illustration The Review shows the wreath.

When the mikado died President Taft sent Philander C. Knox to represent the American people at the obsequies. Secretary Knox made the journey by way of Seattle and, according to custom, arranged to place a large wreath on the dead ruler's bier as a mark of national respect. He bought his wreath in Seattle, of Mrs. Lena W. McCoy. Since the design was made about August 20 and not used, across the sea, until September 11, flowers were out of the question. Consequently the wreath was made of prepared magnolia leaves and cycas leaves. It was made in the empire form, tied with ribbon in our national colors, red, white and blue.

Thus does the magnolia leaf come into its own. Who can object to its use when the florist points out to his customer that it was used for royalty, in the wreath Uncle Sam placed on the casket of his good friend the mikado?

BASKETS IN FUNERAL WORK.

Is There Any Real Objection?

Following out the reasoning of those who are opposing the use of baskets at funerals, it would be inappropriate to grace the center of a table, at a dinner given to persons interested in maritime pursuits, with a floral anchor, for the reason that the anchor is used as a funeral piece. As well refrain from the use of white and pink roses at weddings because of their frequent use at funerals. The trouble with tuberoses and jasmines has been that they were thoughtlessly relegated to funerals and not appreciated as valuable in other decorative work.

What are flowers for at funerals, anyhow? To brighten what nowadays we regard at the worst as a gloomy incident, for death is but one of the incidents of the onward and upward course of life. Now, then, don't be skimpy with the sunshine which flowers, of all things, can scatter about most perfectly. Stop only this side of the giddy. But brilliancy of coloring and designing need never be giddy. Funeral tributes, if even fairly well executed, are not dead, but living, throbbing with life and emotion. This is especially true of baskets.

Capable of Infinite Variety.

In spite of the reasonable tinge which the arguments against the use of baskets at funerals have assumed, they are largely theoretical. It is not what they have done that is feared, but what they may do. Here is one fact, presented for what it is worth: I have used baskets in funeral work for ten years at least, and never once has the practice injured their use in other decorative work. On the contrary, it has served to increase their popularity for all purposes. But I can vouch for this prediction: If you conventionalize your basket work as the majority of florists treat their other design work, you may expect to have its use narrowed rather than broadened. Don't run any one style of design into the ground. Be it shower bouquet, centerpiece, formal emblem or basket, a constant repetition of the same arrangement will kill it. Of all designs, do not conventionalize the basket arrangement. It, of all, is capable of the most infinite variety.

Here are a few examples of variety in trimming the handle: Don't in one-tenth of the cases festoon the handle with smilax, asparagus or any other one material, no matter how attractive it may be in this case. Don't always or nearly always tie a cluster of flowers with a bow on top or at one side.

Variations in Handle Trimming.

Vary the trimming by some such decorations as these: A rosette bow with a bunchy cluster of flowers at either base or both bases of the handle; a tall spray on one side and a low group on the other; a wrapping of ribbon all around, loop and ends at one lower side, with slender-stemmed flowers and light sprays of green hanging; from the top of the tall handle of a tall basket drop a cluster of tiny moss baskets, filled to harmonize in color with the contents of the basket, but let the flowers be small, as in the case of a basket of roses or gladioli and the small basket of sweet peas; or violets in small baskets overhanging lilies in the basket below; an overhanging cluster of roses, the same as are used in the body of the basket, touching or almost touching; no decoration whatever of the handle, but an upreaching, full cluster from the body of the basket around the handle on both sides, no tie; a cluster of chiffon butterflies from the handle, suspended on black threads or fine wire, hovering over flowers below; a broad chiffon bow which assumes the suggestion of a veil over the flowers below, great care being exercised in the choice of color—a light, delicate tint over deeply colored flowers, as light lavender or pink over purple asters.

Don't Overload the Handle.

Of all things, don't overload the handle or cover it completely. This is the greatest fault with most of the basket work, both in the handle and body of the basket. Leave some vacancies. Use both long and short stems. Pay special attention to grouping, not allowing over two or three groups in the basket. Allow the slender stems to have their way and fall out over the edge. Many times a basket handle may be cut in two and the ends fastened back in a loop at the base of the handle. This effect is often good with a broad, low basket.

An Unusual Bride's Bouquet.

A happy treatment for a basket as a whole depends much upon the relation between the filling of the body of the basket and the handle decoration. If low growing flowers or plants are used in the basket and there is considerable space below the handle, let its trim be loose and showery.

A Tall, Deep Basket.

If the basket be tall and deep, use long-stemmed flowers or plants. To illustrate: Two generous groups of gladioli will fill a basket of this description. Leave a vacancy in the center; break a few stalks to hang down from one side of the handle. Secure, or appear to secure, the two groups to the handles with sash ties of heavy ribbon. Such a basket, used as a display piece, may be sold on the spot for a funeral tribute. My word for it, you are likely to be asked to refill this same basket several times during the season, for cemetery decoration.

If caught with a lot of undesirable shapes and colors of baskets, bend, cut or reshape them. Recolor by painting, covering or staining. Almost any old basket can be whipped into condition.

A basket for funeral work may be beautifully finished with a dove decoration. According to size and price, use from one to half a dozen doves. If a number are used, the grouping must be skillful; otherwise the effect will be ridiculous.

In a word, use baskets for funerals without much variation in style from that which you intend for a window display or reception table.

Gertrude Blair.

BOUQUET FOR A BRIDE.

The accompanying illustration shows a "different" bouquet for a bride—nothing quite like it has come into the office of The Review. The materials used include Kaiserin roses, valley, chiffon and baby ribbon. In form the bouquet is like a spray built on the stems of the roses, the end of the spray being tied with chiffon. The shower is in two sections, attached, apparently, at the point at which the chiffon is tied. The arrangement was by the Summerfield Floral Co., Springfield, Mo. It is to be regretted the photograph was not taken when the bride had the flowers in her arm. Many retailers who find the brides' bouquets the most difficult flowers they have to arrange would have been interested to see how this bride managed her bouquet.

THE ELKS' DESIGN.

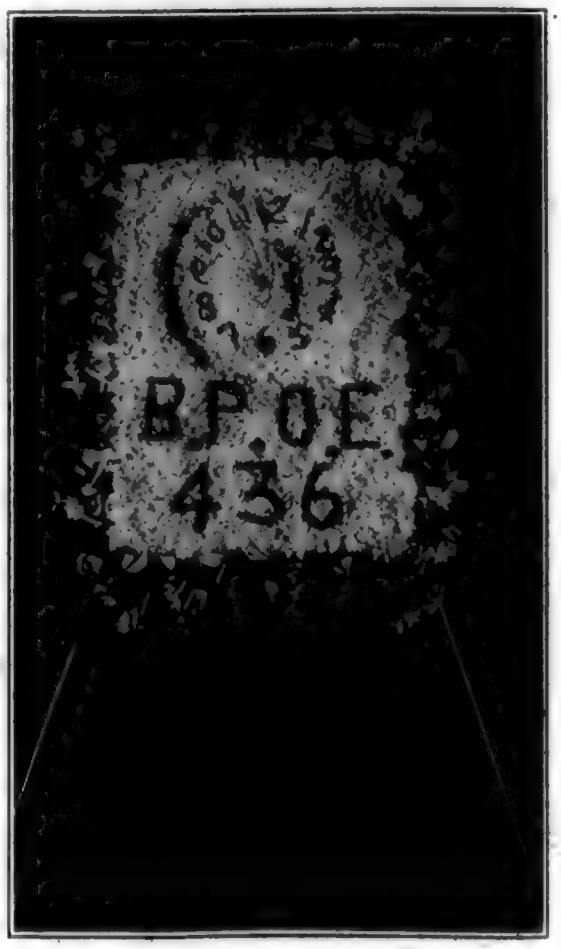
The accompanying illustration shows the design ordinarily made for the funeral of an Elk. There are an infinite number of amplifications of this arrangement, but this is the simple and typical form.

The clock must always be used in the Elk design. The hour hand must point to eleven and the minute hand to twelve. It is at eleven o'clock that the great brotherhood of Elks rises to the memory of the departed members. The design must also include the letters "B. P. O. E." and the lodge number. There are dozens of ways in which the florist may work these features into his design; it all depends upon the sum of money at his disposal. The design illustrated was made by the J. L. Dillon Estate, Bloomsburg, Pa.

SCALE ON PALMS.

We are having trouble with scale on palms and other plants, and have one house which needs quarantine treatment, as we are afraid to put clean stock into it. Would you recommend using gas, and, if so, how strong? Would you use it of the same strength for thrips, red spider, etc.? Will you kindly add the formula or refer us to a date when it was published in The Review? S. L. F. C.

Fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas is rather risky treatment for palms, and is quite likely to result in injury to the young foliage. Fumigation with nicotine paper will take care of the thrips, if regularly applied, and thorough syringing with a good pressure of water will dispose of red spider. For scale a solution of sulpho-tobacco soap, used as a dip, is giving good satisfaction to those who use it systematically.



You will find full instructions as to the use of hydrocyanic acid gas on page 16 of The Review of March 3, 1910. W. H. T.

SINGLE VIOLETS DISEASED.

I am sending, under separate cover, a violet plant which is badly diseased and which represents about three per cent of the house. It is of the Princess of Wales variety. The infected plants last season produced imperfect flowers until spring. Then the plants seemed to improve and produced good flowers. Would you advise throwing out the infected plants? The conditions and soil are the same throughout the beds in coldframes. E. R. C.

The sample plant, after its long journey from Oregon, was so badly decayed that it was impossible to see just what the disease was. I suppose, however, it is the spot trouble, which is common among violets, especially the doubles, such as Marie Louise and Lady Hume Campbell. If you have a small percentage of plants diseased it would certainly be the best policy to throw them away. If all leaves were picked off, new ones would probably be clean, but flower production would be sparse until spring. I am supposing that your plants are still outdoors. It is a mistake to house the single violets until they have had one or two freezings, just sufficient to check their rampant leaf growth. If you plant them early you will get a tremendous crop of foliage at the expense of flowers. Where you find occasional spotted leaves on plants after housing, pick them off and the trouble is not likely to spread.

THE PRICE OF GLASS.

There has been another advance in the price of glass, and especially on greenhouse sizes, as there is somewhat of a shortage at this time, owing to the long-continued shutdown of the factories during the summer. The probabilities are that factories will not resume operations until about November 1 and in that event the glass trade looks for still higher prices this winter. Greenhouse glass will probably not be any cheaper during the coming season than it is at the present time.

GARDENERS' CONVENTION.

Arrangements have been completed for the annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners, to be held at Newark, N. J., Tuesday, November 19. The new auditorium has been secured for the meeting place, and an exhibition of novelties, both from among the commercial and private growers, will be invited. The morning will be given to a bowling contest, the afternoon to the business session, and the evening to a banquet at the Continental hotel, the program having been arranged with a view of meeting the convenience of all members.

President Logan has appointed the following convention committee: Peter Duff, Orange, N. J.; William H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; A. Bauer, Elberon, N. J.; W. H. Waite, Yonkers, N. Y.; James Stuart, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; John Everitt, Glen Cove, N. Y.; Carl Schaeffer, Tuxedo, N. Y.; Frank E. Witney, Fishkill, N. Y.; William Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.; John F. Huss, Hartford, Conn.; Alexander T. Fraser, Newport, R. I.; Thomas Proctor, Lenox, Mass.; W. N. Craig, North Easton, Mass.; F. Kirk, Bar Harbor, Me.; Alexander McPherson, Washington, D. C.; A. J. Smith, Lake Geneva, Wis. Committee on final arrangements: Peter Duff, Orange, N. J.; Robert Tyson, Convent, N. J.; Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J.; M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J., and Austin C. Sayler, New York, N. Y.

A LONG ISLAND RANGE.

Curtis Thimm, at Roslyn, L. I., has just completed a range of three houses, ridge and furrow style, rather different from what his neighbors have, and with which he is extremely well pleased.

These new houses are each 27x200 feet and in the accompanying illustration are shown in a most interesting state of semi-completion. The upper picture shows the three houses entirely finished in so far as the roof is concerned, but with no side walls; the only supports are the I-beam posts in the walls and the pipes under the channel iron gutters. It certainly proves the strength and rigidity of the construction. The lower picture shows the truss that eliminates all but two lines of purlin posts. Ventilation is continuous, on one side only, the Foley Triumph machine being used, for the range was designed by the Foley Mfg. Co., and all the materials were shipped to Long Island from the mills at Chicago.

Mr. Thimm intends to grow a general line of cut flowers in these houses, for the New York wholesale market. His benching arrangements can be seen in the upper picture, through the place now occupied by the concrete wall. He used pecky cypress for the tables.

The Foley Mfg. Co., and the other Chicago building material concerns, have been largely increasing their business in the extreme east and have this season erected a considerable number of interesting ranges on Long Island and elsewhere along the Atlantic seaboard, which The Review may have the opportunity of picturing for its readers in the course of the next few months.

AN UP-TO-DATE PLANT.

Rasmussen of New Albany Has It.

It was fifteen years ago that Anders Rasmussen started in the greenhouse business at New Albany, Ind. His original range consisted of about 5,000 feet of glass, built after the most approved style of that day, and as the years have come and gone he has added steadily to his plant, until now it embraces 175,000 square feet of up-to-the-minute glass. He has kept in the front of the procession, always employing the latest ideas in his construction and providing every facility for the production of high-grade stock.

His principal crops are roses and carnations, but a few thousand lilies are forced and chrysanthemums and bulbous stock are employed as catch crops or side lines. Practically all the stock is sold at wholesale in Louisville, Ky., but a retail business is done locally, in New Albany and surrounding towns.

The New Service Building.

Mr. Rasmussen employs about thirty people, six of whom are women. He believes that, as plants are well known to do their best only under certain working conditions, so men and women are sure to do more and better work if their surroundings are in keeping with up-to-date ideas. For this reason, the comfort of the employees has had careful consideration in the planning of the new service building put up this season, and shown in the accompanying illustrations. It will stand as a fine example of the modern tendency toward irreproachable working conditions.

The new building is 31x100 feet, built of concrete blocks on a concrete foundation. On the first floor are lavatories, etc., as well as a dressing room for the girls employed. On the second floor are reading and billiard rooms and bowling alley, for the use of the employees. Several sleeping apartments, bathrooms and other modern conveniences are features. A basement 30x30, as well as the first story, has concrete floors, except the office and vestibule. The office is 20x20, equipped with all labor saving devices. The building contains a garage 30x30 feet and packing room with 900 square feet floor space. The building is steam heated and electric lighted throughout.

The Refrigerating Plant.

Possibly the feature that will interest the greatest number of growers is the refrigeration. Ice has been done away with. On the first floor are three cold rooms, two 7x13x8 feet and one 10x13x8, operated by a refrigerating machine that stands in the basement directly below the rooms. One of the smaller rooms can be cooled to 26 degrees, one to 30 degrees and the large one to 40 degrees. The direct expansion system, with holdover brine tanks, is used, an eight horse-power gasoline engine and a three and one-half ton compressor doing the work. The below-freezing temperatures in two of the rooms permit the storage of lily bulbs, valley pips, etc., in the place, and also the storage of the season's supply of ferns and other greens. The room carried above 40 degrees is used for cut flowers.

In speaking of the cost of installation and operation, Mr. Rasmussen said: "We run the machinery about six hours a day in the hottest weather, at a cost for oil, etc., of about 10 cents per hour. The water for cooling is run to the liquid fertilizer tank, saving considerable expense. The man who looks after the machinery when running receives $2.35 per day. Figuring the cost of installation at about $2,200 and interest on same, as well as depreciation on machinery, I should say it costs us about $2.50 per day for our cooling and 225 pounds of ice which we make every day, to be used for drinking water, packing, etc. That is in June, July, August and September, the cooler months of course costing less, while in midwinter, by opening the windows over night, there will be no expense whatever. Each room has valves, and can be run independently, as needed. The rooms have a 4-inch cork board insulation, with ½-inch cement plaster, and can be washed out with a hose at any time. We have enough cooling space to take care of the output of 300,000 feet of glass. The stock keeps better than in the old-fashioned ice-box, and we would not go back to that method if it cost twice the price to install. The machinery has not given the least trouble since its installation."

The refrigeration was installed by the Triumph Ice Machine Co., Cincinnati.

The manufacturer supplies the following additional details of the refrigerating apparatus:

"The plant is of three and one-half tons' nominal capacity. The ammonia compressor is horizontal, double acting, having a cylinder of 5-inch bore and 8-inch stroke. The power is obtained from a gas engine connected with the compressor by means of a belt. The ammonia condenser is of the double pipe type. The three rooms are piped for the direct expansion of ammonia, a portion of the piping being placed within overhead tanks containing brine solution. During the time the machine is in operation the brine is cooled and the surface of the tanks acts as a refrigerant during the time the plant is shut down. In addition to cooling the rooms the apparatus manufactures about 150 pounds of ice per day. For this purpose a separate brine tank is provided, complete with ammonia coils and ice cans.

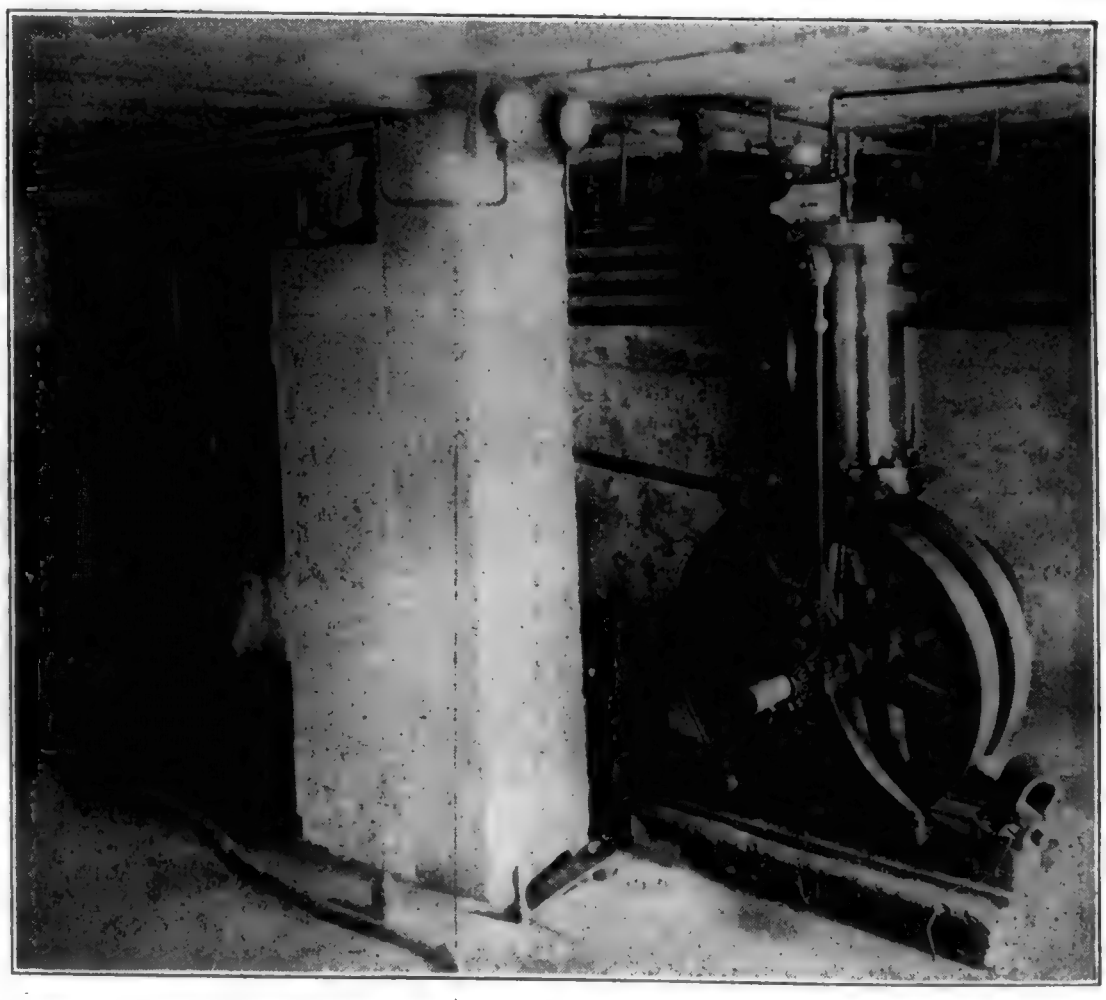
More About the Cost.

"Owing to the varied nature of the refrigerating machine business, it is almost impossible to even approximate the cost of such installations, as same will depend entirely upon the size of the rooms to be cooled and the temperatures desired; also, the question of power enters largely into the cost of plants. A plant similar to the one installed by Mr. Rasmussen would cost in the neighborhood of $1,500, exclusive of the power. Mr. Rasmussen purchased his own gas engine, and we do not know just what this cost. As to the cost of operation, this also depends upon the kind of power and the number of hours per day the plant is operated. A machine similar to Mr. Rasmussen's requires about seven horsepower to operate it. With electric current at the average cost, power would amount to $1.50 to $2 per day, supposing the plant operated in the daytime only."

THE WESTERN ASSOCIATION.

Dahlia and Gladiolus Show.



The first annual exhibition of the Western Dahlia and Gladiolus Association was held on the grounds of the Wisconsin State Fair, Milwaukee, September 10 to 14. Although not so large as was expected, still the show was creditable. Nearly 300 vases of the leading varieties of dahlias and gladioli, and a fine assortment of seedlings, were shown.

In dahlias, the exhibit of H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee, consisting largely of seedlings, was a good show. One white rivals Storm King, a better flower, and the stem of nearly the same texture. Snow Storm, a single white, is of exceptional value. A fine exhibit of his own hybrids was staged and showed advancement in this line of work for the exhibitor.

A new exhibitor in the dahlia field is J. T. Fitchett, of Janesville, Wis. He showed 114 varieties of standard named dahlias, of both American and European introduction. Souvenir de Gustave Doazon was a magnificent bloom, over eight inches in diameter, and took the prize for the largest dahlia bloom on exhibition. Delice was fine. Jeanne Charmet and Lord Milner, both new European varieties, are fine acquisitions. Geisha, a new Japanese, oriental red and yellow, was really the most striking flower in the show. Philadelphia is a good 6-inch lavender and white. Dreer's White also showed up well. The general dahlia display of Mr. Fitchett would have carried off all honors had the right complement of flowers of each variety been placed in each vase as the rules required.

H. W. Koerner took first premium for six dahlias for commercial purposes, with two of his own seedlings, Sylvia, Emily, Snow Storm, and an unnamed variety. E. S. Thompson, Benton Harbor, Mich., took second with two of his own seedlings, Pink Peony and No. 153, and Gloria, Sylvia, Livoni, and Alexis, Jr.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Cinerarias.

Like the calceolarias, cinerarias hang fire while the weather remains hot. Do not be discouraged, however, for like many other plants, they will take on a big spurt as soon as the cool nights arrive. Give them a moderately rich soil. No leaf-mold should be used after the first potting. Instead use some old, spent hotbed or mushroom manure, passed through a screen. One-third of this to two-thirds loam will suit them to a nicety. Do not place any of them in the greenhouse unless you are obliged to, as they grow more vigorously in frames where they are close to the glass and can have air in abundance at the top and bottom of the sashes all the time. To keep aphis in check, spray once a week with a nicotine extract. This will also help to get rid of the small worms which attack the foliage now and will soon disfigure it unless carefully searched for. The midday sun is too much for cinerarias, but no shading is needed now after 3 p. m. Spray them on warm days. Few plants appreciate spraying more than cinerarias.

Gloxinias.

The earliest flowered gloxinia plants are now losing their foliage and should be laid on their sides in a frame or pit to dry. They can be moved to their winter quarters later. Do not throw the plants under the benches, to be the prey of sow-bugs and other larvæ. As soon as the flowering season is over, let the plants dry gradually. If this is not done the tubers will not keep, but when wanted in spring will be found a mass of dry rot. Treat tuberous begonias in the same way if you want them to keep.

Antirrhinums.

The earliest batch of plants is now well established in the benches and is sending up a nice lot of flower spikes. These will come in at a time when mums are in season, but there is always a sale for good snapdragons, even when the queen of autumn is at her height, and these same plants, if intelligently cared for, will flower all winter long. It is surprising what a demand and an interest has sprung up in these plants in even the last year. Specialists state that they can hardly supply the demand for rooted cuttings, for all who have seen them well grown are anxious to grow them, and there are few flowers which pay the florist more per square foot than snapdragons well grown.

Plants which are coming along in pots to follow early mums should not be allowed to become potbound. Pinch back young plants when they are four to six inches high. This causes them to break back. Allow three or four shoots to a plant if you want strong spikes. If, on the other hand, medium spikes sell better, as is often the case for home trade, allow all to grow. Pink is the color most sought after and anyone getting a really good one among his seedlings should hold on to it and propagate from it freely, as he also should a first-class white or yellow. Other colors sell to only a limited extent in the wholesale markets.

Some growers plant outdoors and later lift from the field and plant indoors. Previous to lifting, head the plants well back and do not allow them to flower at all. I do not find this method gives as satisfactory results as when plants from pots are used, but if shaded until established they give good returns.

Amaryllis Belladonna.

That charming, pink-flowered variety, Amaryllis Belladonna, which has been resting through the summer, is now pushing up its flower spikes. As soon as these appear, move the plants to a cool greenhouse and supply water regularly. Any repotting needed should be done now, but it is well to remember that plants do not flower freely until well potbound. This amaryllis, I find, succeeds well in 10-inch and 12-inch pots. These prove serviceable for decorations in September and October.

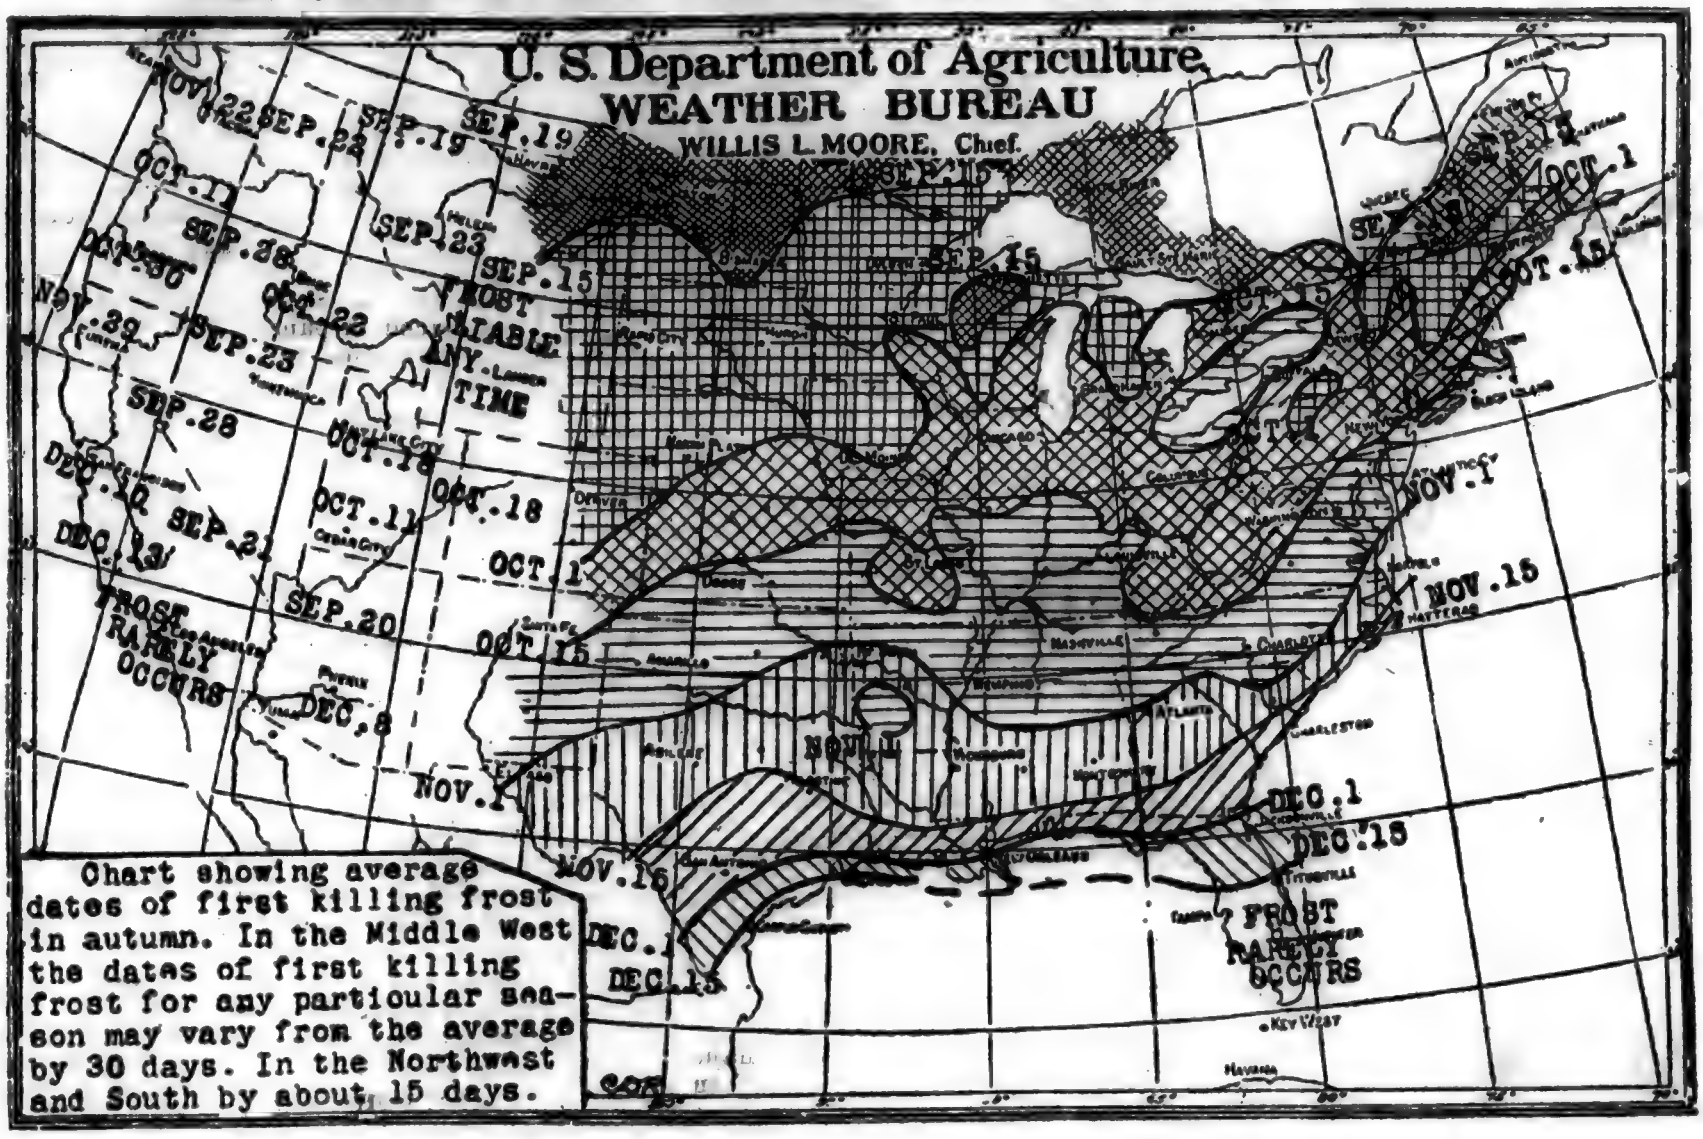
Freesias.

A second batch of freesias can now be placed in pans and will make a useful succession to the earliest planting. These will come through the soil much more quickly than the first batch. The early freesias are now several inches high. I keep them on a side bench in a house where they can get an abundance of air and light. Early in October they will be moved to a shelf in a carnation house, where the night temperature is 52 to 54 degrees. There they invariably give a fine crop of spikes for Christmas, a time when freesias sell particularly well.

EGGEBRECHT'S ASTERS.

The accompanying illustration was prepared from a photograph made at the establishment of Otto Eggebrecht, just outside of Milwaukee. The plants are from seed saved by Mr. Eggebrecht and reselected year after year. The C. C. Pollworth Co., which sells Mr. Eggebrecht's cut, says that he has worked up an exceptionally fine strain.

NEW YORK STATE FEDERATION.



The meeting of the New York State Federation of Florists' Clubs was held in Commissioner Driscoll's rooms in the Cornell building, at the Fair grounds, Syracuse, Thursday, September 12, at 4 p. m. Present: President W. F. Kasting, Buffalo; Vice-President E. R. Fry, Rochester; Secretary John Young, New York; Treasurer W. A. Adams, Buffalo; Frank R. Pierson, E. W. Neubrand, Charles Vick, H. Youell, Felix Albers, George B. Hart, Fred Thomann, Com. C. J. Hewson, Robert Bard, F. W. Bannister, Wm. Wind, Julius Thomann, W. R. Pierson, B. T. Bohannan, J. W. Norris, R. C. Scott, W. E. Day, Dr. E. A. Bates, George Arnold, Arthur Cowee, I. Hendrickson.

The secretary's report showed the great interest being taken in this state federation. The membership at present consists of the New York Florists' Club, Buffalo Florists' Club, Rochester Florists' Association, Tarrytown Horticultural Society, Nassau County Horticultural Society, Tuxedo Horticultural Society, Syracuse Rose Society, Syracuse Florists' Association, Albany Florists' Club, and the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association.

The treasurer's report showed the payment of the assessments from these societies and that there had been no bill for expenditures up to date.

Frank R. Pierson gave a detailed report for the committee on legislation and offered important recommendations as to the proper method of securing the appropriation for greenhouses for experimental work in floriculture at Cornell University. Prof. A. C. Beal addressed the meeting on the subject, after which the same was approved. The New York State Vegetable Growers' Association will be invited to join us in the endeavor to secure the appropriation of $50,000 for the purpose mentioned.

George E. Thorp made an important recommendation as to the proper method to be adopted to bring about a state appropriation for a horticultural building on the fair grounds in Syracuse, and the subject was handled in great style by President Kasting, Dr. Erl A. Bates, George Thorp, Arthur Cowee, Charles Vick and Treasurer Adams. Edmund Van Alstyne, director of Farmers' Institute, New York Department of Agriculture, asked permission to address the meeting, promising the support of the Western New York Horticultural Society and the Western Pomological Association in the endeavor to get this new building. A committee of nine will be appointed, three from each society, the State Federation of Florists' Clubs, the Western New York Horticultural Society (or the fruit growers), and the State Vegetable Growers' Association, to take this matter up with the State Fair Commission. Frank R. Pierson, Dr. Erl A. Bates and Charles Vick were appointed by President Kasting to represent the Federation of Florists' Clubs. Charles H. Vick, superintendent of the exhibition of plants and flowers at the fair, and Assistant Superintendent Wm. E. Day were accorded a standing vote of thanks for the highly successful manner in which all arrangements of the exhibition had been carried out.

Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., gave a stirring address on "Publicity." This subject, so ably presented by Mr. Pierson, was received with enthusiasm by all present, everyone realizing that it was an important move in the right direction.

Upon Mr. Cowee's motion, the secretary was instructed to write the Fair Commission that it was the sense of this meeting that the children be admitted free to have their competition in plants and flowers, on Monday, as had been done in previous years. This permission, it was understood, had been denied them on Monday of this season's fair.

The same officers as at present were elected to serve another year and President Kasting appointed the same committees.

The meeting was adjourned to meet in Farmers' week at the Department of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. John Young, Sec'y.

TO FIGHT THRIPS.

As you frequently give suggestions as to remedies for diseases or pests on plants, I take the liberty of asking you to give me a remedy for thrips on chrysanthemums, or rather a preventive of the pest in this locality, southern Louisiana. I have a fine stand this year, but fear that it will be attacked by thrips, as it was threatened with them last year, and I should like to take precautions in time to prevent the trouble. M. B.

About all that I can suggest as a remedy for thrips on mums, or a preventive of the pest, is to spray with a tobacco extract or one of the proprietary solutions. Perhaps one of your neighbors can tell you of some remedy that has been tested and did the work effectively in your locality.

Thrips are a hard pest to fight. You might try the solution used by the Beauty growers indoors to clean off thrips, which is a mixture of Paris green and sugar. The percentage of sugar is not important, so long as it is thoroughly dissolved in the water, but only enough Paris green should be used to tint the water, as any stronger solution will kill the young leaves.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

ARE FLORISTS PROGRESSING?

The Modern Idea of Progress.

The recent international show in London has, no doubt, led many people to think that horticulture the world over, and especially in Britain, is progressing rapidly; that we are doing far better than our forebears. But, reading between the lines of the reports of this show and taking it as the highest standard horticulture has to offer, it will perhaps be worth while to ask the question: "Are we progressing, and along what lines?"

There is one cardinal difference between old-time horticultural practice and that of the present day. The tendency of later times has been, not so much to rear a variety or a species of plant or flower to a superlative degree of excellence by unusual cultural skill, as to find a plant or flower that can "stand the racket" and produce largely of salable blooms under the labor-saving and time-saving conditions that obtain in present-day horticultural practice. It cannot, I think, be denied that this is progress. It is the progress of the modern hustling, money-making times, as distinct from the older florists' point of view.

Some Old-time Exhibits.

I am old enough to remember London shows where the older generation of florists passed by beautiful though small exhibits of herbaceous, Alpine, rock and similar plants and gardens with a sniff of disdain, as something quite beneath their notice. They regarded orchid growers as cranks and went on to examine their flat boxes of picotees, carnations and pinks, each flower dressed out flat, with its own paper collar around it; every petal exactly alike in shape, position and markings. Their pansies must each have their margin of a certain depth; their in-curved chrysanthemums must be about the contour of baseballs and about as graceful, and so on through the whole gamut.

In the light of modern times these men appear, as they undoubtedly were, the real cranks, but when we consider the difficulties they had to contend with, the lack of conveniences for carrying out their work and the primitive structures they had to use, then we are bound to give them all credit for their skill. For skill it was—of a different kind from that we use today, but skill nevertheless.

Old-time Specimen Plants.

Again, what has become of the truly magnificent stove and greenhouse plants, of large size, that graced the old-time exhibitions? I think we should have to look a long way nowadays to find the grand specimen ericas, the ixoras, the clivias—yes, even the allamandas, dipladenias and clerodendrons of twenty years and more ago. It took skill to grow these, and time and patience too, as many can attest who have spent a week or more trying out a single plant.

Take even the case of orchids. The progress in this family has been grand beyond the dreams even of comparatively modern times; still, the old-time specimen plants are lacking. No one who remembers the grand specimens of aërides, vandas and others of this class can think of their passing without regret, though it must be conceded that the small plants and present-day hybrids are far more valuable from all standpoints.

Orchids in America and England.

In England progress has been rapid of late years with orchids, while over here we are losing ground. Taking into consideration the thousands of plants imported every year for cutting from, some may perhaps question this statement, but it is quite true. Thirty years ago there were rare and valuable collections in New York and other eastern states, that ran the British and continental growers a close race, but where are we today? Let those who viewed the orchid show at Boston two years ago, and also the recent show in London, answer this.

Here, again, we see evidence of the searching for the easily grown and the prolific. The cattleya, showy and easily grown, is cultivated almost exclusively, while such lovely orchids as Odontoglossum crispum and its varieties are neglected simply because skill is needed in their culture.

Beautiful, but Neglected.

They say our summers are too hot for these Alpine species. The same thing was said about European continental countries thirty years ago; yet nowhere on earth, perhaps, have finer odontoglossums been grown than in Belgium. Quite recently, in a California collection, where the ubiquitous cattleya flourishes, I noted some fine plants of Odontoglossum Pescatorei and O. cirrhosum flowering beautifully, though relegated to a back seat to make room for their showy compeers, already mentioned. Probably the cool nights of the Pacific slope had a good deal to do with their satisfactory condition. True progress in orchid culture would include the growing of all that is most beautiful in the family and would not arbitrarily tie the growers down to those species that have only their showiness and free flowering qualities to recommend them.

Some Real, Undoubted Progress.

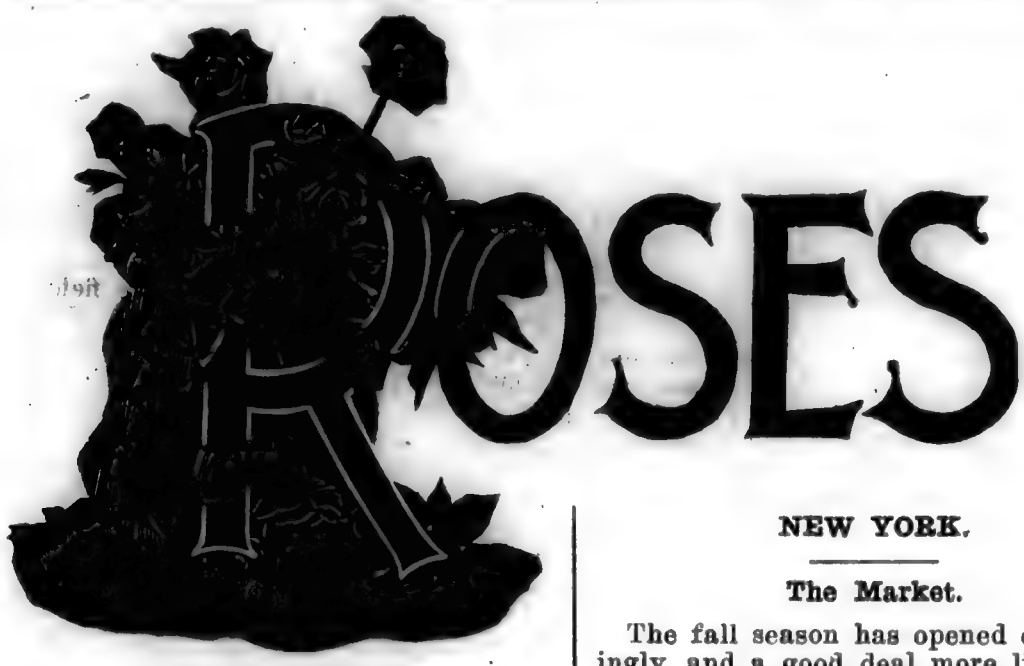
Probably nothing in American floriculture has shown such marvelous progress as have roses and carnations. So wonderful has the progress in these lines been that even the English growers, though sometimes said to be self-satisfied and disdainful of Yankee methods, are taking steps to profit by the example set on this side and are now building large, light houses of American style and giving the plants the freedom of a bench instead of confining their roots to pots.

Lawson was a great advance over anything we had previously seen in carnations, but look at our modern giants! Not so long ago Bridesmaid and Bride practically held the field as the best pink and white roses. Where are they now? Where are even the houses that ten years ago were thought to be the last word in construction? We surely have made true progress along these lines.

Hindrances to Progress.

A great drawback to progress in American horticulture is the great distances between various points. Things are happening in the east and middle west of which the Pacific coast growers are quite unaware, excepting for what they read. Boosters for the Pacific coast have made such foolish statements that easterners are prone to shrug their shoulders and take with a grain of salt the truth about the really wonderful things that are to be seen in California. Could these things be brought together in one great exhibition, as the English growers can do, many misconceptions would be cleared up and much good would result to horticulture as a national pursuit.

It will be many years yet before the "back to the land" movements, the school gardens, the women's clubs and the many other aids to progress will make the average American citizen a garden lover in the same sense as the European. We order our flowers, fruit and vegetables over the phone the same as other necessities, and the idea of a garden in a general way is a lawn with a straight walk to the porch or front door. The profit and pleasure of a real garden are forgotten, or rather unknown, in the rush. But the love for these things is inherent in all of us. It has been stifled for the time by this rush of progress in other lines of endeavor, but it will reassert itself or be awakened and, when it does, this alone will be a great aid to progress in horticulture.



ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Monthly meetings of the Rochester Florists' Association were resumed September 9, with the president, John Dunbar, in the chair. There were two papers of interest. The first was by Fred W. Vick, on the "Propagation of Hardy Perennials." The other paper was by James Bishop, on the "Possibilities of Using American Trees and Shrubs for American Gardens," arguing that the home product was better adapted than the foreign.

Fred Vick, William T. Logan and E. R. Fry were appointed as delegates to the convention of the State Federation of Florists' Clubs, held September 12, at Syracuse.

Hartford, Conn.—John Coombs is adding two houses.

Columbus, O.—The Farmers' and Florists' Chemical Co. has been incorporated, with headquarters in this city. The capital stock is $125,000, and the object of the organization is the manufacture and sale of fertilizers.

RAMBLER ROSES.

If you want rambler roses for Easter, 1913, you must look well after your plants. If they are planted out, do not allow the canes to sprawl over the ground. They will not ripen there. Tie them up so that they can get sun, to make the wood hard and well ripened. Remember that March 23, when Easter Sunday comes next year, is an unusually early date, and rambler roses to be in bloom at that time must have the wood thoroughly ripened as early as possible in the fall. Of course, plants that are grown in pots are all right; the wood on these will mature much more easily than on the outdoor grown stock, but whichever way you are growing them, tie up the shoots and do not let them wander ad libitum over the ground.

BLACK SPOT ON KILLARNEYS.

I have a rose house which I planted with Killarneys on their own roots. I purchased them from a dealer and planted them in the house July 16. They had some black spot when I received them, but not enough to cause any alarm, but they have grown worse ever since. The bottom leaves are falling and the top leaves are getting the spots on. I leave plenty of air on, both day and night. If the temperature runs down outside to 60 degrees I reduce the night ventilation. I have not fired up on one or two occasions where it dropped to 56 degrees. I would be thankful if you would suggest a remedy or give your opinion as to the prospects of getting rid of the trouble.

J. J. O.

The roses were probably propagated from plants having black spot. It is not an easy disease to get rid of. The best remedy is to keep affected leaves picked off as fast as they appear. This is a slow, somewhat tedious method and may give your plants a rather defoliated appearance for the time being, but if you leave any affected leaves, either on the plants or on the ground, the trouble will surely spread. When syringing, be sure to have the foliage dry before nightfall. If at all damp, go over and tap them with a stick. Keep a little air on at night, to prevent the atmosphere from becoming too clammy. A little fire heat on cool, damp nights would assist materially in getting rid of the spot. Just enough to warm the pipes will suffice. C. W.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The fall season has opened encouragingly, and a good deal more life seems infused into the retail trade. Asters and gladioli are lessening in quantity daily and the quality of roses and carnations is improving. The plantsmen are busy filling their fall orders and already the voice of the auctioneer is heard in the land. The schools have opened, the folks are all back from the country, and the weddings are in full swing. Perfect weather has helped. Last week the Jewish New Year celebration aided in the uplift and September 14 saw the market on a better basis than heretofore this season.

Beauty roses are improving rapidly in quality and values remain steady. The supply of all other varieties in the shorter grades is now abundant, but few are yet up to the special grade. Prices continue low except for the selects, and these are all sold before arrival. Carnations are scarce and short-stemmed, and most of the arrivals are of poor quality. The improvement is slow, and anything approaching perfection brings good prices. Dahlias are now taking the place of asters and some handsome specimens are seen in the stock of the wholesalers who make this flower their specialty. The shortage in the orchid market is over. From many sources comes a supply of Cattleya gigas and C. labiata of superb quality that has already lowered values twenty-five per cent. Gardenias are more numerous and of better quality. The valley shipments are normal and there has been no change in price. Sweet peas are growing abundant. Chrysanthemums are selling fairly well. Golden Glow and Smith's Advance are in full supply and of excellent grade. The earliness of these shipments is abnormal. Mums and dahlias have relegated asters and gladioli to the has beens. Hydrangea is perfect and abundant. There seems little demand for tritomas.

Various Notes.

The auction season has opened in earnest with three dispensers of palms, bulbs and nursery stock of foreign and local origin. Tuesdays and Fridays promise to be lively days, from now until Thanksgiving, on Vesey street and at the uptown mart.

September 25 and 26 the eighty-first annual exhibition of the American Institute will be held at the Berkeley Lyceum building. In addition to dahlias there will be shown orchids, palms, herbaceous flowers, and fruits and vegetables, as usual.

Wm. E. Marshall & Co. are now located in their new store, at 166 West Twenty-third street. Here they have space for their rapidly increasing business.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newell, of Kansas City, arrived home from Europe on the Baltic September 18 and will spend several days in New York this week.

P. H. Goodsell is still suffering from blood poisoning, at his summer home in Mamaroneck, N. Y.

The latest addition to the wholesale contingent is L. B. Nason, who has made 116 West Twenty-eighth street his headquarters. Mr. Nason has had several years' experience with A. L. Young & Co.

Geo. Allen, son of J. K. Allen, has established a prosperous business at 80 Audubon avenue, in the Bronx, corner of One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street.

Woodrow & Marketos have stocked their big store with an assortment of palms and ferns for the fall retail demand.

Badgley, Riedel & Meyer were displaying, last week, the first violets of the season.

There are rumors, apparently well founded, of a combination of business interests by two of the wholesale houses with headquarters on the Guttman floor of the Coogan building.

Charles Millang has sold to John Miesem, of Elmhurst, L. I., a combination Ford delivery car. Mr. Millang has the Ford agency for Brooklyn and vicinity.

B. S. Slinn, Jr., is now established on the third floor of the Coogan building and ready for the distribution of his specialty, the modest violet.

J. T. Lovett, of Little Silver, N. J., has had a prosperous year, one landscape contract amounting to $25,000. Another, secured last week by Lester C. Lovett, for the estate of Wm. Fahnestock, of Katonah, N. Y., will run to $10,000. Lester Lovett has bought a 75-acre fruit farm near Milford, Del.

The American Rose Society held an executive committee meeting at the office of Traendly & Schenck September 10, Messrs. Hammond, Pierson, Farenwald, Holmes and Traendly attending.

C. B. Weathered, F. H. Traendly and John Young attended the meeting of the New York Federation of Florists' Clubs last week at Syracuse.

The employees of the New York Cut Flower Co. and the New York Cut Flower Exchange, all in the Coogan building, will play a game of ball at Woodside, L. I., and will be the guests of Philip Kessler, who will donate the prizes and entertain them with a dinner in the evening.

John Lewis Childs and J. D. Cockcroft are among the leading florists of this section identified with the Bull Moose party.

Wm. Kessler is back from his summer home on the Shrewsbury for the season.

The Young & Nugent Co. is busy installing bulb stock at 42 West Twenty-eighth street. The office of the company is in the same building. The trade wishes Mr. Nugent success in his new enterprise.

Mrs. John Kral, who has been seriously ill in the Greenwich hospital, with typhoid fever, is convalescing.

Paul Meconi says the Bound Brook growers already are in crop.

One of M. C. Ford's growers has been sending in a fine lot of celosias in pots.

Siebrecht & Siebrecht are delighted with their new store, and business has doubled with them already. George Siebrecht returned September 16 from his auto trip north.

The florists' supply houses are having the best season in their experience.

J. Austin Shaw.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Business was much better last week than it has been for some time, due to the large amount of funeral work that has fallen to the local florists. The McLean funeral called for a large number of pieces and it is said that there were more than 225 floral designs in the McLean home, and that such a profusion of flowers has not been seen in the national capital in years. Orchids and roses of all varieties, lily of the valley, gardenias, stephanotis and carnations were used in great quantities. Of the designs purchased locally, J. H. Small & Sons furnished the largest number.

The Jewish holiday also boomed the selling of flowers and a number of weddings took place. Orchids are scarce and are bringing from $9 to $12 per dozen. Roses are constantly improving in quality and are ranging in price from $1 per hundred up. Carnations also are in better shape, but there are few being sent to the local market. Valley is bringing $3 and $4 and is this week moving well where last week it hung fire. Gladioli are about over, although some few are still to be had. New crop eastern American Beauties are bringing from $1 to $3 per dozen.

Various Notes.

Several importers have been in this city the last few days for the purpose of consulting with the Federal Horticultural Board on matters concerning the Simmons law for the regulation of importations of nursery stock. There are quite a number of the features of this law that are not generally understood and the board will be requested to interpret them.

The new home of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., 1216 H street, N. W., is rapidly nearing completion and it will not be long before the firm will be located therein. The building has been erected and all that is now needed is the interior finishing and equipment. The new store is one of the best of its kind in this section; it will be fitted throughout with every modern convenience. The building is two stories high, but for the present the company will utilize the main and basement floors only.

Jas. McHutchison and C. B. Knickman, of McHutchison & Co., New York, were in town this week. Robert Shoch, with M. Rice & Co.; I. Rosnosky, with H. F. Michell Co.; J. J. Gowdy, with H. A. Dreer; Paul Berkowitz, of Bayersdorfer & Co., and S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, have been calling on the local trade.

Adolphus Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., has returned from a trip to Indianapolis, where he attended the triennial conclave of the Royal Arch Masons of North America, being the delegate chosen by the District of Columbia. Mr. Gude stopped at a number of the large cities on his return trip.

William F. Gude is a member of the committee of Washington business and professional men who will aid the national committee in its work of creating a world's permanent exhibition in this city. C. L. L.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Business is much more encouraging. Stock of most kinds is improving and the prices are the firmest they have been this season. There are some fine roses and a few good carnations. Chrysanthemums are limited in quantity, but there are large supplies of asters. Gladioli are dropping off and lilies are not overabundant. Cattleya labiata and Oncidium varicosum are coming in quantities and are fine. There are always enough good flowers in the market to take care of all trade, and the prices, as a rule, are satisfactory to all parties.

Various Notes.

Harvey Sheaf, manager for Mrs. E. A. Williams, leaves this week for a trip to Panama. He is a little late with his vacation, but Mrs. Williams and the balance of the force are all settled down to business and he feels he needs a trip after what has been a good summer as far as business is concerned.

To Mr. and Mrs. John Sisley, of the McCallum Co., a son, and to Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hall, of the A. W. Smith Co., a daughter, and others to hear from.

Mrs. E. C. Ludwig, who has been ill for some time, is still confined to bed.

Sylvester Koval, who has been doing landscape work in the east end, has opened a flower stand in the Liberty Market.

Harry J. Hamm has his delivery truck fitted up with illuminated signs. It looks well at night and attracts considerable attention. Mr. Hamm is one of the progressive ones, always looking for something new.

Henry Meuschke is now a conspicuous figure in the flower market. For some years he has been known as a successful grower, but as treasurer of the Ludwig Floral Co. he spends the greater part of his time in the store. The firm has been cutting some fine asters at its farm at Mars, Pa., and is now arranging to grow everything in hardy flowers that can be used for summer cut blooms.

Faulk Bros., of the north side, report trade as making a better showing than ever before so early in the season. By close attention to business, these men have built up a large trade, which is still increasing.

William Turner, of Wilkinsburg, Pa., is another florist who thinks horses too slow for the present day and is securing autos to take their place.

The florists who get their coal from this market should have a good supply on hand, as the car shortage is liable to catch them asleep. Hoo-Hoo.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.

At the opening of the second annual dahlia exhibition of the New Haven Horticultural Society in Harmonie hall September 12, John Slocombe won the John N. Champion cup for scoring the most points in competition with florists from all over the state and the second award went to Forbes & Keith Co., of New Bedford.

The awards were made by the exhibition committee, consisting of Herbert F. Clark, chairman; John H. Slocombe, Frank E. Duffy, W. H. Beattie, A. W. Davidson and Richard Bell.

In the professional dahlia class, prizes were awarded to John H. Slocombe, Forbes & Keith, George H. Walker, George L. Stillman, Thomas Bell, Fairfield; David Kidd, North Haven.

The S. H. Moore Co. prize for the most meritorious exhibit went to William Tricker, of Arlington, N. J. The John Lewis Childs prize for gladioli went to John H. Slocombe.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Reed & Cheney Reorganize.

In order to take over the properties of the Grand Rapids Greenhouse Co., the capital stock of the purchasing company, Reed & Cheney, has been increased from $10,000 to $100,000 and the reorganization of the corporation has been effected. The officers remain as before, with Charles L. Reed, president; Carl W. Wiley, vice-president; H. J. Cheney, secretary and treasurer. The growing end of the business will be in charge of President Reed, while Mr. Cheney will tend to the selling department. The business which Reed & Cheney have taken over is the largest spread of greenhouse glass in the state of Michigan and has until recently been in the hands of William H. Gilbert, who has acted as receiver since the failure of the Grand Rapids Greenhouse Co. The property includes five acres on Burton avenue, just outside of the city limits, nine acres on Madison, eight on Alger and twenty on South Division, south of the city limits. On these sites are located the various greenhouse plants, with a total of about 225,000 square feet of greenhouse glass, the largest of the plants being on the Madison avenue place. The work of putting everything in shape for the coming season will begin at once and in some of the plants the heating apparatus will be overhauled with the idea of securing greater efficiency. Besides Mr. Reed and Mr. Cheney, who are the principal stockholders, the others who have taken stock interests in the firm are Henry Smith, the prominent florist of this city; John Wierenga and Peter Blanksma, well known greenhouse growers of this section.

Besides operating the Grand Rapids Greenhouse properties, the Reed & Cheney organization will act as selling agents for the Grand Rapids Growers' Association. At the annual meeting of the association, held September 9, it was decided to continue to employ Reed & Cheney in this capacity, which the latter firm has held for two years. The Growers' Association also elected the following officers for the coming year: Rudolph Zant, president; Jerry Keyes, vice-president; Vernon Gross, secretary and treasurer. Several of the members of the association have been enlarging their plants this year and the association will represent a materially increased area of glass this winter. The first plantings of lettuce and radish have been made and there will be stock ready for market shortly after the first killing frost.

Peter Blanksma, Bert N. Stiles and R. Yonker, members of the Grand Rapids Growers' Association, were in Rochester recently, attending the convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

Champaign, Ill.—J. E. Yeats has opened a flower store in the Eggleston music house.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

Louisville, O.—Milton Taylor is erecting a greenhouse, 35x100, and is starting business as a florist and market gardener.

Lyons, Ia.—George E. Dallam has installed a new hot water heating system at his greenhouses and has made many other important improvements.

Adams, Mass.—A. J. Boothman is rebuilding part of his greenhouses. His son, Thomas, has been assisting him in superintending the work of construction.

Binghamton, N. Y.—Harry Hopkins has awarded the contract for the erection of a large addition to his greenhouses, near the corner of Main street and Floral avenue.

Springfield, Mass.—The United Refrigerator & Ice Co., 20 East Court street, has installed United refrigerators for T. F. Sheehan, Matthews & Hassell and C. C. Calverly, State street florists. These refrigerators are so constructed as to conform to the architectural treatment of the interior of the stores and are eliciting much favorable comment.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The firm of Lewis & Denney recently started business here, with headquarters on the Ringgold road, near Fort Oglethorpe. Both members of the firm are expert florists. Besides conducting both a flower and a nursery department, they may establish an extensive truck farm, to be operated on a thoroughly scientific basis. Mr. Lewis was for a number of years connected with the United States Department of Agriculture.

Lebanon, Pa.—Travelers who pass C. C. Yost's new four-acre property, at South Tenth street, cannot fail to notice his sign, which is made of plants of brilliant red hue, growing in a conspicuous place on the hillside and forming the words, "Yost—Florist." Mr. Yost will remove his greenhouses, one at a time, from South Sixth street to this new location. The Lebanon and Campbelltown street railway will pass within a few feet of the range.

La Crosse, Wis.—Mr. and Mrs. Guillaume, who founded their flower business in this city about thirty years ago, own a hundred-acre farm up the Mississippi river at Dakota, Minn. The farm is under the personal supervision of Mr. Guillaume, while Mrs. Guillaume has charge of the store at the corner of Fifth and Main streets, which she has held under lease for the last ten years. On the farm some acres of hardy outdoor flowers are grown, and the Guillaume aster field is recognized as one of the notable attractions visible from the river. The bulk of the stock for the Guillaume store, however, is now shipped in from Chicago.

Grand Rapids, Wis.—Paul Baese, formerly of Merrill, Wis., is building greenhouses here.

Champaign, Ill.—Gus Johnson has been in business here for five years. He has 18,000 feet of glass and employs six men in summer and ten in winter.

Punxsutawney, Pa.—The Indiana Floral Co. has been incorporated here, with a capital of $15,000, by S. Taylor Shaffer, Virginia M. Shaffer, Earl H. Snyder and Lydia Snyder.

Kankakee, Ill.—Charles Schafer is erecting a fern house, with a basement which will be used for cold storage. The new building extends from the main range of greenhouses to the street.

Fort Smith, Ark.—C. J. Brockman is preparing to remove his sales department, conducted under the name of the Brockman Flower Shop, from Sixth and A streets to 11 North Eighth street. A greenhouse, 15 x 100, will be erected at the new location and the store itself will be fitted up with the best modern equipments.

Collinsville, Ill.—H. Johann, of H. Johann & Son, began life as a farmer at the Johann family homestead and has personally owned the farm since 1888. He erected his first greenhouse in 1892, and the production and marketing of flowers have engaged his attention ever since. In 1892 he opened his store in Collinsville and bought the property on Main street where his residence is now located. In 1905 he took his son in as a partner.

Red Level, Ala.—A. A. Gibbons is making arrangements to ship more smilax and other greens this season than ever before. He reports that smilax was never in better condition than now, as the weather recently has been highly favorable to it, with plenty of rain. There is also a prospect, he says, for a fine quality of holly, with plenty of berries. In fact, the outlook with reference to greens in general is encouraging in this locality and southern shippers are looking forward to a good business.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Mills the Florist, Inc., has renewed for a long term of years the lease on the property now occupied by the company, and will soon begin extensive alterations in the building. The front of the store will be entirely remodeled and the interior improvements will include a new mahogany refrigerator, one of the finest in the south. The size of the salesroom will be increased by removing the workshop to the rear of the First Savings Bank, next door. A warehouse at the rear, at present occupied by another firm, has also been secured by Mills the Florist and will be used as a storehouse.

Bridgeport, Conn.—E. Soules recently obtained a permit to build a greenhouse on Myrtle avenue.

Bozeman, Mont.—Announcement is made of the marriage of Frank X. Scully and Miss Ella Reimers, August 31. They will be at home after October 1 at Missoula, Mont.

White Marsh, Md.—The sixth annual flower show in connection with the harvest home festival of Ebenezer church will be held at the dahlia and canna farm of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., at Cowenton, on the B. & O. R. R., September 24 to 27.

Madison, N. J.—The seventeenth annual show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society is to be held here October 31 and November 1. The premium list has been issued and copies may be had by addressing Edward Reagan, secretary.

Middletown, Pa.—Edward W. Creep has been having excellent success with the everbearing strawberry. He has had exhibits at the local fair and in the store of the Holmes Seed Co., Harrisburg. Also, samples sent to newspapers have caused much favorable comment.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—It snowed here all night September 13, the ground being covered twelve inches deep the next morning. Business is picking up nicely. The C. H. Garwood Floral Co. is remodeling its downtown store and will completely restock it. The roses at the Overland Gardens, where L. B. Westholder is manager, were cut back rather late, but the carnations and mums hardly could be better.

Madison, N. J.—The Aphine Mfg. Co., which is now manufacturing a general line of agricultural chemicals, has added Vermine to its list. It is a preparation for use on soils that are infested with eel worms, ants, grubs or other living organisms. The company states that it is not a new discovery; it simply has secured possession of a formula which has been successfully used for a number of years in one of the European countries.

Champaign, Ill.—Thomas Franks & Son have made good progress in the construction of their three new greenhouses at 204 East University avenue. The materials were furnished by the Foley Mfg. Co. With these new buildings, the entire range will be strictly up-to-date, with the exception of three old houses at the rear of the office, and they will probably be rebuilt next year. George B. Franks has lately been an exceedingly busy man, superintending the work on the new houses and also serving on the two busiest committees in the city council.

The Review brings results.

ALBERT POCHELON, of Detroit, the new secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, has adopted as his slogan, "Five hundred members in 1915."

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

SOLD OUT—THANKS.

One of the pleasant features of publishing The Review is that so many people like the paper and the service it gives well enough to add a word of thanks to their business communications. Like this:

Kindly discontinue our ad on carnation plants; all sold out, thanks to The Review.—L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y., September 9, 1912.

FOREIGN EXHIBITS FOR N. F. S.

Foreign exhibits for the National Flower Show, to be held at New York, April 5 to 12, 1913, will be admitted free of duty under an Act of Congress approved March 4, 1911, for the free entry of articles imported for exhibition at expositions to be held in New York, the term of which Act was recently extended three years. Any merchandise entered for exhibition under the Act may be sold at any time during the exhibition (but withdrawal of it will not be allowed until after the close of the exhibition), subject to prompt customs entry at the close of the period of exhibition, and upon such entry the merchandise will be appraised and due allowance made for diminution or deterioration by reason of exposure or incidental handling. Merchandise not so entered within thirty days after the close of the exhibition will be sent to general order stores as unclaimed; or it may be entered for warehouse in the regular way. Copies of the Act and the regulations in full carrying same into effect may be obtained on application to John Young, secretary, 54 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

THE SOUVENIR ALBUM.

Copies of the souvenir album of the S. A. F. convention can be purchased as follows: Single copies, including postage, 35 cents; five copies by express, collect, for $1. Address George Asmus, 2221 West Madison street, Chicago.

All members of the S. A. F. who did not obtain a copy at Chicago will have one mailed to them as soon as the committee can get the names checked up.

C. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

FOR QUICK ACTION.

If you want something you haven't got, look for it in The Review; if you have something you want to get rid of, offer it in The Review. That is the custom of those who know. And here is the result:

The Review is the paper to put your ad in if you want quick results. My boiler was sold from only one little notice; answering inquiries actually cost more for postage than the price you charged for the advertisement.—Bixby & Co., Wichita, Kan., September 6, 1912.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Little or no surplus stock is to be found on the market this week and prices have advanced during the last few days. Crops are light as a result of the heat wave of two weeks ago and until the growers are able to bring them on again the market will no doubt remain much as at the present. Not even the heretofore plentiful asters are in oversupply and it is evident that in a short time they will be off the market. Carnations have assumed a more important position and, while they cut no great figure as yet, another week or two will find them in full supply. Those that have appeared this week are much better in stem and also show an improvement in quality over a week ago. Consequently the demand has increased and, with asters falling off, prices have advanced.

Cool weather has helped bring in a better grade of roses during the last few days and Beauties have gained in popularity, meeting with an excellent demand. The supply, however, is far from being overplentiful and stock that is worth handling is readily disposed of with the wholesaler making the prices. Killarney and White Killarney enjoy a good demand and, while there is no great supply of long stems in these, the short and medium lengths are finding a market at good figures. Maryland is also moved in good shape, but is not in so good supply as heretofore. Richmond moves faster as the weather grows cooler. Of the other roses, Mrs. Taft, Sunburst, Melody and Radiance appear to be rather scarce, although there is a fairly large supply of Mrs. Aaron Ward.

Gladioli are suffering the same fate as the asters. The supply is growing smaller and is hardly of the same quality that was on hand a week or two ago, but prices are much better, on the average. Orchids are starting to arrive and in the next two weeks a large cut is expected. Gardenias still are scarce and hardly enough can be had to meet a not large demand. Chrysanthemums are hardly up to the quality shown two

The Simple Truth

The aim in these advertisements is to avoid all exaggeration—to tell the truth and to promise no more than we can be reasonably certain we shall be able to perform. Any wholesaler can claim to have "the finest," but not every wholesaler can see how suicidal this is when the stock and facilities do not make good with the man who sends an order. WE think of tomorrow as well as today. Permanent customers are what we plan to gain by the simple truthfulness of these advertisements.

OUR LIST OF ROSES

includes a complete assortment—all the varieties you need—but you DO need ALL these, and you cannot get them everywhere:

MRS. WARD SUNBURST BULGARIE
RADIANCE RICHMOND KILLARNEY
WHITE KILLARNEY MY MARYLAND

We always have had a LARGE supply of the very best Roses, but this season our supply is NEARLY DOUBLED. That is why we can take care of a lot of new customers.

Good short Roses, $20.00 per 1000.

Beauties

Certainly the Largest and Steadiest Supply in the West.

Our Beauties always are fine, and we have them in quantity all the time. All lengths, great sellers. Try them and see. You can work up a fine trade on Beauties if you use our stock and start now.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Early Mums always have been one of our specialties, but this year the supply is much larger than before, and the quality is fully as good as heretofore—but prices are lower than you used to pay for the first Mums. Let's get the Mum trade started now; we have literally hundreds of thousands for you to sell in the next ten weeks.

Don't lose sight of our ability to furnish all your needs on

ORCHIDS LILIES
CARNATIONS GREENS

Our supply has become the largest in the west, but we pride ourselves especially on its uniformly high quality.

Fancy Valley always on hand.

weeks ago, before the hot weather struck them, but the supply is heavier than ever before at this date. The varieties are Golden Glow, Smith's Advance and October Frost. There are various reports on lilies. Some say the call is brisk and the supply inadequate, while others report that lilies are in fair supply and meet with only a moderate demand, there being just enough call to take care of the daily arrivals. Valley is in good supply, but the fall wedding demand has made a brisk call and there has been considerable difficulty in filling orders. Greens are more plentiful than ever and the shipments of wild smilax and Mexican ivy are on the increase.

Various Notes.

Ice machines are coming into fashion. The Fleischman Floral Co., on Jackson boulevard, has just completed installing one, Wendland & Keimel, Elmhurst, have put one in and George Asmus says the Schiller corporation is getting figures.

M. C. Gunterberg is back from a vacation spent with relatives in Minnesota and is again busy with business.

Announcement is made of the marriage, Saturday, September 14, of Harry Blewitt and Miss Eva Timme. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents in Irving Park, in the presence of members of the two families only. The bride is the daughter of Fred W. Timme, one of the pioneers of the trade in Chicago, and the groom is the son of Henry C. Blewitt, one of the oldest growers at Des Plaines. He is himself a well known grower, being one of the owners of the Des Plaines Floral Co. Mr. and Mrs. Blewitt, after a short honeymoon, will make their home at Des Plaines.

E. B. Washburn, who has been absent from the store of Bassett & Washburn on account of illness, has assumed charge of the work at the new plant being built at Gregg's Station.

W. E. Lynch, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., was called to Northampton, Mass., September 9 to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. T. A. McGrath.

W. J. Smyth and family have returned to their home in Englewood after spending the summer, as usual, at their cottage on Lake Marie, Antioch, Ill.

E. E. Pieser returned to the city September 13 and is again at his accustomed place in the store of Kennicott Bros. Co. Mrs. Pieser has gone to Winnipeg.

Allie Zech, chairman of the sports committee of the Cook County Florists' Association, has given out a list of the prizes to be awarded at the conclusion of the bowling schedule. The teams entered include the Roses, Carnations, Orchids and Violets and the prizes are: Silver loving cup to winning team, stick pins donated by E. C. Amling for high average man for the season on each team, umbrellas donated by Zech & Mann for six highest individuals, watch fob donated by A. L. Randall for individual high single game, fountain pen donated by the Chicago Carnation Co. for high average for three games, while $150 cash prize money will be awarded also. The first games were rolled September 18.

O. Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., says he is well pleased with present conditions and the prospect for autumn.

Necessary For Success

"We all have more or less trouble in keeping the greenhouse stock clean during the winter months, and I doubt whether there are two firms who make use of the same methods to do it. But I am sure we all agree that the only right way is to prevent, if at all possible, the appearance of the green or black aphis, and not wait before spraying or fumigating until things are alive all around us. Therefore, if you have made up your mind to keep your carnations, roses, and other stock clean this winter, get busy now. Order from your supply house a good stock of the preparation you are in the habit of using, and take it down from the shelf every ten days and fumigate or spray. Bugs or no bugs, for the last two years we have used nicotine in different strengths, and while this has been most effective, Aphine is just as much so, and the beauty of it is its cheapness. I don't care what you may grow, if you spray your houses every ten days according to directions on the can you are going to have clean stock. Start now. It's your only chance. Keep the houses clean from now on and you have easy sailing all through winter instead of a continuous fight to keep the insects down."

Fritz Bahr, "Week's Work," Florists' Exchange, September 14, 1912.

APHINE is a spraying material, a composition of essential oils and nicotine, effective against green, black, white fly, thrips, red spider, mealy bug, and scale. It can be applied to the tender foliage without injury, and is an excellent cleanser for decorative stock. Price $2.50 per gallon, $1.00 per quart.

FUNGINE is a liquid sulphur composition. It is an infallible remedy for mildew, rust and bench fungi. It does not stain the foliage, but cleanses it. Used with success by the leading rose, chrysanthemum, carnation and sweet pea growers; also for fruit and vegetables. Price $2.00 per gallon, 75c per quart.

VERMINE. A soil sterilizer and germicide which will destroy eel, cut, wire and grub worms, slugs, root lice, maggots and ants, without injury to plants. It is applied at the strength of one part Vermine to four hundred parts water, thoroughly soaking the soil. Price $3.00 per gallon, $1.00 per quart.

All our products are readily soluble in water. Used at various strengths, according to directions on cans, and are equally effective in the greenhouse and in the garden. They are sold by the well-known seed firms and supply houses everywhere.

bronze galax in the last few months has not been up to his expectations. He lays it to the general use now made of the prepared magnolia leaves.

The A. L. Randall Co. is steadily developing the manufacturing department of the supply business. Ruscus is just now receiving special attention in anticipation of a Christmas demand even heavier than last year.

George Fisher has returned from his vacation, spent at Kalamazoo.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association was held September 18. President Kidwell says that the first month since the annual meeting shows an excellent gain over a year ago, when the association was organized.

The former quarters of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., in the basement of the Atlas block, now are being used by the company's supply department for the storage of moss and other bulky stock.

John Michelsen says the E. C. Amling Co. will market from 8,000 to 9,000 Cattleya labiata in the next two months.

The executive committee in charge of convention affairs had a meeting at the Union restaurant Monday evening, September 16, to close up its work. It is now proposed, instead of applying all the profits of the souvenir album on the convention expenses, to put part of the profit into some sort of a semi-permanent fund against the next time of need, but there are those who do not think this would be keeping faith with those who contributed to the convention fund, and no decision has as yet been reached.

N. J. Wietor is running a new 7-passenger Haynes touring car. He liked the 5-passenger car he has had for the last eight months so well that he sold it and bought a larger one.

C. W. McKellar says his advices from the east are that the crop of Cattleya labiata is close at hand and will be the heaviest yet.

Tim Matchen says that Peter Reinberg had one of the best weeks in a long time with Beauties September 9 to 16.

C. F. McCormick is at Baltimore, trying to buy up that town's supply of souvenir postals.

The Cook County Florists' Association will hold its monthly meeting at the Tavern tonight, September 19. Secretary A. T. Pyfer says a complete winter program is in course of preparation. There now are 155 members.

A. Henderson reports that the Dutch bulb shipments have started to come in and from now on the shipping force will have its hands full.

William Dittman, of New Castle, Ind., writes A. C. Spencer, of Kyle & Foerster, that his American Beauties are more promising in appearance than in any previous year.

H. N. Bruns, who is expected home next week, wrote The Review from Hamburg just before sailing: "Flower stores are numerous all over Germany and are prettily arranged. They keep up a splendid show, of made up baskets, wreaths and other arrangements ready for sale, and more elaborate than Chicago stores do. In the greenhouse business itself I was rather disappointed; they have not made the progress we have. The flower business seems to be split up. Too much is done outdoors in summer and in the winter all kinds of flowers are shipped from Italy and southern France; consequently the majority of florists have a hard time to make both ends meet."

New office equipment is being installed in the Percy Jones wholesale store, while a glass partition has been put in which adds greatly to the appearance of the entire floor.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

The summer travelers are gradually returning to the city, and the first fall weddings, although of small importance, make things a little lively among the retailers. Outside of single tuberoses there is hardly anything in bloom at the present time and the shipments from the north are still reduced to the minimum. Plant shipments among the wholesalers are gratifying and surely there will be something doing later on; they have the goods, and in good condition, too. Hyacinth and narcissus bulbs are coming in every week, but owing to the abnormally hot and dry weather we have had since the beginning of the month, hardly any planting has been done. The chrysanthemums are at present in a much better condition than some time ago; most of the stock seen looks strong and healthy, the buds are showing and all the growers are looking forward to a big crop.

Various Notes.

The local florists who visited Chicago during the convention were loud in their praises of the grandness of the different exhibits at the Coliseum and especially of the hospitality and lavish entertainment bestowed upon them by the entertaining committee and many of the leading growers and wholesalers individually.

J. A. Newsham, the local orchid specialist, has his immense stock in splendid condition. Dendrobium Phalænopsis, Cattleya labiata, C. Bowringeana and Vanda cœrulea are in bloom. Phalænopsis Schilleriana and P. amabilis imported lately are well established. A house 20 x 75 entirely filled with Cattleya Trianæ covered with flower sheaths gives promise for an immense crop. His new range of six houses 20 x 150 is almost entirely glazed. Four of them are planted with mums, about 12,000 plants, all in strong, healthy condition. Abele Bros. have their place filled with many kinds of shipping plants for winter and spring planting. Ficus elastica is one of their specialties and large shipments to the western states, as well as Mexico, recently left the nursery. The fine condition of outdoor bench-grown mums attracted my attention.

Buchner & Kraak are well prepared for the coming season and their big lot of chrysanthemums are the best they have ever grown.

P. A. Chopin had his new store and show houses on St. Charles and Washington avenues ready for an informal opening September 15, to be followed by a grand show about the middle of October. The handsome, modern place is attracting a great deal of attention and no doubt Mr. Chopin will use all his skill and efforts to make this new enterprise a thorough success.

Henry Rehfeld has his place as clean as the proverbial new pin and his mums, of which he grows many, mostly Mrs. Robinson, are healthy and strong.

DENVER.

The Market.

The first snow came September 14, just four months since the last one, or that of May 14. Threatening weather for a few days before should have been a warning, but nevertheless it caught many unawares and there are numbers who would have been glad had it held off until later. On the other hand, there is much rejoicing in some places, as frost is sure to come in a short time, put an end to garden flowers and create a demand for greenhouse stock.

Carnations have been extremely scarce, the dark and cloudy weather having a depressing effect upon them. The demand suddenly took a jump, much to everyone's surprise, and for several days there have not been nearly enough to satisfy the demand. The call for tea roses falls away short of the supply, although the quality is exceptionally good, and at low prices. There is still a dearth of Beauties and the available ones are quickly picked up in the local market. Asters are on the decline and this week will probably finish them. Chrysanthemums are not plentiful yet, but there is promise of a big crop when they start in earnest, as every grower seems to have about twice as many as usual.

Club Meeting.

After a vacation of three months, the Colorado Florists' Club resumed its meetings September 9, at T. M. A. hall. There was an exhibition of asters, and the prize for the best collection was awarded to W. W. Wilmore. Honorable mention was given to those shown by Fred Hall and Emil Forter.

The proposed flower show was, upon motion duly made and seconded, declared postponed for this year, for reasons that are given in another part of this news letter.

During the last few months and, for that matter, all last year, there have been frequent demands for donations of flowers for charitable purposes. These demands have become so heavy as to be a burden to all florists. This question was brought up and discussed at this meeting, and the discussion ended in the appointment of a committee, consisting of T. W. Hannah, J. A. Valentine and C. R. Root, to draft resolutions providing for the election of a committee whose duty shall be to pass upon the worthiness of any charitable demand. The florists will be asked to sign this resolution, agreeing to turn down any demand that has not been approved by the committee.

Various Notes.

An unusual hail storm occurred on the afternoon of September 9. It was unusual because it was unexpected. The day had been cool and cloudy, and never before had hail been known to do any great damage so late in the season. In some parts there was practically none. It reached its height in Harmon and Montclair, and every greenhouse in that section suffered. Trees were stripped of their leaves, and stock in the fields was pounded into the ground. The hailstones were larger than good sized marbles. One side of the greenhouse at Fairmont cemetery was completely riddled. Fred Hall lost heavily, a good part of the broken glass being double strength and of large size. W. C. Walter reports a loss of at least 700 panes. Brenkert & Wall, at University park, will have to replace about 500 lights. The Mauff Floral Co. has finished counting, and finds a loss of about 600 square feet, all double strength. Newlander & Rolin lost about 200 panes and A. C. Toothaker lost a quantity of his sashes. With possibly a single exception, all the foregoing greenhouses carry hail insurance.

Visitors: M. Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; Mrs. S. Knudsen, Boulder, Colo.

The chairman of the flower show committee, J. A. Valentine, has issued the following announcement:

"We regret that it is necessary to advise you that the committee in charge has decided to abandon the holding of a flower show in Denver this fall. A number of things have united to make the success of such a show doubtful. In the first place, the distance is so great from eastern growers that nearly all of them have declined to exhibit. In the second place, the merchants of Denver are uniting in supporting a carnival known as the Festival of Mountain and Plain at a date just preceding the date for the flower show. Add to this the interference which is generally the result of a national election, and the odds seem to be against the project; especially so when we take into account the fact that business in general is rather quiet. The committee wishes to thank all those who have spoken a kind word for the project, and to especially thank those few who had promised exhibits. We trust none of this latter class will be seriously inconvenienced by our giving up the project."

M. R. J.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The cut flower market shows unexpected strength this week. Conditions are better than usual at this season of the year. The receipts of really good flowers are light. The demand has improved. The market has cleaned up nicely each day. The hot weather of last week has reduced the supply of good flowers. The return home of the sojourners by the sea and in the mountains, and the tourists from abroad, has improved the demand.

Asters are nearly over. Only a few come into town now. They are mostly from New York state. Dahlias are not at their best yet. The hot weather has been against them. Roses, too, have felt the heat and are a bit off crop besides. Carnations are more plentiful, but not enough are cut to make them an important factor. Valley is a trifle shy so far as good stock is concerned. Cattleyas are increasing in number. The price is lower. Golden Glow chrysanthemums can be had in quantity. Easter lilies are fairly good stock. Greens are more in demand, a sure sign that the season is approaching. Single violets have come.

An Oyster Bay Incident.

It so chanced that J. Austin Shaw, that extraordinarily alert and able horticultural writer, was not present at the first meeting of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society, held last month, so it has fallen to my lot to chronicle this meeting. It was a purely amateur affair, quite sociable, with just a sprinkling of gardeners, like the yeast that leavens the bread. There were some nice exhibits, which reflected credit on the skill of the men and women who pass time in gardening and who love it dearly, both for its own sake and as a relief from the cares of business and of housekeeping.

The meeting would perhaps hardly be of especial interest to Review readers were it not for an incident that occurred there. George Redles, probably the ablest field botanist in Philadelphia today, was on Long Island at the time. A friend urged him to attend, saying that the people of Oyster Bay were nice and would be glad to have him. So, on the appointed evening Mr., Mrs. and Master Redles presented themselves at the door of the meeting room and were welcomed by a jovial looking gentleman, seated in an armchair just inside. Master Redles remarked that "our shows in Germantown are better," but his father said it was a nice show, especially for the first one. Then Mrs. Redles, who noticed that the jovial gentleman had greeted everybody, thought it was high time that her husband should make himself known. After some urging, Mr. Redles was prevailed upon to step forward. "Are you the secretary of this association?" Mr. Redles inquired of the jovial looking gentleman. "No, I am president," the other replied. "My name is Redles. I have been secretary of the Germantown Horticultural Society for nearly twenty years," was Mr. Redles' modest self-introduction. "I never heard of the place," the president answered, as he turned to resume his conversation with a friend.

Various Notes.

Alvah R. Jones, captain of the Pennock-Meehan forces, returned from his vacation last week, a sure sign of the opening of the campaign.

Hemroy Bauer and Carmen Dengler have been brightening the growers by calls recently. The comradeship of floriculture, rightly understood, is a pleasant thing.

The Joseph Heacock Co. is installing a new battery of boilers at Wyncote.

The September meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society brought out a large attendance. There were excellent plants, flowers and vegetables. The feature of the evening was the

An air of pleasant mystery attached to the debut of W. Helper, which took place at the Chicago convention. No society bud could have been more heralded. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., staged eighty-four varieties of dahlias, effectively arranged with ferns, also a fine collection of hardy phlox. R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., was represented by a collection of dahlias. George W. Bassett, Hammonton, N. J., had a collection of dahlias, including the seedling, Antietam. The private gardeners' exhibits completed the display.

The Leo Niessen Co. will handle the Beauties from Adolph Farenwald, of Roslyn, during the coming season. This will make the company strong in Beauties, with such fine growers as George Burton, Groshens and Farenwald to depend upon for their flowers.

A style that is expected to prevail during the coming season is the wearing of artificial flowers on the street, carnations, roses, gardenias—in short, all varieties suitable for the corsage, muff or coat lapel. Harry Bayersdorfer believes that the florists may turn this fashion to account by advocating these artificial flowers for outdoor wear in freezing weather or in cases where natural flowers would prove unsatisfactory. Mr. Bayersdorfer thinks that such use

The Market.

Nothing has yet occurred to break the stagnation in cut flower circles. The aster arrivals are even heavier than before, and of superb quality. A large quantity are practically given away and will not bring the price of the express charges. Here and there some extra choice long-stemmed stock may bring a fair price, but the bulk of the asters are unprofitable these days. Severe rains and early frosts are being hoped for to improve conditions. Gladioli continue in oversupply and only one or two sorts are in any demand. Sweet peas are poor and about over from outdoors. Dahlias are featured in many windows, although they are not much of a commercial flower here yet.

Carnations of the new crop are coming from a few more growers. Stems are quite short as yet. In chrysanthemums, quite a few Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are arriving. The best selling roses are Beauties, Mme. Russell, Kaiserin and Christy Miller. All short-stemmed stock, owing to the continued high temperature, is hard to get rid of. Lilies and lily of the valley are each good, but there are not many to sell. Cosmos is plentiful. A few gardenias and fall cattleyas have put in an appearance. One or two small bunches of single violets and some Bouvardia

Club Meeting.

The club fall season opened September 17, when there was an attendance of 200 members, the great attraction being a stereopticon lecture by J. K. M. L. Farquhar, the new S. A. F. president, who was given an enthusiastic reception. His description of the great London International Show and the pictures were full of interest. He also showed many views of Kew, Hampton Court palace, bulbs in Holland and vegetables in Denmark. He spoke of the necessity of Boston making a strong showing at the National Flower Show at New York next April.

A communication was read from W. R. Pierson on behalf of a New York Florists' Club committee, asking the local committee on flower publicity to work energetically. Support of the club was heartily pledged.

The resignation of Thomas Pegler as president was received and accepted with sincere regret, he having the good will of everyone in the club, and it was hoped he could soon return from Brunswick, Me., and become actively identified with the club again.

Six new members were elected. The landscape committee appointed consists of Messrs. Downs, Elliott and Palmer. It was voted to hold a banquet early in November, details to be in the hands of the executive committee. Chrysanthemums were designated as the topic for the October meeting.

Dahlia Exhibition.

The quality of the flowers at the annual dahlia and fruit show September 13 to 15 was unusually good, thanks to recent ideal growing weather. Greatest interest centered in the cactus, decorative and peony-flowered sections and the crowds of observant visitors showed what a strong popular hold this fall flower has on New England growers. and Geo. H. Walker second. The best flowers noted of the peony-flowered class were Queen Wilhelmina, Lady Seville, Leona, Bertha von Suttner, Samoset, Lottie Faust, Marjorie Field, Papa Charmet, Gustave Doazon, Ida and Lady Paget.

A selection of first-class cactus sorts shown by W. D. Hathaway is as follows: Cockatoo, Ianthe, Mme. Tessier, Ignea, Fannus, Goliath, Royal Scarlet, Beele, T. G. Baker, Master Karl, Henri Cayeux, Mercury, Advance, Crepuscule, Mr. Keith, Johannesburg, Henry Lemoine and Rev. T. W. Jamieson. The singles were almost neglected and the show and fancies did not seem to take the popular fancy as they used to. J. K. Alexander's pompons stood well above all others.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., in addition to a large display of fine dahlias, had over 120 varieties of gladioli, many of them the finest European novelties. Large vases of Mrs. Frank Pendleton loomed above all others. Their Primulinus hybrids quite caught the popular fancy also. White Excelsior is a good snow white variety. Wild Rose, Violetta and I. S. Hendrickson were also extra fine. They also had a nice vase of Milla biflora. L. C. Parker received a first-class certificate for his beautiful new peony-flowered dahlia, Houghton, white, delicately suffused with pink.

B. Hammond Tracy put up the largest and most artistically arranged display of gladioli ever seen in Boston. All were displayed in large bunches and so that each individual spike could be seen to advantage. The best varieties were Wild Rose, Alexander Macintosh, Mrs. F. King, Klondyke, Augusta, La Pastel, May, Dawn and Sunrise. This exhibit received the unusual distinction of a gold medal.

a splendid, well-arranged group of tropical plants, a large Anthurium Ferrierense being noteworthy. A. Cole, gardener for Mrs. A. Hunnewell, showed Begonia Lloydii, a fine new scarlet hybrid, good for pots and baskets, a tuberous sort.

James Marlborough, gardener for Thomas E. Procter, had some fine specimen Adiantum Farleyense and davallias, also large, well bloomed Campanula pyramidalis. Mrs. E. M. Gill had a good display of dahlias and other seasonable flowers, and Miss Caswell a collection of 1912 dahlias.

James Marlborough put up a remarkable grape display, showing fifteen varieties, two bunches of each, large bunches splendidly colored of the following varieties: Appley Towers, Lady Downes, Muscat of Alexandria, Bowood Muscat, Black Hamburgh, Golden Queen, Gros Guillaume, Mrs. Pince, Mrs. Pearson, Gros Maroc, Lady Hutt, Chasselas Napoleon, Black Alicante, Madresfield Court and Foster's Seedling.

Various Notes.

Peter M. Miller has as a visitor his father, John Miller, of Rothesay, Scotland, who arrived September 15.

The talk in wholesale circles is nearly unanimously in favor of moving to Winthrop Square if a satisfactory lease can be secured. If one market goes, others will probably follow, as the congested quarters on Park street and heavy rentals demand it. Welch Bros. Co. and N. F. McCarthy & Co. and the new wholesale market will be all practically together at the proposed new stand.

Duncan Finlayson walks erect and wears an unusually expansive smile these days. It is a boy this time.

W. H. Elliott is cutting good Beauty and Kaiserin roses at his Brighton plant, also a grand lot of Christy Miller at Madbury, N. H.

Thomas Pegler is now installed as manager for Wm. Butler, at Brunswick, Me. We all hope the change to this quiet Maine city will soon improve him physically.

Peter Fisher's houses of Gorgeous and Benora look first-class and are already carrying a fine crop of flowers.

Visitors the last week included H. A. Barnard, representing Stuart Low & Co., Clapton, England; A. J. Smith,

The Horticultural Club met at Young's hotel September 11 and elected these officers: President, J. K. M. L. Farquhar; vice-president, F. R. Pierson; secretary, E. H .Wilson; treasurer, E. A. Peirce.

J. Newman & Son are being kept quite busy with funeral orders.

Petros, on Boylston street, states that fall trade is starting in nicely. His window display now is chiefly nephrolepis and gladioli.

Doyle, on Boylston street, is featuring English flower baskets. They have some good cibotiums and Lorraine begonias.

On and after September 21 the wholesale markets will remain open on Saturdays until five o'clock.

Miss Olivia F. Zinn has opened an attractive flower store on West street and is doing a good business.

In Zinn's window, on Park street, some well flowered ericas were noted September 14. His yellow gladioli are unusually fine.

Forbes & Keith, of New Bedford, made a fine dahlia exhibit at the Westwood Grange Fair and received blue ribbons for the same. Their pink variety, Ruth Forbes, was a center of attraction.

W. N. Craig.

Manchester, Mass.—A greenhouse 22x 66 feet is being constructed on the Gardiner M. Lane estate, off Summer street. An extensive irrigation system is also being installed.

Athens, Ga.—S. M. Cruce, who recently purchased some property on South Lumpkin street and started business there as a florist, has done some effective advertising by asking the public to furnish a name for his establishment. He has inserted an advertisement in a local newspaper, stating that he will give $5 worth of flowers, plants or anything else in his stock to the person who suggests the most distinctive and suitable name. The ad is headed, "I Want a Name."

Zanesville, O.—John D. Imlay, the North Fifth street florist, was one of the most forcible speakers at a recent meeting of the park committee of the Chamber of Commerce, when the systematic parking and improvement of the city was advocated and preparations were made for the circulation of a petition for a special election, in order to be able to organize a board of park commissioners. Seventy-five members of the Chamber of Commerce were to circulate copies of the petition.

Eight Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

The somewhat cooler weather made a slight improvement in business and also in the cut stock, and from now on the market should improve steadily. The shipping trade, too, has shown improvement in the wholesale district. At the wholesale houses on Monday morning, September 16, a great deal of activity was shown among the retailers.

The improvement of the stock was especially noticeable in the roses. Killarneys in all varieties are the best and most numerous among the roses. There are also nice lots of Cochets, both white and pink. Marylands are coming in. American Beauties are not overplentiful.

Carnations are not extra fancy and the great bulk of them are short-stemmed. The best of them bring 2 cents; lower grades bring $1 per hundred. Some fair asters are still coming in. Gladioli are not over, by any means; any number of them can be had in all colors. Lilies and valley sell well; in fact, there are hardly enough for the demand. Good, long smilax had quite a run last week. In other greens the market is well supplied.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held an interesting meeting on Thursday afternoon, September 12, in Odd Fellows' hall. When President Windler opened the meeting, there were thirty-five members present and all the old and new officers were in their places.

The trustees reported that, on auditing the books of the secretary and treasurer, they found them correct and up-to-date.

The committee on the application of Walter T. Weber reported favorably and he was elected a member.

The chair appointed Ex-Presidents Guy and Young as installing officers. President-elect Fred H. Weber was duly installed and took President Windler's place in the chair. Vice-President-elect Young was not present, so the next officers installed were Secretary-elect Beneke, Treasurer-elect Smith and Trustees-elect William Ossick and John Connon, the former for three years and the latter for two years.

On leaving the chair, President Windler made a few well pointed remarks as to the advance the club had made during his term, and he hoped the members would give the same support to the new officers.

The club now has a membership of ninety-nine, a gain of thirteen over last year. There was one loss by death.

A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring officers for their faithful work.

After a number of bills had been ordered paid, the treasurer's report showed a large balance to the club's credit.

The meeting was then adjourned until October 10. After the meeting the entire party was taken to a nearby cafe for refreshments, and in this way a jolly afternoon was spent.

Various Notes.

F. J. Farney, representing M. Rice & Co., called last week and had splendid business.

Fred Alves, manager for Geo. H. Angermueller, has made application for membership in the Florists' Club. With his membership, the club has again reached the century mark.

The C. Young & Sons Co. received its importation of Dutch bulbs last week and reports that they came in bad shape, the bulk of them being burned by the heat.

of the work for the funeral of Mrs. Wilkelmeyer, widow of Julius Wilkelmeyer, a wealthy brewer. Among the large designs was a 7-foot urn with a 42-inch base.

The H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. has closed a contract to furnish the parks of East St. Louis with shrubs and trees for fall planting. The order was a bulky one, amounting to nearly $4,000.

W. S. Rowe, John Connon and Alex. Siegel have returned from their summer vacation with a good coat of bronze and are ready for a busy season. They say they spent a most enjoyable time.

George Angermueller, A. Meyer, Jr., Charles Schoenle and William Ossick took a day off and went fishing September 13, at Spanish Lake. Notwithstanding that it was Friday and the thirteenth, they got back safe and with considerable luck, according to their fish stories.

Oscar Kuehn, head of the wire department of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., with his family, spent a day recently as guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. De Wever, at Olivette, Mo. During the day Mr. Kuehn took a number of interesting photos of the different parts of Mr. De Wever's rose and gladiolus fields.

A party of society leaders are planning to hold a flower day early in October, when flowers will be sold on the street corners and in hotels and theaters for the benefit of the Children's Home Society of Missouri.

John Connon, F. Vennemann, Ed. Denker, E. W. Guy, W. E. Ogle, F. M. Widmer, Frank Weber, W. E. Rowe and C. E. De Wever were the suburban members who attended the club meeting last week.

An officers' meeting will be held sometime this month to lay out a program for the meetings of the club for the fall and winter. Chairman Ossick, of the trustees, says the programs will be made so interesting to the members that all the meetings will be largely attended from now on.

tions for Vandevort's fall opening, using thirty cases of wild smilax and 1,000 Beauties, besides a great lot of plants.

William Holtz, well known in the trade, has taken a position with Geo. H. Angermueller.

Guy Reburn, representing A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, was a caller last week. He is always a welcome visitor among the growers.

The florists who have had large shipments of plants have made good use of those special express rates published on page 17 of The Review of August 8. They say they saved a great deal of money by referring to the list in The Review when the express companies presented their bills.

The new wholesale house, the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., opened with a great flourish. Their consignments of stock were large and of good quality, and they cleaned up nicely the first day. Good cigars were handed out, and expressions of good fellowship were extended to them by all in the trade.

Miss M. S. Newman and Miss Armstrong have returned from their summer vacations and have opened their store again at Spring and Olive streets. Pretty displays again are seen in their show windows. J. J. B.

The Market.

The rose supply, which until two weeks ago was overabundant, has dropped off to a certain degree. This condition seems to be general, as the demand has considerably increased. At times it has been impossible to fill all orders; but, on the other hand, carnations are cropping heavier and one could not ask for better quality at this time of the year. Giganteums are again in good supply and, as usual, sell well.

TRILLOW FLORIST Des Moines, Iowa

Will promptly execute all orders in this vicinity.

Gladioli, asters and, in fact, all outdoor flowers have about seen their day; what there is in this line is of poor quality.

The weather, which until the last few days has been hot, has moderated to a more comfortable degree, leaving the public with a better mind to think about flowers. Consequently conditions have brightened so greatly that we are able to report last week a quite satisfactory one. American Beauties are again putting in their appearance and, while the stems are somewhat short, the flowers are good. Now that outdoor stock is slacking up, it is expected that business will pick up. There are a few mums on the market. Indications point strongly to a heavy supply of them this season, as everyone seems to be growing more this year, and all of them look fine.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Wm. Phebus, proprietor of the Westwood Greenhouses, is busy remodeling and enlarging her plant. She expects to grow more of a variety of stock this season. Mrs. Phebus tells us that trade has been quite satisfactory.

Boiler men are busy at the plant of the Miami Floral Co., putting in new boilers. This company reports a splendid trade on field-grown carnation plants.

Ray G. Bartholomew left September 13 to take the contract for glazing the new conservatories at the Jewish cemetery, in Cincinnati. September 15 Mrs. Bartholomew and son, Kenneth, went to Cincinnati, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Weber.

Mrs. T. M. Waters, of Eaton, is just completing a modern 8-room residence, which she expects to occupy shortly. Since the demise of Mr. Waters, Mrs. Waters has taken things in hand, and has been successful; she reports business to be fine, owing to much funeral work.

that everything is favorable for a good fall trade. They, too, are busy getting their boilers in shape for the winter.

Mrs. Jos. I. Schaefer, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Hock, enjoyed an auto trip to Indianapolis last week.

Mrs. B. Haschke received quite a large importation of bulbs last week.

The Miami Floral Co. has been troubled a great deal with a pest known as the "roller." They found spraying the plants with arsenate of lead a good remedy, and in addition they had men go around and pick them off once a week; consequently they are not now troubled with them. R. A. L.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

W. F. Cobb & Co., of Franklin, Mass., have let the contract for the erection of a seed warehouse, 30x60 feet.

The German seed growers have had too much rain, especially during August, for the best interests of the vegetable and flower seed crops.

According to the government crop report the clover seed crop held a promise, September 1, of turning out 106.9 per cent, 100 per cent being average.

The hot, dry weather in the first part of September is said to have cut down the crop of gladiolus bulbs of some of the growers in the middle west.

There were only four cases of lily bulbs on the boat from Bermuda that arrived at New York September 13. Total arrivals to date, 2,771 cases.

The Marshalltown Seed Co. has been incorporated at Marshalltown, Ia., with an authorized capital of $10,000, by T. C. Cartwright, F. S. Hynds and F. G. Pierce.

The grass seed dealers will be interested in a bulletin, No. 502, issued July 31 by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is entitled "Timothy Production on Irrigated Land in the Northwestern States."

F. W. Merrill, who formerly resided at Grafton, N. D., and was employed as a dairy and farm government expert, has removed to Grand Forks, N. D., where he will be associated with O. J. Barnes & Co., the seed firm.

The Pensacola Seed & Nursery Co. has been incorporated, with headquarters at Cottage Hill, near Pensacola, Fla. The capital stock is $25,000. The officers are: President, W. V. Vincent; secretary and treasurer, S. D. Berringer.

The Mercury, of San Jose, Cal., prints excellent portraits of Miss M. W. Williams and J. W. Edmundson, with an account of their organizing the California Seed Growers' Association. Offices have been opened in the First National Bank building at San Jose, with Miss Williams in charge.

The Bluff City Seed & Floral Co. has been organized at Pine Bluff, Ark., with headquarters at 410 Main street, and will handle a general stock of garden, field and flower seeds and poultry supplies. The officers of the company are: President, H. L. Westbrook; vice-president, A. G. Russell; secretary-treasurer and manager, Joe S. Mitchell.

H. N. Bruns, Chicago, who has spent the summer in the valley growing district of Germany, wrote The Review as follows, from Hamburg, a few days before sailing for home, September 7: "The crop outlook is good, unless there should be considerable rain from now on, which would not be beneficial. From what I have seen, and, believe me, I have seen some, the quality and quantity are here this year. We had a great deal of rain in August and the farmers had their troubles in harvesting; it was good, though, for the valley, but it should stop now."

possible on the result of the grass seed crop and the market situation, on the other hand it is difficult to give a correct report on the situation, although this year we had an early harvest of many sorts, especially of the home-grown varieties. The temperature in spring was generally favorable for the development of the grasses and later on the heat in June and July has caused the seeds to ripen well; moreover, the few rains in summer have favored the growth, so that these conditions resulted in a quantitatively rich crop of excellent quality of nearly all sorts, with few exceptions.''

GUSTAV SCHOTT, Aschaffenburg, Bavaria, says ''the season to September 1 had been nothing to boast of, except across the Atlantic, where large crops were brought in under favorable conditions. We shared with our neighbors a particularly dry and bracing April and May, during which growth was slow. Then came a dripping June. All through July, while we had a goodly proportion of warm, dry days, Germany was deluged with rain and swept by cold winds. August has been on the cold, damp side and already a strong autumn snap is noticeable in the air, which reminds the seedsman to get his sample collection ready for, let us hope, an advantageous trading both for buyers and sellers.''

A LOS ANGELES SEED RANCH.

When the Asters Are in Bloom.

''Come down to the ranch and see the asters,'' was the invitation given by John Bodger, Jr., over the phone recently. By ''the ranch'' was meant the 450 acres at Dominguez devoted to seed growing by the John Bodger & Sons Co., of Los Angeles. This has nothing to do with the home ranch of 350 acres at Gardena, owned by the firm and used largely for the culture of sweet peas for seed.

Over forty acres are devoted to asters, which at the time of my visit were at their best, making a magnificent sight. The beds, or, as they may more fitly be called, fields, of each variety are separated from each other by hedges of Celosia pyramidalis, the bright crimson and scarlet forms, and the effect of these long lanes of brilliant color was striking. And here I should like to advise anyone visiting this place to do so, if possible, in company with the members of the firm, as I did. John Bodger, Sr., John, Jr., and Walter are all full of aster lore, full of enthusiasm for their business and most interesting guides on an occasion of this kind.

Giant Branching Comet Asters.

But to the asters: At the outset it is necessary to say that the firm is making a specialty of its Giant Branching Comet asters, a strain combining the grace and beauty of the Comet with the free branching, long-stemmed flowers of the Semple's and other branching kinds. In addition, the Bodger strain has a finely filled up, cushion-like center to the blooms, and all plants bearing flowers without this distinctive point are ruthlessly rogued out. Mr. Bodger, Sr., superintends this personally and also keeps the records of all novel and striking breaks, of which there are many. The colors of the varieties are rich, clear and well defined, anything of a dingy or indistinct character being thrown away on sight.

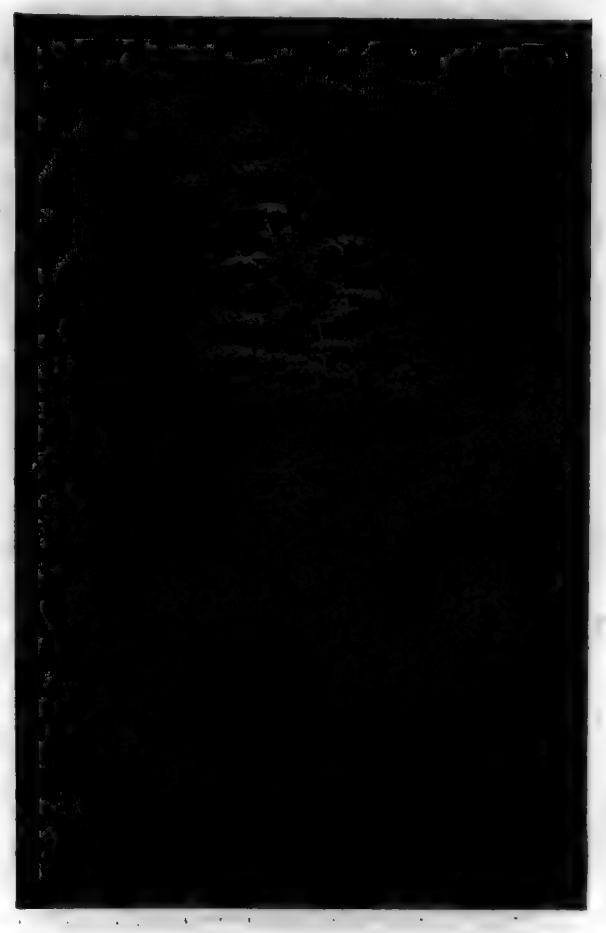
I could not hope to chronicle all the varieties of this strain alone, but a few that appealed to me particularly were the blue, light blue, dark purple, rose, and an entirely new break of which the stock as yet is somewhat limited and which the firm lists as shrimp pink. This is a lovely tint and will doubtless have quite a vogue among high-class florists when it becomes better known. The white, too, is a superb variety, its chasteness and purity being remarkable, while the fine substance and width of petal and high, well covered center make it one of the choicest asters I have ever seen. In addition to these, and somewhat similar, are the improved forms of the Crego asters, white and pink, which are also grown here in large numbers.

Other Strains of Asters.

The ordinary branching asters are not grown here, every variety of this kind being of the improved strain of which the firm has long made a specialty. The first of these we came to was a beautiful light lavender, so closely rogued out that not a sign of any other tint could be seen in the acre or two planted to this variety alone. "Count the flowers on a plant, Jack," says Mr. Bodger, and, taking one at random, "Jack" did. There were eighty-five large, salable flowers on one plant. Comment from me is hardly necessary on a strain of this kind. Briefly, the same high quality and the same careful treatment as to selection and trueness to form are observed in all the other colors of this section, which I could not hope to describe in detail here.



Among the novelties in other strains, Violet King stands out prominently. This variety has flowers of exactly the right shade of color for use in the Elks' emblems and will be valuable on this account as well as for its other good qualities. Sunrise is a lovely shaded pink. Lavender Gem is dwarf in habit, with prettily fimbriated petalage. Blood Red and Cardinal hardly need description, as the names suffice. They are the last word in highly colored asters. Close alongside these novelties are the Crown or Cocardeau asters, which old growers will recall as having white raised centers and deep colored margins. Then there is a fine strain of Betteridge's Quilled or the old "German" aster, Truffauts and other peony-flowered kinds that stir up old memories. None of these, of course, are grown in such large quantities as the down-to-date varieties already noted.

I do not usually go in much for statistics, but think it worthy of note that over a ton of choice aster seed is grown here annually, so that Bodger & Sons may well claim a pretty high position in the aster world.

Various Seed Crops.

Boddington's "Quality" Christmas-Flowering SWEET PEAS

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

of some other things grown and seen in our four or five-mile drive around the ranch may be noted. Many tons of tomatoes are grown; the pulp is made into puree and ketchup on the place and the seeds are carefully saved. Over twenty varieties are grown. Tests of the various kinds of flowering stocks show over seventy-five per cent double. They were past at the time of my visit, but enough could be seen to show their brilliant colors. There are many acres of cosmos and about 8,000 pounds of seed are grown annually. Twenty acres of cucumbers are grown for seed, and scores of acres of lettuce had either been harvested or were fit for the sickle. Giant zinnias of the grandiflora robusta types, helichrysums, calliopsis and many others are here. The only partial failure is the sweet peas. These have been cut and are stacked up like hay, ready for the threshing crew, but the crop is woefully short.

Among the tools used is a traction plow that turns eight deep furrows at a time. From a 500-foot well, steam pumps bring up the cool, life-giving water that is distributed through miles of piping, apparently about ten or twelve inches in diameter. Altogether a remarkable and interesting place and a standing tribute to the skill, knowledge and hard work of Mr. Bodger and his sons, who constitute the executive.

SUB-IRRIGATION.

Please let me have some information about sub-irrigation in greenhouses where it has proved a success. My houses are 20x250 and the ground benches are sixteen and one-half feet wide. The soil is eight inches deep, down to hard subsoil clay. The top soil is a sandy loam. I wish to use 3-inch or 3½-inch tile. How far apart should the tile be, if it is placed lengthwise or crosswise of the bed, and how deep should the tile be set in the soil? I grow lettuce during the winter months and cucumbers in spring and fall.

W. C. W.

You will need at least two lines of tile for each bed, placing each line about four feet from the edge. Three lines would be better, placing one in the center and the other two near the edges. Three-inch tile will be large enough. Give them a little fall to the other end and then plug up the low end. Lay the tile tightly together at the ends. Use common drain tile, not glazed sewer tile. If the ground gets too wet in cold, cloudy winter weather, the plugs may be removed and the tile will drain the soil of surplus moisture, as in a field.

The tile should be down deep enough so you can spade the beds without breaking them, but do not set them too deep in the clay and do not cover them with clay, or it will hinder the process of watering somewhat. Sub-irrigation is good for lettuce and tomatoes, as a moist atmosphere is not needed and encourages diseases of these crops.

H. G.

WORMS ON YOUNG LETTUCE.

In a recent issue of The Review you answered my inquiries concerning lettuce, and I wish to thank you for the favor, but since writing those inquiries I have run against another difficulty which I don't know how to overcome, as this is my first attempt at the growing of lettuce. I sowed lettuce seed in one house and transplanted some into another house from outside, and both kinds of plants are now infested with green worms that eat the leaves. I have tried picking them off and have used nicotine, but to no avail.

Is Paris green ever used on lettuce that has just been transplanted, or is there danger of its retaining the poison until full-grown and thus being poisonous to use? I do not wish to run the least risk of poisoning anyone for the sake of any lettuce crop, but something severe must be used on the plants, as I cannot combat the pests in any way I have tried. They surely were not carried in with the plants, as the plants in one house were grown from seed, in fresh ground, while the soil in the other house was only manured. Though I pick the pests off clean, in a few hours there are numerous green, fat worms, about one inch long, somewhat like the

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

cabbage worm, but not exactly, as they crawl like the measuring worm. They seem to make their appearance full-grown, from no particular source that I can discover. If it is safe to use Paris green while the plants are small, at what strength should it be used?

G. R. S.

It is unsafe to use Paris green or other poison on lettuce even when the plants are small. These or similar worms cause some trouble early each season for a good many growers. Usually, if the pests are carefully hand-picked off each plant, and all moths and butterflies are killed whenever seen inside the house, the worms that are left do not do much damage. Several careful pickings, however, may be necessary.

H. G.

Webster City, Ia.—The new greenhouses for the Curtis Floral Co., on South Prospect street, are nearly completed. The foundations and the benches are of concrete construction. Mr. Curtis and his son are planning to make the place one of the city's beauty spots, by laying out a park around the greenhouses.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Spokane, Wash.—H. L. Olson has purchased a tract of ground at Lincoln Heights and will begin this fall the construction of greenhouses for commercial purposes. It is said that the cost of the first houses will be approximately $6,000.

CROP FOR DARK HOUSE.

We have a rhubarb forcing house, 16x250, nine feet high to the ridge and three feet high at the sides. The house is sheathed with shiplap, which is covered with rubberoid or similar roofing, making it quite dark, which suits rhubarb forcing. This building adjoins our glass range and we can use it only to force one crop of rhubarb, or about two months out of the twelve. Could you inform us whether any other crop would grow in total or partial darkness? We could arrange to admit some light through the side ventilators, eight in number, each about twelve square feet in extent and all on the north slope of the roof. If the roof were covered with glass we could grow one crop of lettuce before forcing the rhubarb, and one crop after forcing. Would you advise us to cover it with glass and, if so, how could it be darkened sufficiently to force the rhubarb each season? We are located in the state of Washington. W. W. F. C.

I am not sufficiently familiar with the conditions in the state of Washington to give any definite advice, but would suggest that mushrooms do well under conditions similar to those required by rhubarb. If a glass roof is heavily shaded, it could be used for rhubarb, but the crop would not be so fine as when grown in the dark or in semi-darkness.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

As has been the case for several seasons, San Francisco is during the month of September getting her first good taste of summer weather. As a consequence, stock is quite plentiful again. Carnations, which have been in rather poor supply for a month, are being brought into town in good quantities. Asters are nearing the end of their season, and mums are more in evidence. While the mums are not in oversupply, the last few warm days have given them a good start. Roses are showing the results of the unusually warm spell and are not as good as one might wish. There is no bulbous stock on the market except a few late amaryllis and some Japanese lilies. We must not overlook gladioli, however, as a few of the later sorts are still with us. Violets are poor in color and weak in stem, and show the drying atmosphere badly. Other lines of stock continue about the same as formerly. Business is rather quiet, but it seems to be getting ready to make a sudden start. The Jewish holidays last week used up quite a bit of stock.

Various Notes.

H. Plath has returned from a month's trip to the eastern states and is at present at Lake Tahoe.

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, has been in town for a few days, on his way home from Oregon and Washington.

M. H. Dunn, park superintendent at Alameda, is displaying at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce in that town several hundred varieties of tuberous begonias, which are attracting considerable attention.

In respect to the memory of the late emperor of Japan, the California Flower Market, on Bush street, transacted no business September 13. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business conditions have livened up in the last week. The return of the town folks from the beaches has started the social functions. Jewish New Year created a demand for cut stock of all kinds. Ferns and palms also were in demand.

Roses of all varieties are coming in nicely and clean up daily. Carnations are scarce. It will be several weeks before the supply will equal the demand. Valley and orchids are scarce. Asters have been badly injured by the rains, but a few days of sunshine have helped them wonderfully. Perennial stock is scarce and cosmos is coming in nicely.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club has arranged to hold a dahlia show September 21 on the fifth floor of Meier & Franks Co. Classes are provided for amateur and professional growers. Arrangements are afoot for a flower show to be held in November, but the date has not yet been arranged. Much interest is taken in the coming show. It will mean a great deal to the florists and the horticultural business of the northwest and should have the endorsement of every business man.

E. R. C.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Conditions are improving in the flower business, judging by the trade during the last week. Stock is not so superabundant as it has been, and sales have been much better. Carnations are not plentiful and good roses are scarce. There are some early mums on the market and they are selling well. Autumn leaves are largely used in decorations. Good asters are bringing good prices, but a lot of inferior stock is on sale. The rain has destroyed a lot of outdoor stock this fall. Some growers are shipping carnations cut from young plants, and, while short-stemmed, the flowers are good in most cases. Rubrums and gladioli are still fairly plentiful.

Various Notes.

Some fine October Frost chrysanthemums are being shipped in by the Bryn Mawr Greenhouse Co., Bryn Mawr, Wash.

John Bubach, representing Lion & Co., New York, was here calling on the trade last week. He reports business good in all the coast cities.

bulbs last week. It seems that there will be lots of them this season.

T. W.

TACOMA.

The Market.

Business has shown some improvement since last report and with the opening of all public schools, and the return to the city of many of the residents, business should show a decided change for the better.

The continuous rains of the last few weeks have done great damage to the outdoor stock and good flowers are scarce. Carnations are of better quality, and we now see some of the Golden Glow and Smith's Advance varieties of mums in the downtown stores.

Various Notes.

A. A. Hinz shipped a fine batch of pot ferns to Rosaia Bros., Seattle, Wash., last week. Mr. Hinz is remodeling parts of his greenhouses, also giving the front and office a new coat of paint.

H. W. Manike reports good prospects for another record crop of Governor Herrick violets this season.

J. B. Pilkington, of Portland, made a short stop in this city on his way home from Europe, where he has been the last few months, looking over the nursery situation. Not being able to buy more than half he needed, he reports business good.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held September 5. Much business came before the meeting and three new members, J. B. Pilkington, A. A. Hinz and Mr. Jacobson, were taken into the club. It was agreed that all should attend the picnic with the Seattle club September 15. Louis Tschunko was appointed captain of the ball team. It is expected the long delayed game between the two clubs will be the real article. The next regular meeting of the local club is October 3, 1912.

THE OREGON NURSERY CO.

The Forists' Society of Portland, Ore., recently took its first outing and, on the invitation of the Oregon Nursery Co., went to see the plant of this firm in Orenco. Thirty-five members of the society took part in this most interesting trip and enjoyed the hospitality of the nursery company. A six-mile ride over part of the nursery fields revealed to the visitors a source of fruit trees for orchard planting that few had known to exist in Oregon. One field alone was said to contain over four million trees, most of which had already been sold. A crew of boys and men, who could be seen budding in a field of 500,000 peach trees, are said to bud about 75,000 trees daily during the budding season.

No irrigation is resorted to in this nursery, as a system of frequent cultivation is believed to produce a better quality of stock. The visitors were much impressed by the systematic methods in use throughout the plant, enabling the firm to turn out orders by the thousand without mistake. This is the feature that made the visit not only instructive, but an education also for most of the party. A force of 125 to 250 employees, with a staff of 175 salesmen, handle the business of the company. Forty-eight horses and an electric power and light plant are included in the equipment. There are 1,200 acres of land under cultivation, with packing sheds that cover two acres, and the office building is modern in all its details.

The lunch prepared for the visitors was heartily enjoyed and all had a good time. The officers of the company were extended a rousing vote of thanks for their hospitality.

The success of the firm is largely due to the method of handling the employees. Only the sober and reliable men remain permanently in the employ of the firm, and every possible effort is made to encourage habits of thrift. All positions of responsibility are filled by young men who have proved themselves capable and ambitious. Home building is encouraged by the company, whose employees have already built a little town for themselves.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The last ten days have shown a decided enlivening of business. Decorations of all kinds have called for a good deal of stock, while the delightful weather, cool and bracing, though bright, has greatly helped transient trade. The G. A. R. encampment and parade helped some and funeral work has also been plentiful. The most recent arrivals in stock are mums, the white October Frost and the yellow Monrovia being the varieties. Golden Glow comes and goes; sometimes there are flowers, sometimes none. Indoor roses are in much better demand and growers are using fire heat again; so it will soon be all over with the little mildew that has appeared this summer. Indoor carnations are still on the scarce side, but the outdoor stock is better than it was.

Gladioli continue to arrive in good order, while Easter lilies, rubrums and auratums all help to make a show. Centaureas are fine now. Valley is about equal to the demand, but orchids are scarce. Cattleya labiata is coming in, and when this fine species gets into full cut there will be plenty for all. Greens are plentiful and good. Boston and Whitmani ferns are fresh looking and well grown, though the prices paid to growers are low.

Various Notes.

As I anticipated in my last notes, Walter Armacost, of Ocean Park, was one of the sufferers in the fire which destroyed the town, his place being gutted. A new Ocean Park is promised us, larger and better in every way than the old, and doubtless Mr. Armacost will be in the van of progress.

C. C. Shafer, Pacific coast representative of the Geo. M. Garland Co., Des Plaines, Ill., has been in the city and surrounding territory for some time, introducing the specialties of the firm to greenhouse men here.

B. W. Williams, until lately proprietor of the Rosedale Greenhouses, Greenville, Pa., has been in the city and surrounding territory for several months, part of the time visiting his brother at Santa Barbara. Mr. Williams is so pleased with southern California that he has decided to locate here permanently, and Mrs. Williams and family will come out in October. He is at present connected with the Dieterich & Turner establishment at Montebello, Mr. Turner being an old friend of his.

Friends of Frank Wilhelm, lately of Chicago, Milwaukee and other middle west points, will be glad to hear he has secured a house and a couple of acres at Brooklyn Heights, in this city, and is starting in business for himself. Carnations are to be leaders with him.

The H. N. Gage Co. now has twenty-four men working on the new place at Montebello; so it looks as though it would soon be in good shape. Business is improving at the store, though summer dullness was hardly felt there. Among the stock now offered are elegant October Frost and Monrovia chrysanthemums.

As was fitting, Captain Grey, of the Ingleside Floral Co., had the bulk of the work for the festivities of the G. A. R. encampment. The flowers were supplied by the Los Angeles Flower Market.

Fine tuberoses and yellow and white chrysanthemums are being handled by S. Murata, of Hill street.

John Gordon, Morris Goldenson's capable and energetic manager, has gone on a vacation trip to San Diego and Catalina. It is rumored he is after Morris' scalp as a fisherman, but Morris sits back and says he has to "go some."

Business has been rushing during the last week or two at the Los Angeles Flower Market and Mr. Morton prophesies a good season's trade. He is still showing elegant gladioli and the valley now offered is quite above the average. Stock cleans up well every day, though there is no shortage except, perhaps, in orchids.

E. W. McLellan, of San Francisco, paid us a flying visit last week.

C. F. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery Co., has been away on a deer hunting expedition.

The Freeman-Lewis Co. had a fine wedding decoration last week. The house was treated with Augusta gladioli and rubrum lilies. Nine bridesmaids' bouquets of Cecil Brunner roses were used and the bridal bouquet was a shower of lily of the valley.

Quite a stir has been made locally about the unnecessary and useless expenditure by the city council on the new conservatory at Eastlake park. Dr. Houghton was the first to call attention to the extremely heavy foundations and framework, which are said to be out of all proportion to the size of the house. One detail is a 2x8 purlin, which certainly would appear to be altogether too heavy, keeping out light needed by the plants. The gutters, eaves and other work are of the same clumsy character. A committee of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society waited on the council recently and was taken to Eastlake in the city automobiles to point out the faults. At the date of this writing, the results of the committee's efforts are not known. The trouble appears to be the employment of any firm but a firm of greenhouse builders to build a greenhouse, a mistake that has been made by the authorities in many other cities. It is likely to prove an expensive mistake in this case, some $80,000 having been voted to build a house which a well known firm in Chicago says could be built in first-class, up-to-date style for $30,000.

H. R. Richards.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Spokane, Wash.—H. E. Krause, in business here as a landscape gardener and florist, has brought suit against his partner, Robert Petty, asking that the partnership be dissolved and a receiver be appointed. Mr. Krause complains that Mr. Petty has handled the firm's funds carelessly and allowed the business to run down.

Springfield, Mo.—At a final meeting of the creditors of O. J. Martin, a voluntary bankrupt, it was learned that the creditors were entirely without recourse, as there were no available assets. John Schmook was in charge as referee.

Baltimore, Md.—Ellen M. Tormey has secured a permit to erect a greenhouse, at a cost of $600, on Oakford avenue, west of Garrison avenue.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June, 1913.

THE Wolverine Nursery Co., of Paw Paw, Mich., has closed its downtown store and will hereafter transact all business at the office at the packing grounds, on what is known as the old fair grounds.

THE nursery trade looks forward to the largest autumn season on record. Not only is the fall business growing year by year, but this time the farmers and fruit growers everywhere have large crops marketable at fine prices.

THE Wills Valley Nursery Co. has been incorporated at Fort Payne, Ala., with a capital stock of $100,000, of which $50,000 has been paid in. The incorporators are Nathan W. Hale, A. I. Smith, Oscar P. Casee, W. W. Howard and E. E. Rutherford.

IT is said that Edwin H. Riehl, of the Monarch Fruit Farm, at Alton, Ill., placed 200 varieties of grapes on exhibition at a recent meeting of the Alton Horticultural Society, and that 100 of the varieties were originated by himself. Mr. Riehl is president of the society.

THE Union Corner Orchard Co. has been incorporated at Martinsburg, W. Va., with an authorized capital of $50,000, for the purpose of conducting a general orchard and nursery business. The incorporators are H. A. Hammann, M. L. Dorn, S. S. Folker, W. S. Snyder and A. C. Nadebousch, all of Martinsburg.

TREE INJURED BY SAPSUCKERS.

In our cemetery we have many fine old elm trees—magnificent ones. Two of them are dead and five more are dying. On examining them, I found that they looked like the rough sketch which I enclose, showing a tree trunk marked with many perforations. There are so many of these rows of bores that the tree has been circled many times. I also found them on a poplar tree, and in the yard of one of my neighbors I find there is an old apple tree affected in the same way. Can you tell me what is doing the work and what we must do to save our trees?

L. M. D.

The sketch which was enclosed shows a large number of round holes arranged in parallel rows around the tree trunk. The holes are stated to be about one-fifth inch in diameter and from one-fourth to one-half inch deep.

From the description and sketch it is quite certain that the holes are the work of a species of sapsucker, a bird which makes the holes in the trees for the purpose of feeding upon the sap. For this purpose they always select trees which are growing rapidly, as they will furnish more sap. Although trees are seldom killed by them, if the perforations are extremely numerous the growth of the trees is often noticeably checked.

When trees have been injured in this way, if the bark and wood have not yet become dry, it will be possible to prevent the further drying out of the trees by applying rather thick lead and oil paint to the holes, using a small and rather stiff brush, just large enough to fill the holes without getting much paint on the bark. To prevent further injury, the trunks of the trees could be sprayed with lime-sulphur solution, or some other offensive preparation, just before the buds open in the spring, or earlier if the sapsuckers are at work. T.

PRIVET HEDGE.

In planting California privet for a hedge, which is the best season to plant, spring or fall? To have a hedge eighteen inches high after a season's growth, about what size should I plant? Last winter privet froze out considerably. Is there a way of protecting it? Is there any other hedge as rapid a grower and as beautiful and more hardy?

G. R. S.

Plant in the spring by all means. A large part of the plants will die if fall planted. Buy plants one and one-half to two feet high and cut back quite hard. California privet is pretty and quick growing. It is utterly useless, however, where the temperature will fall to 10 degrees below zero, even if well protected. Dealers carry heavy stocks of this and usually push it to the exclusion of other and hardier sorts. Ligustrum Ibota, or the variety Regelianum, are much hardier than L. ovalifolium, or California privet, and are good growers. I would advise you to plant one or other of these next spring and you will not be troubled with the plants dying out. C. W.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Another week and the busy season will have commenced. Already there have been a number of weddings to liven up trade and fall openings are being held in many of the stores.

Stock is exceedingly scarce, with the exception of roses. These are in good supply and of good quality. Asters are nearly over and those on the market are of poor quality, with few exceptions. Carnations are in pretty heavy supply, but the quality is poor and many are worthless.

Various Notes.

Another little one arrived at the home of Albert Pochelon Monday morning, September 16. This makes three boys and two girls to succeed Mr. Pochelon in business.

Robert Rahaley was busy the first days of the week at the registration booth in his precinct. He mixes in politics occasionally, just for the sake of a little variety.

Albert Pochelon, secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, reports that many new members have joined in that movement. This will eventually make possible the exchange of orders in every part of the globe where there are florists. The new secretary is enthusiastic and is devoting many evenings to devising plans which will prove most beneficial to the organization.

Miss Martha Kurtzhals, for many years with J. B. Goetz Sons, of Saginaw, has joined the selling force of B. Schroeter. Schroeter put a Studebaker delivery auto into service about one week ago, and finds it a great saving over the use of the larger car for the daily deliveries.

The exhibits at the public schools were judged by Messrs. Sullivan, Unger, Taepke, Stock and Beard last week. The exhibits by the school children are an annual event held under the auspices of the Home and Gardening Committee of the Twentieth Century Club. Prizes in the form of ferns, palms, etc., are donated by the Detroit Florists' Club and also by a number of the local retailers. Cash prizes are given by the Twentieth Century Club. H. S.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has been good for the last week. Funeral work and decorations have called for a great deal of additional flowers. Stock is somewhat scarce at this time. Of lilies, good asters and roses there are hardly enough to go around. Carnations are not available in large quantities as yet. Beauties have been of good quality, considering the time of the year. Palm decorations for the fall store openings have commenced and the palm hustlers will have a merry time for the next few weeks.

Various Notes.

Adolphus Gude, of Washington, spent most of last week in this city, attending the gathering of the Masons. Mr. Gude has been doing considerable traveling in the west this year, having also attended the florists' convention in Chicago and the Shriners' meeting at Los Angeles.

J. J. Karins, with H. A. Dreer, Inc., spent a day with the trade last week.

The Hill-Heller Co. has the new store about completed and expects to be ready for business by the end of the week.

Bertermann Bros. Co. has purchased a new Premier car for delivery purposes and expects to have it in service in a few days.

A. Wiegand & Sons had the decoration for the banquet of the Masons last week, using about 350 feet of lattice, covered with prepared oak leaves. They also used 200 palms, 1,500 Beauties and other flowers.

John Rieman has added an electric sign to his store front.

Mrs. E. A. Nelson has been spending the last week at the Methodist hospital, after undergoing an operation. At last report she was doing well. H. L. W.

Westerly, R. I.—George L. Stillman won thirteen first prizes and four seconds in the dahlia exhibition at the Connecticut State Fair, at Hartford.

Wakefield, Mass.—Among the exhibits at the recent flower show of the Wakefield Improvement Association was a table of remarkably fine roses from Eber Holmes, of Montrose, Mass. Mr. Holmes' display was tastefully arranged by Charles C. Ball, of this city.

5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of well-formed flowers, rosy amber turning to bright pink; has proven a special favorite in the New York market this season.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz; $10.00 per 100

Dentelle. Entirely distinct, deeply fringed flower of a creamy white color; a splendid novelty particularly for late flowering, it is not suited for forcing, but for Decoration Day and later flowering it is very valuable.
2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Fraicheur. Very large, regularly shaped flowers, white, delicately suffused with rose, very free flowering.
2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

General de Vibraye. A favorite wherever seen; very large heads of bright rose colored flowers, a splendid early forcing variety.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

La Lorraine. Very large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink; has become a general favorite during the past two years; one of the best.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
5 " " 5.00 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mme. A. Riverain. Superb bright rose color; very vigorous and floriferous. One of the most successful Hydrangea growers in the U. S. considers this as one of the very best varieties yet introduced.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Ornament. Large pretty mauve-pink flowers, very free flowering.

5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Ronsard. Flowers and trusses very large, of a beautiful rose tint; a very promising sort.
2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Radiant. Splendid rose-carmine, quite distinct from all others, an easy variety to force and a sort that we believe will be one of the winners.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "
6 " " 5.00 " 40.00 "

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the very best, of splendid erect habit, very robust, medium sized heads of bright rose-colored flowers; one of the very best of the Bouquet Rose type.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 2.50 " 20.00 "
6 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "

Senateur Henri David. Another splendid rose-colored variety, with red reflections, flowers produced in immense large heads; this variety is on the style of the La Lorraine, but is an earlier bloomer.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mme. E. Mouillere. This has been the favorite white variety in the New York market this year, very free flowering, of good size and form. Awarded silver medal at the National Flower Show at Boston last year. A great favorite with English growers, one London grower known to us handling over 30,000 of this variety alone.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

Mme. Maurice Hamar. Described by the introducer as a delicate flesh rose-color, of a pleasing shade. In our soil it has been the most beautiful deep blue we have seen, and which has been admired by everyone; a vigorous grower, very free and early; the individual flowers as well as the trusses being of immense size. One of the easiest to force early.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mme. Raymond. Large trusses of perfectly round flowers of a transparent white, passing to a tender rose. Entirely distinct and in competition with all the other white varieties was awarded a certificate at the meeting of the National Association of Gardeners.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mousseline. A beautiful mauve-rose with cream-colored center; the flower heads are large and held erect; a decided and fine acquisition.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "

Hydrangea Mlle. de Tremault.

Mlle. de Tremault. As the result of our own trials we are convinced that this variety, which is yet but little known, is the best very large flowered white yet introduced. As free flowering as any, of splendid erect habit and beautiful foliage, it will produce flower heads as large as the old popular Otaksa. We strongly recommend it.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mlle. Agnes Barillet. A splendid white, flowers large and freely produced; a grand variety for a 5- or 6-inch pot plant. From our own observation we are inclined to consider this the best of all the whites and we recommend it for careful trial.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 " 50.00 "

Mlle. Renee Gaillard. Very large panicles of milky white, irregularly dentated flowers. One of the best growers says that this should have been awarded the Silver Medal given to Mme. Emile Mouillere last year as the best white.
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100
5 " " 4.50 " 35.00 "
6 " " 6.00 "

Mont Rose. Immense panicles of clear flesh-rose, entirely distinct, one of the best very early flowering varieties, color clean and clear, every one should try this.
2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
5 " " 6.00 "

Mons. G. Renault. Very large flowers of a bright rose with carmine reflex. A most promising variety, very free and easily forced.
2¼-inch pots, $0.85 per doz.; $ 6.00 per 100
5 " " 4.00 " 30.00 "
6 " " 5.00 "

HENRY A. DREER, Inc., 714 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Business has been rather quiet for the last week, with the exception of the call for yellow and white dahlias for the decoration of the Catholic churches of the city in connection with the convention held by the German Central Verein, which was presided over by Rev. John Bouzano, the first papal delegate who ever visited Toledo, and for that reason there was a great call for yellow and white flowers, the papal colors.

Various Notes.

Frank Schramm is able to be out after a short illness.

The Cushman Gladiolus Co., of Sylvania, is sending in some fine dahlias and gladioli.

A new baby girl has arrived at the home of John Kanimisk.

The Toledo Florists' Club has sent an invitation to the Detroit Florists' Club to visit Toledo in the near future.

There is a great deal of building and rebuilding going on in Toledo and the stock in the various greenhouses is looking exceptionally well this fall.

Emile Kuhnke is building a new residence for his foreman, Ernest Glauser.

Max Spanner has the sympathy of the florists in the sudden and shocking death of his brother, David A. Spanner, who, in less than one hour after he left the store, was killed Sunday when his automobile skidded and overturned. Mr. Spanner was a bright, energetic young man and had a bright future. He had been with his brother for about six months.

John Barrow is in Winnipeg, Man., attending the Odd Fellows' convention.

Among the visitors of the week were J. J. Karins, of Henry A. Dreer, and B. J. Maynard, of Chicago. H. F. P.

Edwardsville, Ill.—In a local newspaper of recent date a whole page was occupied by an illustrated account of the business of the J. F. Ammann Co., with a portrait of J. F. Ammann, president of the company, and with brief biographies, also, of Mr. Ammann; of Emil H. Klein, the secretary; J. H. Buchsenschutz, the treasurer, and Le Roy Smith, the other director.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The Jewish holidays last week brought with them a splendid demand for flowers. The demand included not only a call for choice stock, but also shorter stock, as long as it was good.

Roses of all kinds and sizes are selling. This includes even the short white, which has been more or less of a drug. Beauties continue to sell as well as during the last several months. Last week on Wednesday and Thursday many more of them might easily have been used. The New York asters that are arriving on almost every train are at their best. Their condition is such that they sold as well and are as good as those we have been receiving from points nearer the city. White ones predominate. Local asters are about over for the season. Now that the gladiolus season is about over, these flowers are selling nicely. Cosmos and dahlias are coming into favor. The quality of both is excellent. Giganteum and longiflorum lilies prove good property. They are bringing somewhat higher prices. A few early mums have made their appearance. The green goods market is active.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell is repeating his performance of recent years, getting in asters and gladioli in quantity late in the season, when they are needed.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Schumann, of Newport, go again this week for a two weeks' stay at Martinsville, Ind., to take the baths.

A. Sunderbruch's Sons, Julius Baer and Jos. Maunder, of Newport, are among the local florists who had large opening decorations this week.

E. G. Gillett has the first early fall mums in the market. They are Smith's Advance, from the South Park Floral Co.

P. J. Olinger went to New Castle September 17 on a flying business trip.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green.

These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When In Philadelphia be sure to Look Us Up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has been a little more brisk during the last week or so and is beginning to take on the early fall appearance. Stock is much better, and before many weeks we shall all be happy in being able to show customers good stock, which we shall not be ashamed to put on the counter. Roses are getting better every day, both in the quality of the flowers and the length of the stems. The Killarneys are more plentiful than any other varieties, but some few reds and Wards are coming in. Carnations are improving from day to day and will soon be up to the standard.

Gladioli have become somewhat short in supply and the demand has also fallen off since carnations have been more in evidence. Asters are about done for; a few are still coming in, but the quality is extremely poor. A few yellow mums are to be seen, but there is not much demand for them yet. Valley has been scarce, and was hard to find even in Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati. Ferns are moving somewhat better, as people are commencing to prepare for the winter.

Various Notes.

Everybody is back from vacation now and all are waiting for the fall rush to start.

G. H. Woodrow, of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., has been ill for the last week or so and is still far from well.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The September meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held here September 11 and among other things the club voted to provide $50 for a cup to be donated to the National Flower Show, which is to be held in New York next spring. The use of the cup will be left for the show managers to decide. Two new members were elected, F. W. Grant, of Port Washington, and G. Ferguson, of Glen Cove. A number of exhibits were shown and the awards made by Judges Adler, Gray and MacDonald were as follows: Honorable mention to James Holloway for a collection of outdoor fruit, first to H. Boettcher for gladiolus, first to H. Gaut for onions and first to J. W. Everett for celery. The next meeting of the society will be held in connection with the dahlia show to be held October 9.

OUR MOTTO: WE BELIEVE.

We believe in American business methods; we believe and have faith in our customers; we believe that truth is an asset and that our word is as good as our bond; we believe that the best is none too good for our customers.

THIS ENDS OUR LIABILITY IN SELLING ONLY THE BEST.

Who? Godfrey Aschmann, the Araucaria King of Philadelphia. He and his Araucarias are more popular than pennies are with school children. No arguments needed to sell his goods; 25 years' experience in importing and shipping the Araucaria (his specialty) makes him the Araucaria King of all America. Now is the time to stock up your houses.

WHEN YOU BUY, IT PAYS TO BUY GOOD STUFF

Look and see what Mr. Fred J. Michell, of the so well-known firm, Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, has to say about our plant, September 14, 1912.

"I have just visited the greenhouses of Godfrey Aschmann, and must say that it was indeed a great surprise to me. I have never seen a better lot of Araucarias, Ferns of all sizes and varieties and prices, Rubbers, Palms, Azaleas and all other seasonable plants ready for shipment, as are at present at Mr. Godfrey Aschmann's."

See what one of our customers says, who bought $44.45 worth, Sept. 3, 1912:

Dear Sir: BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1912.

Your shipment of Palms, Plants and Ferns arrived in fine shape. I certainly am well pleased with all stock you sent me, and I will send you another order shortly.

S. W. BAKER, Billy the Florist, 93 Front St., Binghamton, N. Y.

1200 BOSTONS, 1000 WHITMANI COMPACTA (new). This stock is from the bench and is in fine condition. The Whitmani compacta is simply a greatly improved Whitmani—it does not revert back to the Boston leaf as the old Whitmani does, and while in appearance it is much like the old variety, the fronds have a stiffer mid-rib and make a handsomer plant. Stock is 5 and 6-in. size, being mostly 6-in. As these plants now occupy my propagation benches, they must be closed out early. I can quote you bargain prices. A. A. Gannett, Geneva, N. Y.

Extra, good, strong ferns, ready for shipment. 10,000 Boston, 3-in., $7.00 per 100, $60.00 per 1000; 4-in., $12.00 per 100, $110.00 per 1000; 5-in., $18.00 per 100. Elegantissima, 3-in., $7.00 per 100; 4-in., $12.00 per 100. Scholzeli, 5-in., $25.00 per 100.
Strong 3-in. A. plumosus, ready for 4-in., $5.00 per 100; 4-in., $7.00 per 100. These are all extra good bargains as we must have room.
Peterson Floral Co., Gibson City, Ill.

FERN RUNNERS, fine stock. Boston, Whitmani, Amerpohlii and Springfieldii, $1.80 per 100; $15.00 per 1000. PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. One of many reports: "I had 3000 of your Pansy Park Perfection pansy plants last fall. They began to bloom in February and from then on were a sight: immense blooms, wonderful coloring and great variation. Shall want at least 10,000 for next fall and possibly more of the same giant mixture." F. E. Peckham, Norwich, Conn. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery in good condition guaranteed. Cash.

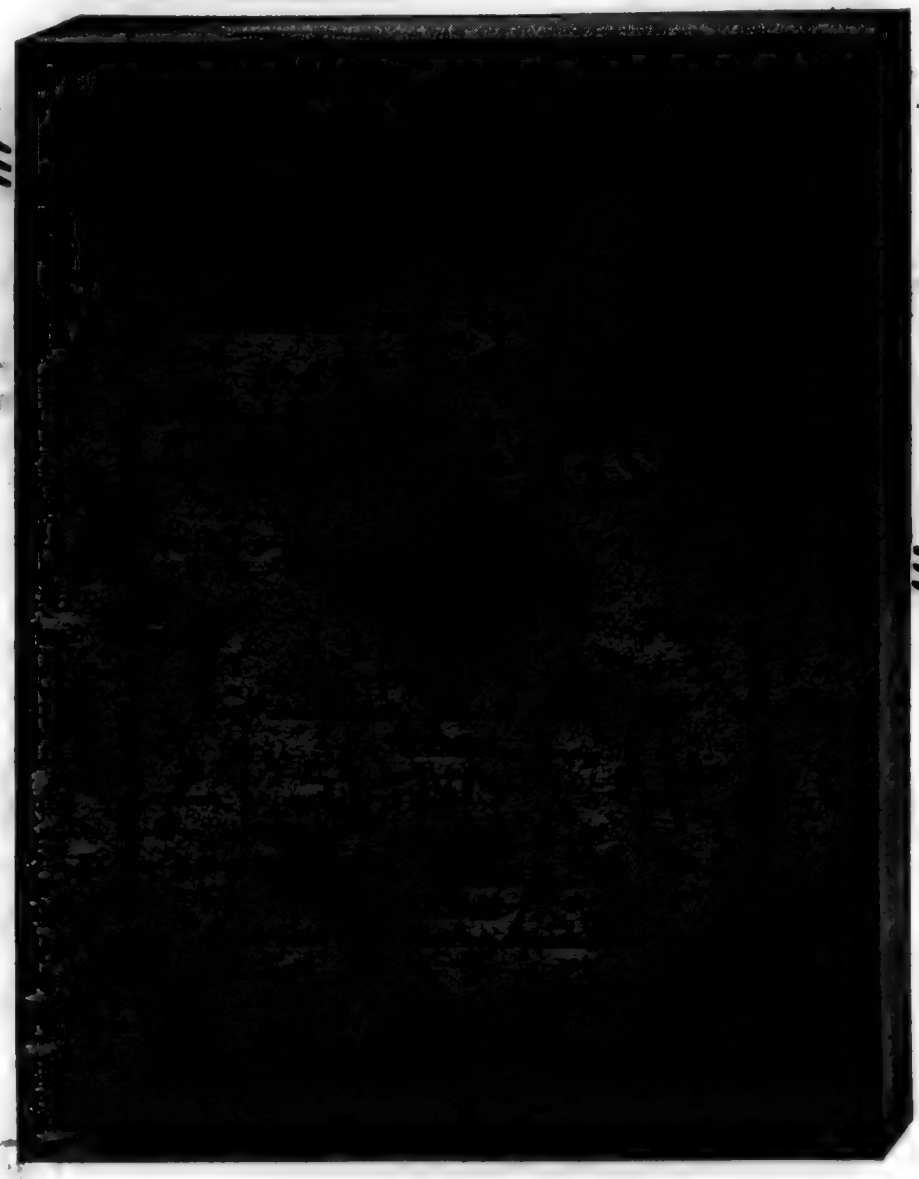
Write for six books on indoor and outdoor irrigation.

THE SKINNER IRRIGATION CO., Dept. H, Troy, Ohio

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Benjamin F. Dorrance is president of the West Side Club, an organization that is taking an active interest in civic affairs.

Mitchell, S. D.—It was seventeen years ago that The Newburys, now incorporated, started in business here with small capital. Now they claim live assets of $105,000. There is 55,000 square feet of glass and ninety acres of nursery. The pay roll approximates $1,000 a month. The shipping trade extends to every state in the Union.



Bristol, Pa.—Terry & Peck, who have been in business as florists at the corner of North Main and Laurel streets for more than a quarter of a century, have sold out to John C. Cullem. Judge B. A. Peck, who was a member of the firm, died recently, and the other member, William B. Terry, did not care to continue. The new owner intends to remodel the store and add stationery, confectionery and other side lines.

McCook, Neb.—W. T. March, formerly associated with B. C. Johnson, has sold out to E. C. McKay.

Battle Creek, Mich.—The employees in the Grand Trunk Railway shops here have a horticultural society among themselves, which recently held a most successful eighth annual flower show with $150 in cash premiums.

Scranton, Pa.—It is reported that ten laborers engaged in building greenhouses for the W. H. Davis Floral Co., at Fillmore avenue and Washington street, recently went on strike for higher wages, but another force of men was engaged and the work went on without much interruption.

EVERY RETAILER NEEDS THIS BOOK

IT IS THE ALBUM

DESIGNS

To be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Commencement Flowers, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it is not practicable to show the customer the finished article. This Album has been received with enthusiasm by the trade. It was from florists and decorators who felt the need of an up-to-date book containing these features. With this album you can show the finished work, in beautifully printed pictures.

Not only is the Album new, bright and up-to-date, but everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

Greenhouse Heating.

AT THE NORTH PACIFIC COAST.

Which is the better way to run the flow pipes, uphill or downhill? How can I arrange the piping, both flows and returns, so as to get the best results in my range of five greenhouses, here in the west part of Washington state? As you will see from the diagram which I enclose, the houses all run parallel, with the boiler at one end.

N. H.

It is generally best to run the flow pipes downhill, giving them just fall enough to keep the air from pocketing.

The sketch shows three houses 136 feet long, one of them nine feet wide and the other two each twenty-two and one-half feet wide; also two houses 23x100 feet. The inquirer, however, does not state the temperature, either inside or outside. To heat with hot water to 60 degrees in the 9-foot house, use two 2½-inch pipes as flows and four 2-inch pipes as returns. In the other houses use three 2½-inch flows and ten 2-inch returns. For 50 degrees, use eight returns. Carry one flow on each plate and one under the ridge of the wide houses.

PIPING A CARNATION HOUSE.

I have one greenhouse, 18x80, located in the southeastern part of the state of Washington. Our main crop will be carnations, though in winter we shall have potted plants in bloom as the season comes along. What temperature will be required for such stock? I have an Ideal boiler. Please tell me the best way to pipe the house, for hot water. I will tell you my idea: Start with two 3-inch pipes from the boiler into the greenhouse; then reduce to 2½-inch. If I use 1½-inch returns, how many returns will be needed, with two 2½-inch flows.

H. & H.

The temperature for a greenhouse in which carnations are to form the leading crop should be 55 degrees or a little less, depending considerably upon the variety. This, of course, refers to the temperature to be maintained at night, as during the day it should be somewhat warmer, if proper ventilation is given.

To heat a house 18x80 feet to 55 degrees, about 500 square feet of radiation would be required in the climate of Seattle, and 600 feet and upward in the cooler parts of the country. To provide this radiation, two 2½-inch flow pipes on the plates or one 3-inch flow under the ridge will answer. For the returns use six 2-inch pipes; or, if the use of 1½-inch pipes for the returns is preferred, eight of that size could be substituted. The returns may

A NEW HAMPSHIRE RANGE.

Will you please advise me as to the best way of heating the houses that are outlined on the enclosed diagram? You will notice that houses No. 1 and 2, according to the diagram, meet at the boiler room, while houses No. 3 and 4 abut on No. 1 and run parallel with No. 2. In other words, houses No. 2, 3 and 4 are crossed at the ends by the boiler room and house No. 1. Houses No. 1 and 2 are already built, and piped as I have marked, but I have got to put in a new boiler, and I want to build two more houses, Nos. 3 and 4, as I have sketched them. Is the plan feasible? The 3-inch flow pipe in No. 1 pitches down from the boiler room as it now is. I thought I would change it and make the highest point at the farther end, putting in a ¼-inch gas pipe to go up through the roof to take care of the air. I should like to be able to heat two of the houses, Nos. 3 and 4, to 60 degrees in zero weather, and the others to 50 degrees. How large a hot water heater will be required, and how much and what size of pipe? S. M. P. & S.

From the sketch it would appear that houses 3 and 4 are 11x50 feet, but the size of the other houses is not so clear. House No. 1 is fifty feet long and is evidently not far from ten feet wide. It is heated by means of one 3-inch overhead flow and six 1¼-inch returns. House No. 2 is thirty feet long and is marked "20-foot rafters." It appears to be a lean-to house, and will be so considered. It is heated by one 3-inch flow and eight 2-inch returns, which should furnish 50 degrees.

The flow pipe in house No. 1 is larger than is needed for that house. While it would hardly be able to handle houses 3 and 4 in addition, it would supply those houses if a 2½-inch flow were put in for house No. 1. If this is not done, a 3-inch flow should be put through house No. 1 to supply houses 3 and 4. This could be reduced to 2½-inch after taking off a 2½-inch pipe to supply house No. 3. For heating houses No. 3 and 4 to 60 degrees, use one 2½-inch overhead flow and seven 2-inch returns in each house.

A boiler for the four houses will require a rating of about 1,000 to 1,200 square feet of radiating surface.

So far as can be seen from the sketch, nothing would be gained by changing the 3-inch flow pipe in house No. 1, and the best circulation will be secured if it runs downhill.

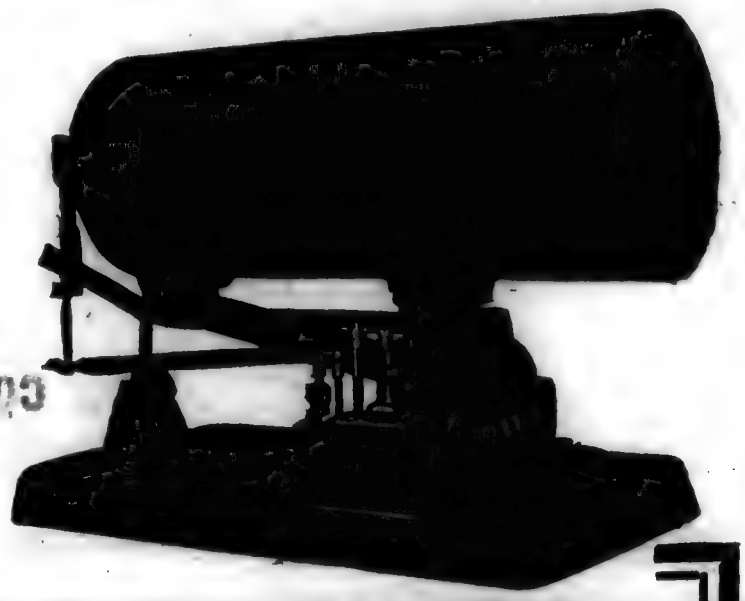
WITH BOILER UNDER RESIDENCE.

I wish you would tell me what amount of piping will be needed in a house that I am building. I expect to do my own plumbing, and do not know the exact amount of piping required. I intend to use hot water, and will place the boiler in the basement of my residence, which is five feet from one corner of the greenhouse. The greenhouse is 18x125, with eighteen inches of glass on top of cement walls two and one-half feet high. I shall want a temperature of about 55 to 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. The house is exposed on all sides. I am figuring on using 2-inch pipes for returns. What amount of radiation would be needed to carry that extent of glass surface and still have some surplus, in this New York latitude? There will be three benches in the house. W. K.

The greenhouse, 18x125, should be connected to the boiler in the basement by a 4-inch main flowpipe and a return of the same size, running from the boiler to the nearer end of the house, where three 2½-inch pipes should be taken off from the flow and run to the farther end of the house. While ten 2-inch returns would answer, it will be better to use twelve. Run one flow under the ridge and one upon each plate. To each flow connect four of the returns, and place them under each of the benches.



PIPING A LETTUCE HOUSE.

I expect to build a small greenhouse this fall, to be used principally for growing lettuce. The house will be 20x60 feet, eleven feet to the ridge and four feet to the eaves. There will be no glass in the sides; the south end will be glass above the level of the 4-foot walls. I think I shall make two benches, seven feet wide, with an aisle between them and one on each side. The ground slopes to the north. I shall put the boiler at the north end, and I think that by building the house level I shall be able to provide enough fall for the returns.

where I can get a reliable publication on lettuce growing? H. D. L.

The twelve horse-power boiler should be amply large to heat a greenhouse 20x60 feet. Such a house can be heated to 50 degrees by means of two 2½-inch flow pipes and eight 2-inch returns, if hot water is used. One flow pipe and four returns can be placed on each wall; or, if bottom heat is desired, run the flow pipes on the purlins and carry the returns under the benches. An expansion tank holding ten gallons will answer. Connect this with the highest part of the main 3-inch flow pipe, and elevate it as much as possible, though a couple of feet will answer when the flow pipes run downhill.

For directions for building greenhouses, we recommend "Greenhouse Construction." For the growing of lettuce and other vegetables under glass, "Greenhouse Management" will afford many helpful hints. Either of these books will be sent postpaid by The Review for $1.50.

RETURNS ARE TOO SMALL.

I wish to find out whether I have enough piping in my greenhouses to heat them properly in this part of Michigan, where the outside temperature sometimes drops to 20 degrees below zero. I want a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night. The houses run east and west. House No. 1 is 8x45. It contains five runs of 1¼-inch pipe under each side bench, fed by a 2-inch flow, which goes to the farther end and there drops down to feed the returns. This house is four feet high to the eaves and has two feet of glass in the south side and in the gables.

A Steady Pressure will always be maintained in your steam pipes, no matter how the pressure at the boiler fluctuates, if you equip your main lines with these valves. Carry 40 or 50 pounds pressure on the boiler, set the

to carry 5 or 10 pounds on the line and you will always have a reserve in case of a sudden drop in temperature. This valve saves both fuel and worry. Ask for catalogue and particulars.

What the Users Say

"Test at 32° Below Zero; Kroeschell Boiler Easy to Fire With Soft Coal."

I have 7800 sq. ft. of glass; this boiler would take care of about two greenhouses of the same size. I maintain a temperature from 80° to 90°—did not have the least bit of trouble when thermometer was 32° below zero. In zero weather fired at half past nine in the evening, went to bed, slept all night, got up at nine in the morning and found a good fire at that hour. The boiler is giving the very best satisfaction. Yours is the first hot water boiler I have had in use, but have fired steam boilers of different makes. "The Kroeschell" is certainly the best and quickest heating boiler that I have had anything to do with. As to the Kroeschell Generator, I would take no amount of money for it; I can run the water above the boiling point and have no trouble. I give your boiler, generator and piping system the highest praise.

House No. 2 is 21x33. The sides are boarded to the gutters. The east gable is boarded to the gutter, and above that is glass. The west end abuts on the boiler house, which is 12x21 and has a boiler pit underneath. This house has six 1½-inch pipes under the side benches. The lower end of the return coils is about two feet above the top of the boiler. House No. 2 has two 2-inch feed pipes, which go to the east end of the house and drop down under the benches, there feeding the coils of six pipes. The expansion tank is in the loft of the boiler house, about six or eight feet above the highest flow pipe.

A plumber here tells me I could get better results by having the coils fed from the boiler at the west end and not placing the flows overhead, as they are now; that is, he would have the low end of the coils at the east end and there connect them, to flow back to the boiler. All plans of which I have read, however, are similar to the system now used in my houses.

My heater is a Wilks, 24x42, and has only a 2-inch tap for the returns. It seems that in house No. 2 a 2-inch return cannot take care of the water fast enough; can it? Should the opening be larger, or should there be another 2-inch return in the emptying hole in front of the boiler? At present there is only one 2-inch return to receive the water from the twelve 1½-inch pipes.

J. J. U.

The only criticism that can be offered regarding the piping in house No. 1 is that, considering the slight difference between the height of the boiler and the returns, it might have been better to use 1½-inch or 2-inch pipe for the returns. If a good circulation can be secured, eight 1¼-inch pipes should answer when the outside temperature is 25 degrees below zero and six returns should be sufficient in zero weather. House No. 2 has just about the amount of piping needed for 25 degrees below zero.

If a good circulation cannot be obtained, owing to the friction in the small pipes, put on a generator, thus forming a closed system, and by means of valves shut off four pipes in house No. 1 and two in house No. 2, except in extremely cold weather. If the flow pipes run downhill, the system is properly installed. For house No. 2 tap for a 2½-inch return.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Florists' Outing.

The annual florists' barbecue was held at East Lake park, September 10, under the auspices of the Birmingham Horticultural Society, which has just been reorganized. A number of pastimes were indulged in and an enjoyable day was spent. Those attending were among the prominent florists in the Birmingham district. Howard Bros., of Thorsby, and Charles Skews, of Bessemer, were guests of the local society.

John L. Parker acted as toastmaster. In a pleasant and appropriate address he expressed the kindly feelings of those present. G. B. McVay made an address full of enthusiasm. Hugh Seales, in his usual happy manner, made a long talk, impressing the ladies present with the fact that all florists are creatures of God. Short talks were made by George Luffman, James Williamson and John A. Lambert.

The youngest florist present was the 15-month-old baby of Theo. Smith.

All the florists and their families made merry and extended their hands across the festive board in a body, with the one happy thought in heart and mind, "Unity." After the spread a sad and impressive ceremony was performed. The men, with bared heads, and the ladies, with bowed heads, bore the remains of the "Knocker" to the long resting place. With solemn ceremony, all that was mortal of the Knocker was buried beneath the sod, while the band played a heart-breaking dirge.

Various Notes.

C. H. Wood and Mr. Kessler have reorganized the Birmingham Landscape & Nursery Co., with an increased capital and new members. They have purchased a large tract of land fronting upon the railroad just sixteen miles from the city, with every facility for an up-to-date nursery business. They will continue the same old stand in the city. Mr. Kessler was formerly with P. J. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga.

The florists of Birmingham regret having to give up Andrew Hauge, who will leave shortly for Pensacola, Fla., where he will embark in business for himself. He has made extensive plans for a modern business in the pretty little city by the sea.

John A. Lambert will open, October 1, a new flower store in connection with the McVay Seed Store, with all the modern requisites. Mr. Lambert also has purchased an interest in the McVay Seed Co. and was elected a director in the company. The McVay Seed Co. is headed by J. B. Dolson, president, with G. B. McVay as manager. Mr. McVay was for twenty-one years manager of the Amzi Godden Seed Co., in this city. L.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Excellent roses are coming in and, with yellow mums, form the staple output. September weddings are responsible for a lively business in valley, and orchids are meeting with a better market than ever before in Canada. The Dale Estate has now over 35,000 well established orchid plants, and connoisseurs regard the collection as superior to any in North America. Sweet peas have been disappointing this summer, owing to the wet season, and asters have suffered considerably from the same cause. Carnations are due in about a fortnight, while the sale of carnation plants has been so extensive that many growers have had to go without altogether through sending in their orders too late. Violets appeared this week, but the crop is not expected until a little later than usual this year.

The three new houses, 60x850, at the Dale Estate, are finished and glazed, half the space being devoted to roses and half to carnations.

Walter Calvert is planting all his space with violets for the winter.

Richard Jennings has returned from a trip to the Pacific coast and is quite convinced that eastern Canada is as good as the west for the average man in the florists' business, this year at least. W. G. P.

Haverhill, Mass.—Yaffe the Florist recently completed his first year in business in the store at 5 Main street and is well satisfied with the patronage he has received. The store is particularly neat and attractive.

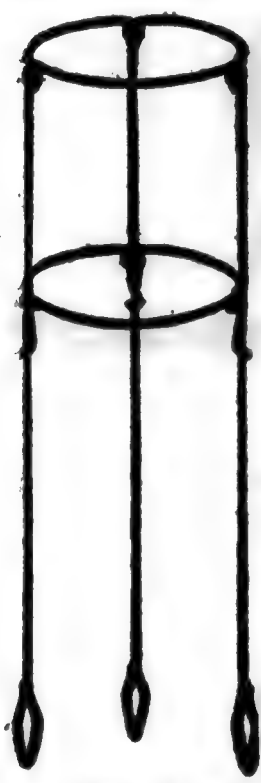
A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.



"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

GREENWICH, CONN.

The regular monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held here on Friday, September 13, with a large attendance and with President Stuart in the chair. The table was filled with choice exhibits, especially of dahlias and gladioli.

Four applications for membership were received and seven new members were elected.

A prize of $10 was offered for the fall show by the Wilson Plant Oil & Fertilizer Co., and one of $25 by C. Mallory, Port Chester.

J. H. Troy, of New Rochelle, spoke at some length of the conditions existing in the most thickly populated sections of our large cities, especially New York, and made some good suggestions as to what could be done to help the young generation by creating in their hearts a love for plant life by establishing gardens where the children could spend their time in cultivating vegetables and flowers. Oscar Fraenkel, of Yonkers, spoke along the same line, closing his remarks with a few explanations of the great results obtained by the proper use of humus in cultivating our lands. Both gentlemen were accorded a vote of thanks.

The awards for exhibits were as follows: Thomas Ryan, for collection of grapes, highly commended; A. Whitelaw, two vases of dahlias, vote of thanks; Alex. Geddes, French asparagus beans, vote of thanks; Harry Wilde, collection of dahlias, highly commended, also vote of thanks for clerodendron and high commendation for collection of peaches; Jas. Foster, plate of peaches, highly commended; J. Henderson, vase of seedling dahlias, vote of thanks.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y.

The regular monthly meeting of the Southampton Horticultural Society was held in Odd Fellows' hall, September 5, with President N. G. Ager in the chair.

The secretary of the flower show read a report showing a balance of $400 left over after paying expenses, which will be equally divided between the Fresh Air Home and the Southampton Hospital.

A communication was read from Chas. H. Totty, asking the society to offer some premiums for the National Flower Show. On motion, the communication was laid on the table until next meeting.

Two new members were elected.

A committee of three was appointed to get full information in regard to having the society incorporated, and to report at the next meeting. W. M.

This is the U-Bar—the Bar that makes U-Bar Greenhouses the famous greenhouses they are.

Here is a beautiful formal sunken garden, flanked on two sides by U-Bar greenhouses. These houses replaced those of other constructions that were torn down because they were not in keeping.

The U-Bar was chosen because of its airy gracefulness, durability and unmatched productiveness. These are the points on which it wins out. Always it is a case of superior points—and not one of mere price. The best, of course, must cost more. But U-Bar houses are worth a good deal more than their difference in cost. The catalogue both tells and shows why. Send for it.

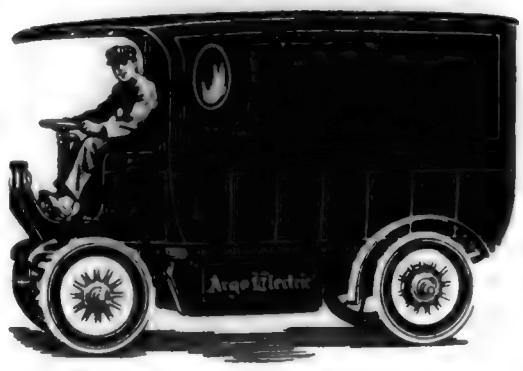
Does Your Delivery Service Advertise Your Business?

ELECTRIC Delivery Wagons will give you a higher name and fame among the entire community. The sight of an Electric Delivery Wagon is a positive relief—it is so clean, noiseless, dignified and efficient. It suggests to the public that the florist who uses Electric Delivery Service is the sort of florist to trade with. This is one big advantage to you in using Electric Vehicles—the valuable amount of advertising which their use will bring you.

Electric Delivery Wagons Will Save You Money

One Electric will do the work of several horse-drawn wagons—hence, you can make more and quicker deliveries. An Electric Delivery Wagon is not affected by the elements, heat or cold—it does not have to rest one day in five, like a hard-worked horse.



An Electric consumes power only when actually in operation—hence, it is economical for your kind of service, which necessitates frequent stops. Any driver now in your employ can quickly and easily learn to operate an Electric—you don't have to break in new men to learn your routes. Power for operating Electric Vehicles is cheaper than that for any other type—and it is constantly decreasing in cost.

Interesting literature about Electric Commercial Vehicles will be sent gladly upon request. Write today.

Public interest and private advantage both favor the Electric

We also have a very large stock of Light Begonia Lorraine (Edwin Lonsdale) sport at the same prices. This variety we consider far superior to the original type, it making a finer shaped plant as well as holding the flowers much better, while the color is a little lighter than that of the original Lorraine.

THE NEW CLEAR SCARLET BEDDING GERANIUM "HELEN MICHELL"

The best commercial novelty for 1913 (name registered with S. A. F. & O. H.). Seedling cross Jean Viaud and Alphonse Ricard. This sterling novelty will be introduced jointly by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and ourselves and the plants will all be grown by us at our place at Norwood, where we will be pleased to have you call. You will find that this Geranium has all the good points claimed for it. "Helen Michell" is semidouble, of the clearest possible shade of scarlet, is early in bloom and produces these continuously during the season. It grows compact medium dwarf, with lustrous green foliage, and throws up gigantic flower heads continuously; we claim it to have the largest flower heads of any of the bedding geraniums. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is a common occurrence that a single 4-inch pot plant shows 4 fully open gigantic flower heads, several half open, and more in bud. We are booking orders that will be filled in rotation from January, 1913.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

WHAT'S THE USE?

Does Artistic Work Pay?

"What's the use of artistic work if my trade is satisfied? Will it pay? I'm in the business for the money. Where's the advantage of raising the standard of my work unless my competitor is doing so? If my customers do not demand it, why not give my attention to selling more goods and increasing the volume of my business? Give the people what they want." The attitude of this manager is that it is up to his designer to show the metallic luster and the greenback scent to his class of work. If artistic work is going to make him rich quick, it's the artistic style for his.

Well, what is the use, anyhow, of striving to reach an ideal? Does it pay? If the style of work put out by a certain shop is of a high order, the proprietor's influence, both as a business man and as an artist, is going to give him a standing in the community which is valuable as an advertisement for his store. He can strengthen this reputation by becoming prominent in art circles, by working for the "city beautiful" interests, and, if there are none, by starting some. The publicity which these things bring is well known as valuable advertising. The moderate amount of time and study which these things require cannot help but be a good investment and can be arranged for from the day and night work of even the busiest florist.

Giving Customers What They Want.

While it is true that you must give people what they want, it is equally true that it is somebody's job to show them what they want. They would not have accepted the average type of work which has been handed out to them for the last few years if they had been shown anything better. Put a commonplace arrangement and an artistic production of the same piece side by side on your counter (and the artistic article can be made for the same or a lower price), and you will see quickly enough which will be chosen by the ordinary customer, and also which will be called for next time. The tastes of our own community are what we make them or allow them to become. We plow our own fields. Give your poorer class of trade a sample of high-grade work. They'll get the habit, too.

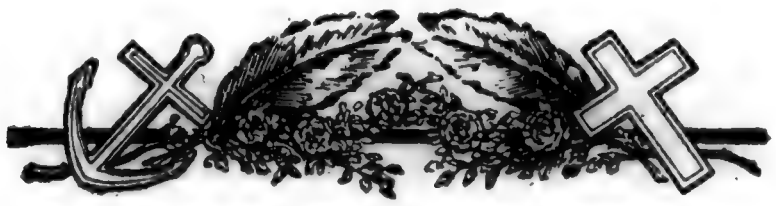
Another use of fine work is that it will attract a cultured class as well. Good taste in your store means a simplicity not necessarily expensive. This style, if displayed in your store finishing and fixtures, will obtain in your output of work also. "Beauty is choice," some famous person has said—the sense of selection, taste. It enables one to let a lot of things alone that are offered to tempt one's purse. Taste is practical and economical, a good business asset. Don't have a lot of junk around which shall suggest to buyers that they are helping to pay for stuff that they do not want.

It Pays to Be Progressive.

Keeping your work up to the standard of a high ideal has the advantage, also, of mental discipline, of keeping you wide-awake, observant and receptive, with an edge to the wits. Why are growers dissatisfied with what they produced twenty years ago? Why are they continually striving to produce a better, larger and finer flower or plant? Improvements are profitable, they tell us. It is a fact that the growers in our trade are more progressive than the designers. Another suggestion that we might receive from our brother craftsmen is that when we have something valuable, we should exploit it. If you can do artistic work, place special emphasis on it by advertising, persistent advertising.

Another advantage: Beautiful things will attract almost any eye, and the more nearly perfect the manner of displaying fine flowers is, the more attraction is exerted. There is a great hue and cry heard in the land that showy work is the most attractive. If this matter were looked into thoroughly, it would be found that correct coloring and design are the most striking and attractive of all, not on account of bulk always, but because of the natural appeal to the cultured as well as to the uncultured eye. The average floral work of today lacks more of the quality of artistic work than ragtime does of classical music. Ragtime has a kind of rhythm and swing which, though of a low order, is nevertheless an essential element of music. As much can not be said of the hit-or-miss style of floral work put out by so many.

Good Work is Economical.



By no means an unimportant merit of good work is its economy. The flowers are not used to cover space in all cases. If there must be size, use some foliage or a cheaper flower for background and construction purposes and decorate with a moderate or small amount of good quality, one kind of flowers, always remembering that sharp contrasts are striking. Sometimes the time element comes in, but to no great extent if one has a complete plan in his head. For instance, in the case of window decorating, a few well chosen vases or baskets or specimen plants, arranged with reference to one another on a suitable background, take no more time and less material than a so-called commercial window, made up of a dab of everything on the place. The usual exclamation of impatience, "What's the use?" may be turned into a helpful inquiry which will demonstrate the advantages of high ideals in every department of floral work. G. B.

A DARDS' DECORATION.

In the accompanying illustration we have a table decoration by Charles A. Dards, of New York. It was for a dinner for twelve at the Ritz-Carlton hotel. The background shows the use of forsythia and snowballs in bloom, which were the decorations around the room. Imperial china was used for the table decoration, the waterways being filled with boxwood sprays and the vases with variously colored pansies. Corsage bouquets, which show only indistinctly in the photograph because the flowers were so near the color of the cloth, were of orchids and valley.

Decoration by Charles A. Dards, New York.

There is personal pride and painstaking care back of our design work. That's why our Door Pieces, Casket Bouquets, and other Floral Tributes are always preferred by those who demand the best. Notwithstanding the excellence of flowers and workmanship, you will find our prices as reasonable as any.

RETAILERS' ADVERTISING.

Salesmanship on Paper.

When a salesman has interviewed a customer and sold a bill of goods, he must have accomplished all of four things. First, he must have secured his customer's attention; second, he must have held his interest; third, he must have led him up to a favorable decision; fourth, he must have secured the order.

Repeatedly have I said that advertising is salesmanship—and again I reiterate it.

Now, I want to impress every florist with the truth and the great importance of this fact.

You must get salesmanship into your advertising or it is not going to win.

It must contain something of the above essential ingredients. It must be attractive; it must be interesting; it must be forceful and convincing in reason and argument, otherwise it is in the class of the order-taker instead of the salesman.

Which class of publicity are you going to use this season? There really isn't any question which you intend to use, is there?

You cannot afford to use the first and you cannot afford not to use the second.

So when you set about preparing your copy keep the salesmanship idea before you.

I have in mind newspaper advertising—the most direct and effective form of publicity for the retail florist.

Some Means of Salesmanship.

Let us consider a few means that make for typographical salesmanship. Good illustrations afford the best means of drawing attention to your advertisements; in fact, their regular use has become almost imperative. An illustration, to be good, must not simply illustrate a mere catch-line, but should be in accord with the text of your advertisement as a whole. It goes without saying that illustrations should possess sufficient artistic merit. Liberal use of white space about type matter and the omission of rules and borders is another effective means of producing an attractive display where cuts are not used; but advertisers find by experience that the slight additional cost of cuts is more than offset by the greater efficiency of the well illustrated advertisement.

When your advertisement has gained the reader's attention, you must be interesting enough to hold him until he has finished the last line of your appeal—and while you are interesting you must be convincing.

Where Salesmanship is an Art.

Now, here is where our problem becomes intricate. Of course it isn't to be supposed that you can be so persuasive that on reading your advertisement a customer is made on the spot, and that he is straightway going to journey to your store for the purpose of purchasing the article or service offered. No, not at all. The idea is that the general tone of your advertising shall be such that its straightforwardness, its simplicity and sincerity will strike home, breed confidence and carry conviction, so that when the time comes that a reader wishes to buy something suggested in your advertising, your store will be the one patronized.

Salesmanship That Fails.

Some advertisers in their anxiety to be interesting become funny. Now, "Brown the Butcher" may indulge in a little connective humor without serious damage to his success, but the growing and marketing of flowers is a serious business, followed by serious people, and largely supported by a serious public. Taboo all "popular" phrases in your advertising. Send your funny sayings to Puck and Judge—it will pay you better.

Then there is the writer with the facile pen who is always penning something "snappy" in the chatty and breezy style, claiming "that is what the public like and want." This style may be successful in selling shoes and clothing, but certainly it is not well suited to retailing flowers. I do not mean that it is better to go to the other extreme and become especially dry. Follow the path that lies between these two extremes and you will find the style that is both dignified and effective.

I have before me over a dozen newspaper advertisements of as many florists that represent still another style of publicity that keeps on existing in spite of its lifelessness. I refer to the superannuated business-card advertisement. I want to see every florist cease using these outworn, useless things that masquerade as advertisements. If you are using only a two-inch ad put a live argument in the space and change your copy once a week. Try it for three months and note the difference in results.

Salesmanship That Wins.

These are days of progress and advanced ideas. Unless our publicity methods keep abreast with the times there is destined to be a corresponding falling off in returns. A florist receives from his advertising in proportion to what he puts into it. By this I do not mean the amount of money invested, but rather the time, the thought and interest bestowed. It is easy enough to buy advertising space if you have the money, but to fill that space with business-getting print is a matter that cannot well be left to incompetent help or rushed off fifteen minutes before the forms close.

When you start to write that next advertisement, remember what I said in the beginning: "Advertising is salesmanship;" and when you come to write the next one, say it again, and see if you can't have each new ad surpass the last one—even if you have to dig for every word. It will take time, yes, but it pays.

LILIES FOR SPRAYS.

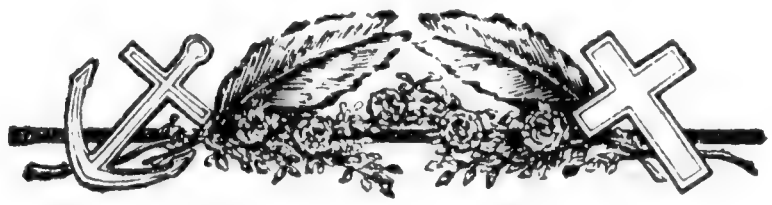
When the Easter lily was a flower of only a brief season its use was principally in decorations, but since it has become an all-the-year-around staple of the florists' stock probably the greater part of the lilies grown for market find their finish in funeral pieces. There are few flowers that make finer funeral sprays. Also, the lily is to be had in practically continuous supply, so that it may be depended upon for use at times when other suitable flowers are scarce. Frequently the lily is made in sprays backed by cycas leaves, but leucothœ is excellent for the purpose, as shown in the accompanying illustration prepared from a photograph supplied by J. L. Raske, a Chicago retailer.

Funeral Spray of Easter Lilies.

MR. FELTON COMING.

From an English contemporary, the Horticultural Trade Journal, it is learned that one of London's best known retailers, R. F. Felton, "is going to the United States National Flower Show at New York next April to act both as judge and decorative demonstrator. The S. A. F. has apparently heard so much about R. F. F. that they desire either to improve their own knowledge on color schemes, or get a sight of the author of floral decoration. One thing is certain, R. F. F. is quite capable of talking up to any United States florist that may disagree with him."

AMARYLLIS HALLII.



Perhaps readers of The Review might be interested in a little account of the hardy amaryllis, A. Hallii, or, as it has recently been introduced, Lycoris squamigera, with the statement that it is a native of Japan. I first had it from Hovey's, of Boston, as Amaryllis Hallii. It is a typical amaryllis and is perfectly hardy in the latitude of Illinois in the open ground when planted seven inches deep, as I can certify from twenty-five years' experience. The bulbs can be planted in the autumn and they are the first thing to break ground in spring. The foliage is of the amaryllis type and dies away in June. August 5 to 8 a point the thickness of your finger comes through and in from five to seven days reaches thirty to thirty-six inches in height, with a whorl of lily-shaped flowers at the top, with a blending in the most harmonious way of pink and porcelain blue, altogether a most interesting and beautiful plant. When I first got it the introducer said it was a native of the Windward Islands of the West Indies, but now we learn its home is in Japan, which I think more likely from its extreme hardiness. C. B. Paddock.

MARGUERITES.

At what time should I get 2¼-inch daisies or marguerites? When should I pot them the last time, and when should I top them the last time to have them in bloom for next Easter?

E. E. G.

Get the plants now. Shift to 4-inch and later to 6-inch pots. The last shift should be given by January 1. Discontinue pinching after the first part of December and give the plants a sunny bench in a house kept about 50 degrees at night. C. W.

There is personal pride and painstaking care back of our design work. That's why our Door Pieces, Casket Bouquets, and other Floral Tributes are always preferred by those who demand the best. Notwithstanding the excellence of flowers and workmanship, you will find our prices as reasonable as any.

Perhaps readers of The Review might be interested in a little account of the hardy amaryllis, A. Hallii, or, as it has recently been introduced, Lycoris squamigera, with the statement that it is a native of Japan. I first had it from Hovey's, of Boston, as Amaryllis Hallii. It is a typical amaryllis and is perfectly hardy in the latitude of Illinois in the open ground when planted seven inches deep, as I can certify from twenty-five years' experience. The bulbs can be planted in the autumn and they are the first thing to break ground in spring. The foliage is of the amaryllis type and dies away in June. August 5 to 8 a point the thickness of your finger comes through and in from five to seven days reaches thirty to thirty-six inches in height, with a whorl of lily-shaped flowers at the top, with a blending in the most harmonious way of pink and porcelain blue, altogether a most interesting and beautiful plant. When I first got it the introducer said it was a native of the Windward Islands of the West Indies, but now we learn its home is in Japan, which I think more likely from its extreme hardiness. C. B. MARGUERITES.

At what time should I get 2¼-inch daisies or marguerites? When should I pot them the last time, and when should I top them the last time to have them in bloom for next Easter?

E. E. G.

Get the plants now. Shift to 4 inch and later to 6-inch pots. The last shift should be given by January 1. Discontinue pinching after the first part of December and give the plants a sunny bench in a house kept about 50 degrees at night. C. W.

DUTCH BULBS

HOW TO MAKE THEM PAY.

Indispensable for Home Sales.

With the arrival of cool nights and the making in readiness of quarters for tender plants, the Holland bulbs come to hand. While the weather is warm bulb talk somehow palls on us, but as the elements grow cooler we somehow become more and more interested in them. We hear each year growers for the city cut flower markets say that Dutch bulbs are a nuisance and that there is no money in them. It is true that there are glut periods with these, as with all other flowers, but for the country florist who uses the bulk of his blooms at home there is rarely any waste, provided always that batches are properly timed, that suitable varieties are grown, and that a good, cool cellar or shed can be utilized for retarding purposes. Also, the grower who uses his bulb stock for his retail trade gets as good prices as ever he did.

The quantity of Dutch bulbs which can be flowered at Christmas is so small as to be scarcely worth mentioning. St. Valentine's day brings a fair call for certain varieties, but the largest sales are always at Easter, and while white varieties used to be the leaders, the pink shades now sell better. There are so many diverse uses to which bulbs can be put, either cut or in pots or pans, that the wideawake grower will find no trouble in disposing of them.

Soil.

While the soil for bulbs does not need as careful preparation as for some other classes of plants, it should have been prepared some weeks ago, as advised in The Review. All Dutch bulbs succeed well in a light but moderately rich compost. Two-thirds decayed loam, one-third old cow, hotbed or mushroom manure, with a fair addition of leafmold and plenty of sharp sand will be found suitable. Mix this thoroughly and it is all the better if it is prepared before being wanted. It is safer not to add bone or any chemical fertilizers to soil for bulbs, as these are more likely to injure rather than improve the plants.

Tulips.

Tulips are more in demand in pans or pots than any other Dutch bulbs. There also is a good call for certain colors in winter in a cut state; not, however, to the same extent as narcissi. For cutting, no tulip has yet equaled in popularity La Reine, also called Queen Victoria. It comes shaded with light rose in winter, becoming pure white later in the season. By keeping darker some growers produce pure white flowers in January, but purchasers seem to rather prefer the pink-shaded flowers. If restricted to one tulip, a commercial grower should select this sort. White Hawk is a good early tulip for forcing, aways coming pure white. In pinks of moderate price, suitable for cutting, choose Rose Grisdelin. There are others, such as Pink Beauty, Flamingo and Queen of the Netherlands, vastly superior in quality, but their price is as yet a little too high for general use. Belle Alliance is a good scarlet and Yellow Prince is a useful yellow. Thomas Moore, apricot orange, Keizerskroon and Duchess of Parma are all good for cutting. Thomas Moore is a good seller, but none of these are in demand like La Reine.

For pot or pan culture, a little more variety may be used, and if one or two of the somewhat higher-priced sorts are included they should be charged for in like ratio. Here are a good dozen sorts: Mon Tresor, yellow; Flamingo, Queen Wilhelmina, Queen of Netherlands, Pink Beauty, pinks; Thomas Moore, orange; Proserpine, rose; Vermilion Brilliant, scarlet; Keizerskroon, red and yellow; Joost van Vondel, White Pottebakker and La Reine, white. I have not mentioned the Duc van Tholl tulips. These are quite dwarf, averaging six inches high, but are much more easily flowered for Christmas than any others. There are white, yellow, rose and other shades of these.

The Darwin and cottage tulips are naturally late flowering and it has hardly paid to cultivate them under glass; though some of the Holland houses say they can be forced as well as the other type, we do not know of its being done on any large scale in this country.

Narcissi.

Without a generous planting of narcissi, no country florist can well get along. These have less call as pot plants, but are in heavier request for cutting than any others of the Dutch bulb family. The Trumpet majors are the earliest to flower. The Dutch follow closely after the French and are to be had in fair condition at Christmas if started as soon as received. The popular Golden Spur is more in demand than any other single yellow daffodil and should be planted heavily. The double Von Sion remains popular commercially, as it stands rough handling better than the singles. It is a much coarser flower than the single form, but sells even better. In the large trumpet class it will pay to grow a good batch each of Emperor, Victoria and Empress. Princeps is a cheap variety, somewhat lacking in substance, but it can be grown at a good profit, owing to its low price. In the short trumpet section, Sir Watkin, the giant Welsh daffodil, sells moderately well. Poeticus ornatus flowers early and is in heavy demand. Leedsii Mrs. Langtry and Barrii conspicuus can be sold, but only in small quantities. Flats containing four to five inches of soil should be used for the various narcissi.

Hyacinths.

As cut flowers the Dutch hyacinths have a much more restricted sale than tulips or narcissi. Their heavy odor, which becomes obnoxious as the flowers fade, is against them. The second, or bedding size of bulbs, or what are known as Dutch Romans, are the best for early forcing for cutting, and one or two sorts of a pleasing color are L'Innocence, white; Queen of the Blues, blue; Gigantea, pink; La Grandesse, white, and Roi des Belges, bright red. Any of the foregoing are good for pot or pan culture. In addition, the following should be included: Mme. van der Hoop and Baroness van Tuyll, white or blush; Gertrude and Pink Perfection, rose and pink; King of the Yellows, yellow; King of the Blues, Grand Maitre and Czar Peter, blue.

Some growers leave the tops of their hyacinths' noses peeping. This is a mistake. They are better covered a little; half an inch will suffice.

These, with the tulips and narcissi, after being well soaked with water, should be placed on a bed of coal ashes in a frame or cellar and buried several inches deep in fine ashes. A quite popular plan is to bury in trenches outdoors. There are advantages and many serious drawbacks to this plan, the worst being in getting out the stock during severe weather. Anyone who has a good, cool cellar and has once tried storing his bulbs there never wants to plunge them outdoors again, and I have never heard it claimed that bulbs carried in trenches outdoors are in any way superior to those carried over in a cellar, frame or shed.

Miscellaneous Bulbs.

There are a number of miscellaneous bulbs which florists will find it profitable to grow. First comes Spanish iris. Of these Louise, Cajanus, Midlay and Blanche Fleur are a good quartette. Then the ever popular Gladiolus nanus cannot be omitted. The best of these are Peach Blossom, Blushing Bride, Pink Perfection, Ackermanni, Mathilde and Apollo. Ixias, babianas, sparaxis and tritonias, grown in small pans, are charming in spring and always eagerly sought after by the up-to-date retailers. Anemone coronaria, blue, white and scarlet, and A. fulgens, also the Persian and Turban ranunculi, grown in a cold house, are welcome in spring. These do well in a violet temperature and must never be forced.

This by no means completes the list of bulbs which can be grown under glass, but few others are of much commercial value except for outdoor bedding, and these will be treated in a later article.

Unpack bulbs as soon as received and keep them just as short a time as possible out of the soil. They fritter away strength every day they remain in the bags or boxes.

AMERICA AND NIAGARA.

Of the innumerable introductions by John Lewis Childs nothing has approached Gladiolus America in importance in a trade way. Since the day that Roosevelt's yacht, the Mayflower, was decorated with America and the variety brought to the attention of the entire world, it has come to be the most largely grown gladiolus in the entire list. Wherever there are florists this variety has been a money-maker. The accompanying illustration shows the Childs field of America as it appeared a few weeks ago, blooming at Flowerfield, on Long Island.

Not since the advent of America has Childs had a variety which has attracted the interest which has attached to Niagara. This is one of the seedlings raised by Frank Banning, at Kinsman, O. In type the variety resembles America, but the flowers appear to be somewhat larger, measuring four and one-half inches across. In color the flowers are a delightful cream shade, with the two lower inside petals or segments blending to canary yellow. The throat is splashed with carmine, and the lower ends of the outside petals are also blushed with carmine. The stamens are purple and the stigmas pale carmine, this little addition in the coloring relieving the creamy effect of the petals. The flower spike is erect and stout and is wrapped with broad, dark-green foliage.

PLANTS FOR DESIGN BEDDING.

We ask your kindly aid through The Review, at the same time aiding many others. One of our customers wishes an Eastern Star flower bed for next season, the points carrying the star colors, each red, blue, yellow, white and green. Please give a list of suitable bulbs, also annuals and perennials. Something permanent is wanted. A. J. K.

In hardy bulbs you could use tulips effectively for an early display, but there are none of these blue in color. In hyacinths you could use General Pelessier, scarlet; Baroness Van Tuyll, pure white; King of the Blues, dark blue, and Ida, golden yellow. In tulips Vermilion Brilliant, rich scarlet; Joost van Vondel or White Pottebakker, white; Chrysolora or Mon Tresor, yellow. Wouwerman or Van der Neer, dark purple, come the nearest to blue among tulips. We have named single hyacinths and tulips as being more desirable for bedding than double ones. Among the bulbs you could plant blue, white, yellow and reddish-brown pansies, or the same shade in violas or tufted pansies as a groundwork and to follow the bulbs until time for tender plants. Be sure, however, to use colors which will not clash.

There are few perennials which can be depended upon to make a show for any length of time, but some annuals last well. Alyssum Little Gem, for white, lasts well. Ageratum Stella Gurney is a splendid blue. Red and yellow alternanthera can always be depended upon. For white, in lieu of alyssum, you could use santolina, silvery white.

You cannot well get a bed which will give a constant show of bloom by one planting. Plant bulbs this fall, fill in with violas, pansies, forget-me-nots or similar plants to follow, then remove these and plant in the summer varieties which will carry until fall, when it will again be time to set out bulbs.

PLANTS UNDER GLASS.

They Are Early This Year.

The standard varieties under glass are coming along rapidly at this time and in many cases are some ten days earlier than usual with us. Whether this is general, I am unable to say. Unaka, which we did not cut last year until September 25, we have been able to cut since September 7, thereby making it practically three weeks earlier than ever before. It must be confessed that financially there seems to be little gain by trying to get them in ahead of "the other fellow," as the market hardly settles down before frost has nipped most of the outdoor stock.

Monrovia and white and yellow October Frost are also fully developed with us ten days earlier than usual. The weather-sharp may put it down to the hot spell in July or the cool spell in August. I am content to say I do not know what is responsible.

Going through a greenhouse recently and observing a splendid lot of plants with the buds just a mass of red spider, prompts the suggestion that one should look over his plants and see that they are perfectly clean before syringing is discontinued. It is impossible to syringe when the buds are half developed and the spider must be cleaned off before the buds come to that state or many of them will never develop at all.

Thrips and green and black fly must also be closely looked for, but it is safe to say that spider causes more trouble to the mum growers than nearly all other causes put together.

Chas. H. Totty.

OUTDOOR VARIETIES.

The double-flowering outdoor type of chrysanthemum is getting to be much better known in America and in almost every part of the country it is giving splendid satisfaction. This type is the mum seen in the Covent Garden and Parisian markets through the months of August, September and October, either grown as pot plants or cut in sprays and bunched.

We are indebted to Auguste Nonin for the most improved varieties and some of his newer ones are wonderfully fine. The following sorts were in full flower September 20 and making a wonderful show with us, grown outdoors without disbudding or any care save a slight protection during the winter.

Normandie so far is the gem of the set, a lovely Enchantress shade of pink. Where some of the shoots have been disbudded they are throwing good flowers, but where they have been left to run to sprays they are, I think, more beautiful. It is wonderfully prolific and a splendid thing to grow in this manner for cutting.

The best yellow so far open is Harrie, a variety imported last year. It is a good deep yellow and has been a perfect mass of flowers for the last ten days. Maggie is the only other good yellow to compete with it at this date. A lighter shade of yellow is Jack Bannister, but it is really too light and does not show up much better than a dirty white.

Other varieties that were in excellent shape at the date mentioned were Perle Chatillonaise, a creamy white which makes a much longer stem than the average; consequently it is more valuable to be used as a bunching variety.

In white the best so far open is La Cygne, which is pure in color and has the best habit of the whites so far open. Holmes White is wonderfully free, although hardly so long in the stem. Provence, while called a pink in England, in our more brilliant sunshine is bleached practically to white. The gold tip and center are not nearly so brilliant as when grown in France or England.

La Yonne is another pink that shades, with us, almost to white. L'Aube is white shaded with rose, although the rose is so delicate that it simply gives the faintest flush to the flower. We cannot expect to get the pinks in good color nearly so early as the European growers do.

The best pink of the whole lot so far is Mme. Marquis. This is quite a good color and the incurving florets, particularly when the flower is disbudded, are especially attractive.

We have only two scarlets at the present time in good condition. They are Firefly, a good crimson with golden tips, and Wells' Scarlet, which shades from scarlet to deep terra cotta.

The foregoing notes comprise all the varieties that were fully open September 20. That there is a big field for these mums when they become better known, I am positive, from the inquiries that are all the time coming in for varieties that will flower before the sharp frost appears to cut and disfigure the blooms.

In the northern part of this country these varieties will be just as hardy as the pompons. They are entirely hardy in New Jersey, when given a slight protection from the midwinter sun by a covering of straw. They are twice as large as pompons and coming, as they do, a month sooner, they give much more satisfaction and as a commercial proposition are well worthy of serious consideration.

It is peculiar to note that the two American varieties, Smith's Advance and Golden Glow, grown outside and handled the same way, have given us no results whatever. All the earliest flowers have either turned black or failed to develop. The two latter varieties under glass, disbudded, we have been cutting for the last two weeks, so it is entirely a matter of their being unable to withstand the outdoor conditions. Chas. H. Totty.

TROUBLE WITH POT MUMS.

I am sending herewith some leaves from chrysanthemum pot plants with which I am having trouble. Note the dotted points on the leaves. The black spots have a little caterpillar inside. Please tell me what to do, for I already have these troubles on my pot mums and it is spreading to the poinsettias.
M. C. S.

The raised dots on the leaf are some form of fungoid disease, although I am unable to say what. The microscope fails to reveal any sign of life and I am of the opinion they will do little harm to the development of the flowers, particularly if the leaves are sprayed with a solution of sulphide of potassium, as frequently recommended in these columns.

The black spots noted with the caterpillar on the inside of the leaf are the Tephritis onopordinis. The egg of this insect is deposited in the leaf and the larvæ eat the tissue, leaving only the front and back skin of the leaf to protect them. To spray in any manner is useless, as the skin of the plant protects the larvæ and insecticides never reach the place where they could do good. I would recommend hand-picking, or just squeezing the leaf with the fingers where the insect is lodged.

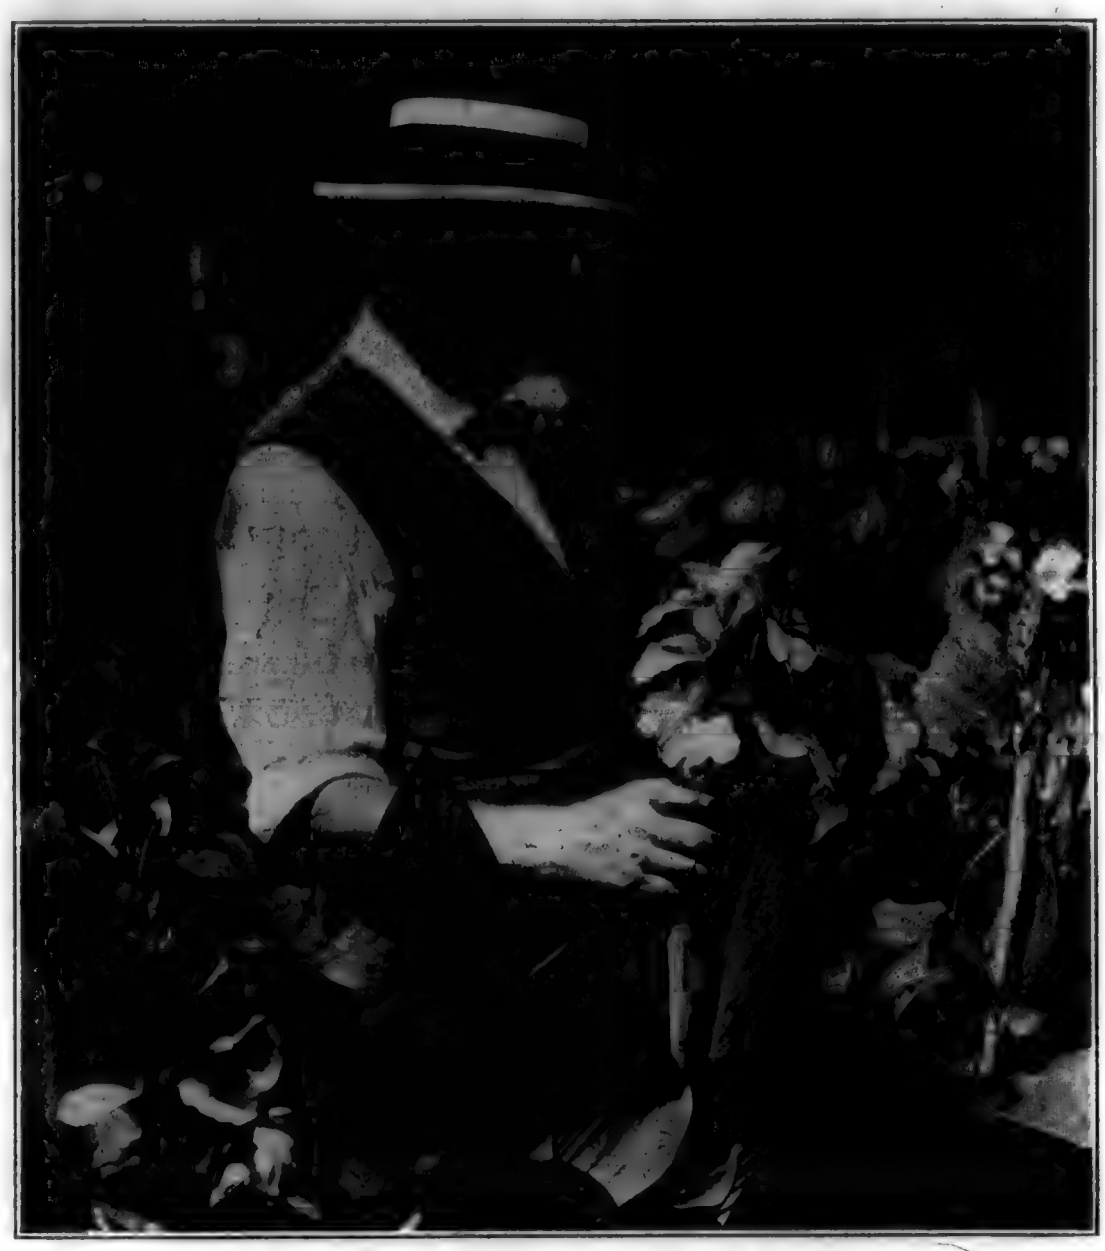
CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

President Chas H. Totty announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year, as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson, chairman; James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to Boston Flower Exchange, C. Park street, care of chairman.



New York—Eugene Dailledouze, chairman; Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 West Twenty-second street, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge, chairman; John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street.

Cincinnati — R. Witterstaetter, chairman; James Allen, Henry Schwartz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabes Elliott Flower Market, care janitor.

Chicago—J. B. Deamud, chairman; D. A. Robertson, Peter Schilt. Ship flowers to J. B. Deamud, 160 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days, to receive attention from the committees. Must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms. Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two trials to determine their character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees. The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted to them on each Saturday during October and November, the dates of which will be October 5, 12, 19 and 26 and November 2, 9, 16, 23 and 30.

Antoine Wintzer Examining His Canna Seedlings.

A DOUBLE CANNA.

A new type of canna has originated on the farm of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa. It bloomed in the patch devoted to seedlings by Antoine Wintzer, vice-president of the company, the greatest canna hybridizer it has ever been my pleasure to meet. The new canna bears flowers formed by eight petals, just double the usual number. The double variety originated from a seedling of the old Alba rosea variety in the third generation as pollen parent, and Buttercup, the standard yellow canna of today, as seed parent. The new seedling is of medium height, with robust growth, green foliage and clear orange-yellow flowers. The double form gives the flowers a distinct character that is most pleasing. Should this type become fixed it will open a vast field of possibility to the canna hybridizers of tomorrow, possibilities that make certain the development of the canna at an even greater pace than the wonderful development of the last decade.

I spent a delightful afternoon with Mr. Wintzer last week, going over his cannas. They were marvels of beauty that warm September day, a sight so glorious that the time seems close at hand when the canna must stand first among outdoor decorative plants. The standard varieties, introductions of the last few seasons, and the leading novelties were planted in long rows side by side, giving an excellent opportunity for comparison.

The seedlings were in a large patch by themselves. Fully two-thirds of them were of such promise that they would have merited further trial ten years ago. One long row of seedlings from Blanche Wintzer, the coming white, were all wonderfully fine—strong, even growth, with magnificent flower spikes bearing large flowers, mostly pleasing shades of pink, with some lemon yellows and some whites. An interesting attempt is being made to increase the vigor of the new varieties by infusing the wild Costa Rica blood. The Costa Ricans now in their second generation show decided improvement over the original stock. Some quite fair flowers were seen. These were pinks and clear yellows. They do not show any more vigor than the home-grown stock and cannot compare with it in any of the desirable qualities.

The wealth of material makes it possible for Mr. Wintzer to give scope to his store of knowledge in cross fertilizing. Beyond the division of tall and dwarf, bronze foliage and green, erect and drooping, free-blooming and shy, red flowers and yellow, pink and white with their many variations, comes this cross between the canna with ideal foliage and the canna with perfectly formed flowers, to say nothing of the early bloomer, the self-cleaner and other desirable qualities.

The effect of feeding on cannas was manifest. The portions of the fields that were heavily fed were magnificent, far excelling that portion of the fields where little manure had been used. Mr. Wintzer says that the canna must have space, manure and water to do its best. Give all three, add early planting and the modern varieties of cannas will yield fifteen or sixteen flowers to each plant. It seems extraordinary, but it is often done.

The newer varieties of cannas are wonderful: Splendor, Beacon, Maid of Orleans, Woreley, to be classed with Mrs. Conard, Olympic, and many, many more. The visit was a treat long to be remembered, which I owe to my friend Robert Pyle, president of the company, whose unswerving devotion to his work has made possible these splendid results.

ROSE OLD GOLD.

One of the year's striking European rose novelties is Old Gold, hybrid tea, raised by Samuel McGredy & Son, Portadown, Ireland. At the recent Regent's park show of the National Rose Society of Great Britain the variety received a gold medal by the unanimous vote of the committee. The basket there exhibited is shown in the accompanying illustration. The arrangement is supposed to have been by one of London's widely known retail florists. In speaking of this exhibit one of the British trade papers said: "The flowers are of beautiful pointed form, and one of the most glorious bits of color that has ever been seen. The tint is a vivid reddish-orange, impossible adequately to describe, the dark foliage forming a delightful contrast. This should be a gem for table and other decorations, and we noted it was perfect when we left in the afternoon, so that it evidently has keeping quality."

THE EVERY-DAY WORK.

Early Cutting.

Those growers who find fault with early planting give as one of their objections the statement that the early cutting checks the plants and weakens them for flowering later, when the cut blooms are worth more money. Were the flowers cut with a full length of stem, there would be reason in this, and doubtless in some instances this is done, to the detriment of the stock. But the grower who persists in cutting the life out of his plants at a season when the flowers hardly pay the cost of expressing to the market has a lot to learn as to the fitness of things.

Producing flowers does not weaken or check vigorous young stock. It is taking away long stems, cutting out the very heart of the plant, that does the mischief.

The New Basal Shoots.

The earliest planted Kaiserins, Killarneys, White Killarneys and Richmonds are now pushing up strong basal shoots, showing that the roots have obtained a good hold of the new soil and are enjoying the good things provided in this larder or storehouse of nutriment.

These vigorous shoots are they that will lay the foundation of a vigorous plant for winter flowering and they should be encouraged in every way. The futility of cutting these out entirely with the flowers should be apparent to any thoughtful grower. The flowers are usually poor and the stems out of all proportion to them. If the flowers are cut for market at all, they should be taken with only a few inches of stem, and in most cases they would be best removed when partly open, as in disbudding. The way for these shoots should be made clear by removing any crossing wood or useless small shoots, so as to give them every chance to swell up vigorous, prominent eyes.

Insect Pests.

This systematic pruning in the earlier stages of the plants' growth will prevent the formation of bushy centers, which are useless to the plants and form a congenial home for all kinds of injurious insects. Were it always possible to plant the whole of a house at one time, the house could be heavily fumigated with cyanide beforehand and there would be much less risk of insects, but this is by no means the case and the best that can be done is to keep both old and young stock as clean as possible.

There are several good spray nozzles on the market, which, used with a good force behind them, create a fine but powerful mist that can be sprayed all over and under the foliage and stems, reaching every bit of the plant and yet hardly wetting the surface of the benches. This treatment, given daily, or even twice daily if insects are seen, is of great assistance in keeping them in check. Where thrips is present some insecticide will have to be used, but even this insect, troublesome as it is, is kept down by frequent spraying with cold water.

Plants That Are Held Over.

Plants that are being held over for another season should be cleaned up, pruned, mulched and put in order. The old plan of drying off is not as much practiced as formerly, and is especially unsuitable for the Killarneys. These roses should not be dried, nor should they be cut back as hard as some other kinds, but all superfluous wood and small, twig-like shoots can be cut out with advantage.

Should the soil appear to be sour and close on the surface, from constant feeding and watering, remove this to the depth of a couple of inches, or more if no roots are seen, and replace with new, well enriched soil. Before putting this on, see that the soil beneath is moist, as it is difficult to get the water through the new soil without making it too wet for the roots to enter freely.

In the Beauty Houses.

In the Beauty houses the young plants are making an elegant growth now, and every precaution must be taken to keep them vigorous, yet hard and well consolidated, as they grow. A daily spraying is not necessary, provided the plants are clean. It may appear to do no harm now—in fact, to the inexperienced grower it seems to do good—but too much overhead moisture predisposes the plants to black spot and other fungoid diseases later.

American Beauty and Richmond need less syringing than any other roses, and the harder foliage produced under these circumstances is less liable to attacks of red spider. It pays at this time to go over the plants and remove any of the lower leaves that are attacked by red spider. Their loss will not be felt by the plants at this time and it will prevent the spread of this unsightly pest.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The American Rose Society has issued the premium list, as prepared by its executive committee, for cut roses at the approaching National Flower Show. For the best display covering not less than 200 square feet three premiums are offered, $250, $150 and $100. For 100 Beauties the three premiums are $60, $40 and $20. For 50 Beauties the premiums are $30, $20 and $10. For twenty-five Beauties the premiums are $20, $15 and $10. Two classes are provided for each of the roses grown commercially for cut flowers. The classes calling for fifty flowers offer first premiums of $20, and second premiums of $10. The classes calling for twenty-five flowers offer first premiums of $10, and second premiums of $5. There are some extremely liberal premiums for retailers' displays in which roses are used. Classes for the commercial roses are provided open only to private gardeners and amateurs, twelve blooms of each, in which the premiums are $4 and $2.

ROSE GROWING IN UTAH.

Up to a comparatively short time ago, two years, to be exact, it was a popular supposition in Salt Lake City and less important flower markets nearby, that first-class roses could not be grown in Utah. What little experimenting had been done was crude and consequently unsuccessful, and while a few realized how the local trade was handicapped by being obliged to wait from twenty-four to thirty-six hours between ordering and receiving shipments, there was apparently no one to take the initiative in demonstrating what might be accomplished in Utah until Robert Miller arrived on the scene and proceeded to form a company to grow roses. Mr. Miller had come from Cromwell, Conn., where he had been actively engaged in the same occupation. There was no question in the minds of those whom he approached with the project that he could carry the work to a successful conclusion provided local conditions were favorable, but many were dubious of the outcome. However, the company was formed and Mr. Miller, who was made president and manager, proceeded to acquire ten acres of the best land in Utah, at Farmington, a beautiful suburb of Salt Lake City.

That was two and a half years ago. The accompanying illustration shows the range as it now stands and the company is negotiating for an adjoining ten acres in order that there may be no lack of room for the extension of its facilities.
